FERRY OFFICER AGENT URGED

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has laid out conditions which will ensure that B.C. Ferries officers are adequately represented in the decision-making process of the new union representing all ferry employees.

In his ruling, released Tuesday, LRB chairman Paul Weiler grants certification to the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union to represent all the employees.

However, Weiler also suggests the union, an off-shoot of the marine services general component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, appoint a six-member committee to select a special business agent to look after the interests of the officers.

There are about 500 officers in the new union, and the remaining 1,800 in the group are unlicensed ferry workers, clerks and tradesmen.

When the LRB ruled last month that all ferry workers should be represented by one group instead of bargaining as separate components the officers expressed concern that they would not be adequately represented.

There has been a long-standing internal rift between the officers and unlicensed groups and it surfaced during last month's four-hour strike by the officers.

George Hornett, chairman of the ferry and marine workers union, said today the two groups have had their differences but that is all in the past.

"We've got to get on with the job," he said. "the name of the game now is fair and equitable opportunities for all parties."

Hornett of Victoria has served for the past 14 years as chairman for the unlicensed personnel, the same term served by Norm Thornber as business agent for the group. Thornber continues in the same role with the new union.

Peter Marshall, who represented the officers during their recent strike, is still a BCGEU staff representative but union general-secretary John Fryer said today he has no specific assignment.

Fryer said he suggested to Marshall that he apply for the special business agent job with the new union.

Hornett said he does not know at this stage whether single bargaining unit for officers and unlicensed personnel is good or bad.

He said it is something that had never been tried in the marine industry.

Drunk Blocks Friday

Greater Victoria police departments will have roving roadblocks on duty Friday night for the first skirmish in the province's new war on drinking drivers.

City police chief Jack Gregory said his traffic division will be bolstered by auxiliary policemen as they are for the regular Christmas roadblocks.

And Insp. Bob Rivers, head of the RCMP traffic division, says the force will "back to the hilt" Attorney-General Garde Gardom's assault on the drinking driver — even if it means overtime and redeployment of manpower.

Money and manpower are assigned by priorities, and the drinking driver is a priority, he said, pointing out there were 630 road deaths in B.C. last year.

Spill Flows Into Alta.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Some oil from a 2,500-barrel spill got past containment booms on the Peace and Pine Rivers and was flowing into Alberta Tuesday.

More than 112,000 gallons of oil had spewed from a rupture, 28 inches long and four inches wide, which occurred Friday in a 12-inch pipeline owned by Westcoast Petroleum Co. Ltd. The line runs along Stewart Creek, which empties into the Pine river.

Robert Lawrence of Calgary, Westcoast president, said cost of the cleanup is expected to be $400,000.

CITY BLACK MARKET BARED

Laetrile...for a Price

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Laetrile — the controversial cancer treatment substance damned by the medical profession as useless — is readily available in Victoria to people with the right contacts and enough cash, a former cancer patient claims.

The man, a Victoria resident in his 30s who asked not to be identified, says he has been taking laetrile for three years and pays $60 to $65 a week for the drug which he gets through a local source.

He estimates there are about 1,000 persons on Vancouver Island in the same boat and some pay as much as $125 a week.

While some persons smuggle in their own supplies from Mexico and Germany, he says a number buy it directly from established contacts in Victoria.

The contacts include, he says, some "very rich and prominent individuals."

"They're bringing it in at great personal risk and little or no profit," he says. "To us, they're like Robin Hoods."

Laetrile is classified as an "uncleared new drug" by the federal drug inspection service. It can't be sold or advertised in Canada. But there is no prohibition against possessing it or even importing it, provided it is used solely by the importer.

The man says there is a laetrile blackmarket in Seattle to which some cancer sufferers have turned and he said he knows of a drug store in Vancouver where the substance is sold under the counter at exorbitant prices.

All of the local deals are handled on a special consignment basis and adds he is aware of at least two doctors who are steering cancer patients to the right people to get the drug.

"You'd be suprised at just who's involved in this thing," he says. "There are lawyers, doctors and business people."

He agrees the cost of the treatment is grossly inflated.

Laetrile, after all, is nothing more than pure amygdalin, a nitriloside found in the pits of apricots, peaches and plums as well as about 1,500 other plants.

"Sure it's a rip-off," he says. "But if you have cancer you'll pay anything to try to get a remedy.

"But you can't blame the people who sell or take laetrile for its high cost. It's the position taken by doctors and the government that has made it so expensive.

"They've made it illegal and the law has made us all criminals."

He says that 3½ years ago he was diagnosed as having terminal stomach and intestinal cancer. Doctors gave him six months to live.

He says he spent a small fortune criss-crossing the United States seeking medical advice. He saw 15 specialists, the top men in the cancer field. They all told him there was nothing they could do.

Finally someone suggested laetrile. He went to Mexico, and spent $3,000 on a three-week treatment program that involved massive injections of the substance.

When he left he was put on a special diet and advised to continue taking laetrile to prevent the cancer from recurring.

Three years have now passed and, he says, he no longer has symptoms of the disease. He has regained 80 of the 100 pounds he lost during his illness and says: "I've never felt fitter."

He doesn't believe, however, the treatment alone was a cure.

"'Laetrile, doesn't fight cancer as such," he says. "What it does, and pareticularly the diet, is supply the body with the necessary vitamins to ensure good health.

"Together they build up the body and keep it from being starved by the cancer. You'll never see a fat person die of the disease. In this case, fat can be beautiful."

UN Action Sought On Rhodesian Raid

United Press International

Britain and the United States are considering possible joint action, including an appeal to the UN Security Council, to compel Rhodesia to withdraw its troops from Mozambique, the British Foreign Office said today.

A spoksman said the British government always has ruled out major military action against Rhodesia, "but an appeal to the Security Council is a possibility."

The statement came amid warnings that the invasion by Rhodesia could trigger "a serious military conflict" and dispute attenipts to negotiate a peaceful transition to black rule.

A defiant Rhodesia, meanwhile, says its troops have captured a Mozambican town and will remain deep inside Mozambique until they "eliminate" black nationalist guerrillas' headquarters there.

Lt.-Gen. Peter Walls, the Rhodesian military commander, said Tuesday his troops have now destroyed four guerrilla bases and penetrated as far as 47 miles inside Mozambique where they captured the town of Mapai.

The invasion has disrupted "the chain of command and logistical support" of the Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army, the guerrilla group led by Robert Mugabe, he said.

Rhodesian troops have killed 32 guerrillas but lost none of their own men, Walls added.

"Would I have liked to kill hundreds? Yeah. Sure," Walls said.

The four guerrilla bases destroyed so far included "a major administrative centre" three miles inside Mozambique, a main supply and logistics headquarters outside Mapai and two welcoming centers for recruits at Jorge do Limpopo and Madulo Pan.

Wall said no Mozambican civilians have been killed "as far as I know" and that there "probably" were no civilians in Mapai when the town fell.

"This goes far beyond hot pursuit (of guerrillas) and raises issues of the utmost seriousness challenging the territorial integrity of a member state of the United Nations," British Foreign Secretary David Owen said.

Secretary-general Kurt Waldheim, in a statement released at UN headquarters, demanded the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of the Rhodesian troops.

JAPAN OFFICE EYED BY B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government may establish an office in Japan to promote tourism and trade, says Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

McCarthy, minister responsible for the travel industry, told the Pan Pacific Congress of Real Estate Appraisers that about 50,000 Japanese tourists visit British Columbia each year, in addition to 20,000 from other Pacific nations.

B.C. already had trade and tourism promotion offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles, she said.

McCarthy said later that no final decision had been reached, but indicated her office and the ministry of economic development were compiling statistical information for the cabinet.

The provincial secretary also told the congress the Social Credit government was combating unemployment through the encouragement of private enterprise.

She said there had been an over-reaction to environmental problems, adding, "there is a worse pollution problem in the province than the environment can ever be, and that is the pollution of unemployment."

Dutch Accept Mediator Plea

GLIMMEN The Netherlands (UPI) — The Dutch government has accepted a mediation request by Moluccan gunmen holding 60 hostages aboard a hijacked train and in a school for the 10th day, a spokesman said.

But he said there was still disagreement on who the mediator or mediators would be.

The estimated 15 gunmen had proposed two persons as mediators Tuesday, but these has not been accepted by the government, he said. The government in turn proposed two persons Wednesday, but the gunmen rejected them, the spokesman said.

The spokesman did not identify any of the proposed mediators, or specify why they had not been acceptable.

A man meanwhile, collapsed today aboard the hijacked train where Moluccan gunmen were holding 56 hostages for the 10th day but the gunmen "emphatically" refused to release the man.

The spokesman said a 23-year-old female medical student, also among the hostages, told them she had treated the man and that he was now "Okay."

The government pleaded again with the gunmen to release a pregnant woman hostage, as well as the man who collapsed, but the Moluccans "emphatically refused," the spokesman said.

GOOD FOR MAGGOTS . . .

BANGKOK (UPI) — A Bangkok newspaper urges housewives to buy maggot-nibbled vegetables when shopping in the market.

"Housewives must keep in mind that vegetables which have been eaten by maggots are much safer for their family," the English-language Daily Morning Express advised its readers.

The newspapers said a nutritionist claims maggots are a sign the vegetables are not contaminated by pesticides.

Build Defence Forces Or Join U.S.—Boyle

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

If Canada isn't prepared to spend money on defence, it should become part of the United States, Vice-Admiral Douglas Boyle said Tuesday.

"Everyone has life insurance and that's what defence expenditure is," he said. "If we're not prepared to have that life insurance, we should pack it up as a country and become the 52nd state."

The hard-hitting admiral, who retires as commander maritime command on July 4, said the navy now has 20 ships in operation and these should be replaced in the next 20 years. He estimated it will cost $300 million a year to start the ship replacement program.

Boyle said to build six ships within the next eight years will cost between $2.3 billion and $2.4 billion. Apart from construction costs, millions will have to be spent on designs, duty for imported equipment, purchase and design of computer programs, as well as 12 per cent sales tax.

"But the money will be spent in Canada and will provide jobs and help Canadian shipyards," he said.

Boyle warned that undue delay in the ship replacement program will "be critical".

Boyle said officials are divided into two camps on what sort of vessels should replace the againg Canadian fleet. One group wants the most modern of fighting ships while the other is promoting patrol vessels.

"It's now view that we should have sophisticated ships that can do everything, both fight and deter, and do all of the whole patrol activity," Boyle said. "In our business, if you're not the best you get killed."

He said the defence department's paper on ship replacement is now before Defence Minister Barney Danson and he is hopeful a final decision will be made before Parliament ends the current session.

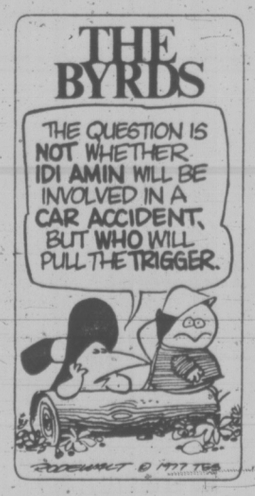

Boyle said a "credible warship" would be between 36,000 and 38,000 tons and slightly smaller than the helicopter destroyer HMCS Athabaskan that visited Esquimalt earlier this year.

Will the government approve the ship replacement proposals?

"Our government is very nationalistic and I think there is a reasonable chance we will get a ship replacement program," Boyle said.

He reacted angrily when one reporter suggested Canada allow the U.S. to shoulder some of its naval responsibilities.

"If you're a Canadian you don't surrender your sovereignty for somebody else to look after."

No Rent Control End Until November

Legislation to begin phasing out rent controls in some areas of British Columbia is expected to be introduced this month but won't take effect before November.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday he expects rent controls will be removed for some parts of B.C. before year's end.

The proposals have yet to be approved by cabinet.

If cabinet approves, the legislation would be introduced in the session starting June 13 as part of amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act.

The amendments would also produce a better balance between the rights of landlords and tenants, Mair said.

The present act "is now tilted slightly in favor of the tenant," he said.

The change would not be severe. He said the act once favored the landlords but in recent years was amended to favor the tenants. Now it will be brought into balance.

He did not give details.

The cabinet will consider a number of proposals for phasing out rent controls, including the Alberta plan.

In Alberta, rent controls are being phased out over three years by gradually reducing the rent level at which controls are applied.

In B.C. everything above $500 per month has always been exempted from controls.

Areas where the construction level is high (and the vacancy rate high enough for an orderly market) would be considered for either removal or phase-out of controls before year's end.

This could be in addition to some version of the Alberta plan.

However, no areas could be designated before October, the date of the next vacancy rate survey by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Therefore the first designations are not expected before November or December.

First areas to be designated would be small communities with high vacancy rates.

Victoria real estate agents believe this area will be a strong candidate for designation by year's end, with a vacancy rate at eight per cent or higher.

He Takes Nuclear Risk in Stride

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Twenty years ago about 40 Canadian soldiers and more than 1,000 of their American counterparts were used as guinea-pigs in five Nevada nuclear tests.

Now American and Canadian authorities are checking medical records to ascertain whether or not the men are likely to die of leukemia through radiation.

One of the Canadian soldiers is Ken Umpherville of 3827 Interurban Road.

Hes not the least bit concerned and denies that he and his buddies were used as guinea-pigs.

An armed forces spokesman confirmed today that the Canadian Forces suregon-general has ordered a search and that the United States surgeon-general will be issueing a report on the U.S. soldiers who were involved in the nuclear tests at Desert Rock, Nev.

The Ottawa move came on the weekend after a Washington, DC., newspaper report that two of the American soliders involved in the tests are suffering from leukemia and one is near death.

(Paul Cooper, a Utah soldier, is receiving veterans' benefits while dying of leukemia.)

Umpherville's phone began ringing as soon as the story broke. His friends wanted to know the state of his health.

He says he's fine . . . and chuckles.

"In any large number of men you're going to have leukemia, tuberculosis, divorces and drunkards, that's the name of the game," he philosophies.

Umpherville was a lance-sergeant with the 7th Platoon, 1st. Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, based in Calgary, when he took part in the nuclear tests.

He said he and his mates volunteered for the assignment.

"It was an ordinary exercise and still is as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Umperville said the troops were about two miles away from the blasts, crouched in a long trench.

"It was a big long hole in the ground . . . one that I didn't have to dig," he said.

He said each man wore a film badge so that the amount of radiation could be monitored.

Only the observers had protective glasses. The rest wore ordinary uniforms and had their backs turned when the blasts were triggered.

"I agree with Cooper, when you had your back turned and if you put your hand over your eyes, you could see the bones in your hands," Umpherville said.

He said the Canadians were absorbed as a platoon of the U.S. 12th Infantry.

Umpherville, who retired from the army at Work Point five years ago after 23½ years service, says he is still in contact with some of the men who were with him in Nevada, such as Jack Taylor of Calgary and Peter Mitchell of Ottawa, who was platoon sergeant of the Canadian contingent.

All are in good health, although Umpherville admits he's been following newspaper reports closely since news of Cooper's ondition was announced.

"I looked forward to it as an experience. I'm happy I've had it," he said. "I've a great deal of trust in our system . . . in our armed forces."

TEL STRIKES RESUME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Proposed peace talks failed to materialize Tuesday at the British Columbia Telephone Co., resulting in a renewal of rotating strikes.

Pickets appeared early in the day at the toll centres in Campbell River, Nanaimo and Cranbrook, at service centres in Port Alberni, Duncan and Courtenay, and various other locations throughout the East Kootenays.

The union has been conducting rotating strikes for several weeks to protest the company's purchase of distributing frames from a Montreal-based firm instead of a subsidiary in nearby Burnaby.

Cancer Drug Smuggled Into Victoria who take laetrile are only deluding themselves.

"They're clutching at straws. It's just one final straw."

He notes both the American College of Physicians and the Royal College of Physicians of Canada deem laetrill treatments as a quack remedy.

Coy says he knows several patients who attend the clinic take laetrile.

"We tell them we think it is worthless, but we can't stop them."

He ways the laetrile institute in Mexico currently sees 100 patients a day. An estimated 3,000 Canadians make the trip each year paying on average, $800 to $2,500, Coy says.

He's aghast at the profits being made.

A gram of injectable laetrile costs only about two cents to make but sells for $1, he says.

A gram pill fetches 65 cents, while a three gram vial which costs less than a dollar to produce sells for $9.

Laetrile devotees contend, however, the profit margin is no greater than that realized by any pharmaceutical company producing legitimate, doctor-approved drugs. And, they argue, the treatment is far cheaper in the long run than enormously expensive traditional remedies like chemo-therapy and radiation.

Coy says the laetrile controversy revolves around "unfounded, untested and erroneous clims" of what the amygdalin molecule does to cancer cells.

According to the laetrile theory, proposed by Dr. Ernest Krebs more than 20 years ago, an enzyme, beta-glucosidase, breaks down molecule and releases cyanide which kills the cell.

Krebs contended the enzyme is more plentiful in malignant cells than normal ones.

Conversely, Krebs stated, the body produces another enzyme, rhodanese, which detoxifies the cyanide, and that enzyme is more plentiful in normal cells than malignant eons.

But Coy says there is no medical evidence to support the theory.

Coy says when Krebs first developed his theory, laetrile was considered a drug and came under stiff U.S. drug laws.

To get around the law, Coy says, Krebs decided to call amygdalin a vitamin and gave it the name B-17.

"It's fraudulent to call it a vitamin," says Coy. "Vitamins are essential for the normal functioning of life and there is no proof whatsoever amygdalin falls in this category."

Although the sale of laetrile itself is banned in Canada, certain amygdalin products aren't.

Apricot kernels, for example, which contain two to three per cent amygdalin in their raw state, are available at most health food stores.

You can buy whole kernels, ground kernels, powdered kernels, mixed with salad oil, seasoning spices and even a skin conditioner and moisturizer containing the amygdalin product.

Harry Bygdnes, a geophysicist by profession, started the business three years ago.

"I was familiar with the potential of laetrile and saw the market possibility," he says. "I also realized a good percentage of the apricot harvest was garbage and thought I could make something out of it."

He's sunk more than $100,000 into the business, he says. Last year he produced 50,000 pounds of kernels, the maximum potential for the Okanagan area. The product is distributed across Canada and northern United States.

He sells the kernels for $3 a pound. The price in Victoria ranges from $1.95 to $2.25 a half pound and local health food operators say the demand is low and sales anything but spectacular.

Bygdnes makes no claims concerning his product. But, he says, persons who use them do so for its alleged prophylactic value, to prevent cancer.

He acknowledges there is a danger of cyanide poisoning and warns consumers to limit their intake and keep the products out of the reach of children.

He regards cancer as nothing more than a nutritional deficiency disease and compares it to scurvy.

"Years ago we used to eat foods that contained nitrilosides," he says. "But not any more. The nitrilosides are removed when food is processed."

Bygdnes says he could produce pure amygdalin but doesn't because the law forbids him from selling it.

"It's an easy process to extract, the amygdalin," he says. "Any chemistry book will tell you how."

He says he could also produce laetrile and offer it for sale at a fraction of the price now paid.

"We have the capacity right here," he says. "All we need is to have the law changed."

Quebec Guerrillas In Training?

TORONTO (CP) — The Sun says two groups of French-Canadians from Quebec are being trained as terrorists and in guerrilla warfare at special camps in East Germany and Algeria.

The Sun quotes a source close to the West German government as saying some of the French-Canadians are part of a group of more than 500 persons from various countries being trained at a small city between Berlin and Dresden. The group includes revolutionary Marxists from parts of Africa, Chile, Ireland and the Basque area of Spain.

The other French-Canadians are with a second group in Algeria that includes Japanese and the extremist Ceres group of the French Socialist party.

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Royal commission into the British Columbia Railway was told Tuesday that the railway will ask the provincial government this fall to restructure its finances to "make the company worth working for again."

Railway leaders declined to go into details but hinted the plan might include provisions to keep politics some distance from future rail transactions.

The commission heard Tuesday how the provincial government has sunk hundreds of millions of dollars into a northern B.C. rail project that will benefit rival Canadian National Railways.

When B.C. Rail first agreed to build the controversial Dease Lake rail extension, the senior governments decided that revenue-generating traffic to Kitimat, and Prince Rupert would be carried by the railway.

But as the line progressed, costs zoomed, and the provincial government was obliged to concede more and more B.C. Rail benefits to the CNR to keep Ottawa interested in co-financing.

Glen McPherson, B.C. Rail vice-chairman, said so much has been conceded that if Dease is completed, CN will acquire all traffic from Prince George, to Prince Rueprt and B.C. Rail will be left out in the cold.

"It's a very good deal for CN — we have spent hundreds of millions of dollars building the line under this agreement and we now have to turn our traffic over to CN which did not contribute a nickel to building that line," he said.

The original $68 million cost estimate for the line has jumped to more than $300 million and it now is apparent Ottawa wants no more to do with the project having offered $81 million in loans to axe the plan.

McPherson told the commission that B.C. rail would prefer as little interference as possible from government when conducting future transactions with other railways.

He agreed with commission counsel Martin Taylor that there is a big difference between the objectives of the railway board and the political directions of the province.

FRANCE SHELVES N-PLANT

PARIS NYT) — France has decided to hold up a controversial nuclear plant sale to Pakistan, officials disclosed Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Louis de Guiringaud told U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance that critical blueprints due for delivery will not be sent for the time being.

The move, in effect, puts France in agreement with an intensive campaign by U.S. President Jimmy Carter against the export of nuclear reprocessing plants that could enable more countries to develop atomic weapons.

The proposed sale of the plant had been a source of friction between France and the U.S. for more than a year.

Cabinet Flights Raked

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Progressive Conservative MPs were up in arms in the Commons Tuesday over cabinet ministers using jets for political business at taxpayer expense.

John Crosbie (PC—St. John's West) criticized the use of a government jet by External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson to deliver a $1.4 million cheque to the Canada Summer Games committee in Newfoundland last week. Crosbie said that after a brief airport ceremony at St. John's, Jamieson went on to his riding.

Tom Cossitt (PC—Leeds) demanded that the Liberal party reimburse the treasury for Prime Minister Trudeau's jet trips to Quebec and Prince Edward Island during campaigns for the May 24 byelections. Trudeau replied the Liberals would pay for those trips.

Crosbie argued that the cheque to the Summer Games committee could have been sent by mail or given to members of the committee who were in Ottawa a few days earlier for a ceremony.

In that ceremony, the committee gave Trudeau a Newfoundland pup.

Replying to Crosbie's charge in the Commons, Sport Minister Iona Campagnola said there is no policy against the use of the post office for deliveries like the cheque.

But if the policy were reviewed, the government "would entertain the use of Newfoundland dogs."

"Very a propos," Crosbie commented later when he raised the issue again, saying his questioning was cut off by Speaker James Jerome.

Jerome said he considered Crosbie's line of questions "frivolous and argumentative."

Old-Egg Report Denied

PARKSVILLE (CP) — A statement by a Sidney poultry farmer to a provincial food price inquiry here that three-month-old eggs are being sold to consumers has been denied by B.C. Marketing Board chairman George Okulitch.

He termed the statement made in a brief presented to the inquiry Monday by W. T. Burrows, as "completely false."

"There is no such thing as a three-month-old egg in a B.C. store, or even a month-old egg," Okulitch told the inquiry.

He had been called to testify by Agriculture Minister James Hewitt. Hewitt claimed that the public could have become "Unduly alarmed" by the earlier report.

Lung-Switch Patient Dies

The death of the 19-year-old youth, 18 days after he received a right lung from an accident victim the same age, was caused by a "partial separation of his airway," a hospital spokesman said.

He said surgeons had been optimistic as late as Saturday about the patient's chances of recovery. He had been removed from a respirator and was walking about the hospital grounds.

But problems developed Monday and the patient died on the operating table during overnight surgery.

PHONEY ARAB PRINCE BILKING LONDONERS

LONDON (AP) — London has become a popular watering hole for oil-rich Arab princes, but at least one of them living in chauffeur-driven luxury at Claridge's Hotel was a phoney, Scotland Yard said Tuesday.

He described himself as Prince Mohammed bin Sultan of Abu Dhabi, and is reported to have swindled fashionable West End shops out of thousands of dollars.

"We don't know who he is, but we have reason to believe he is not who he said he was," said a Scotland Yard spokesman.

The London Evening Standard said the young man, who is still at large, was thought to be a teen-ager from East Dulwich, a working-class district in south London.

"Among other things, he nearly got away with jewelry worth £641,000 ($1.09 million)" before jewelers became suspicious, the paper said.

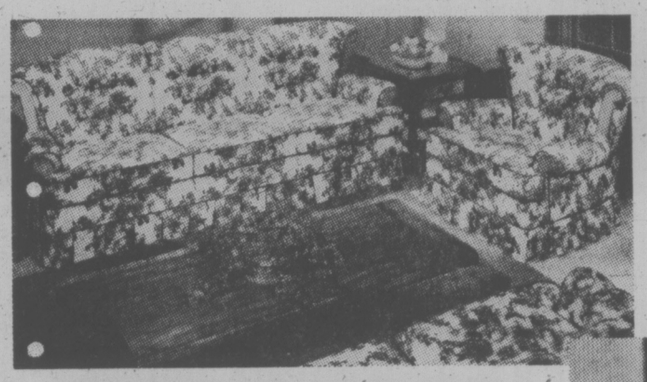

The Evening Standard said the phoney prince ran up a bill of about $2,550 at Claridge's, the posh Mayfair hotel that often hosts visiting celebrities and royalty.

Said a hotel spokesman: "We have nothing to say. Absolutely nothing."

Color It Bland

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald's long awaited green paper on the post control period made a dull thud last week when it landed on the public consciousness. The lack of bounce was a tacit reminder that the Trudeau administration is tired and needs new blood. It may be that "rhetorical" support for restraint will be all the government can hope for from big business and labor leaders Macdonald said. In other words, after a massive intervention into the private sector by the imposition of wage controls, the government gives the impression it will walk away from the marketplace.

The discussion paper proposes two new organizations that have all the resolve of a limp handshake. A forum of representatives from business, labor, consumers, farmers and professionals would meet every six months to discuss economic issues. Organized labor which envisioned a grander role for itself announced it would take no part in such a motley and ineffective forum. Another "agency" would monitor wage and price increases once controls had ended, although its powers would be limited to "obtaining information and publishing reports." After proposing these two unimaginative ideas the report noted "very real limitations on the capacity of governments alone to solve economic and social problems."

Under heavy political pressure from business and labor to end controls the government, at the same time, faces an electorate grown comfortable with controls. Whatever decision Ottawa makes it is bound to make somebody unhappy, which may account for the green paper's milk toast approach. Yet there is a curious hands off approach here which negates most of the Trudeau administration's economic thinking in the past. The brave rhetoric about redistributing the wealth is not heard today. Even the monetarist theories of Milton Friedmen, so loved by the Bank of Canada, seem to be out of favor. Instead, the current attitude seems to be full speed ahead with the 18th century ideas of Adam Smith. Let the boys fight it out in the marketplace, so to speak.

The trouble with this theory is that it led to stagflation and simultaneous high inflation. Then the government stepped in announcing the free marketplace wasn't working. Barely two years later those statements appear to be inoperative as Trudeau gallops out of the marketplace. Given the government's failure to control unemployment or inflation, perhaps the invisible hand of the marketplace, as the chamber of commerce calls it, won't throttle us as badly as the government's swollen hands. Nevertheless, Canada is apparently returning to a policy that failed once before. Is this the sum total of creative government economic thinking?

One thing is clear, though. Until the government can get more than rhetorical support for constraint from business and labor the controls should remain firm. Food prices have inflated 8.4 per cent this year and general inflation stands at 7.5 per cent. It's not a bad record compared to other western economies, but there is every indication that without controls chaos would set in again. The green paper is heralded as a discussion paper, although there is little to discuss here. A forum here and an agency there is not a post control policy. The government should think less about colors and more about substance with one million Canadians unemployed and a $7.3 billion deficit.

A Sad Beginning

The legislature's much-heralded committee on agriculture and food prices got off to a depressing start in Parksville this week, but it could hardly have hoped for much better. Virtually discredited within moments of its creation, the 10-member committee and its support staff outnumbered concerned citizens at its first public hearing and was all but ignored by consumer organizations. The most noteworthy presentation, it seems, was a specious argument by a local food market owner who tried to convince the MLAs that people foolishly think food prices are rising only because they keep filling their grocery bags with expensive items unrelated to food. (Government studies do not include these items and still show food prices increasing at a rate of more than eight per cent.) Even more pathetic was the image of Tory leader Scott Wallace, who with Liberal Gordon Gibson was barred from sitting on the committee, attending the hearing as a private citizen in a valiant effort to participate.

This is really the reason why this misereant committee is going to have a tough time gaining the confidence of the population and the input of people with something to say. One look at its makeup shows the committee is heavily weighted to producer interests and the views of the Social Credit government. Its seven Socred-three NDP roster includes one current and two former agriculture ministers and only one member comes from an urban area, where proportionately most B.C. consumers live. That MLA, Vancouver South's Gerry Strongman, didn't even show up for the committee hearing in Parksville on Monday. With such a visible contempt for such a major element of B.C.'s population, the committee's creators in the provincial cabinet will not have to look far for someone to blame if the group turns out a failure.

PETER HADEKEL

Business, Labor and the PQ

LA MALBAIE, Que. — At a hotel casino in this resort community along the north shore of the St. Lawrence River, more than 150 leaders of business, labor and government in Quebec met for two days last week in Quebec's first attempt ever at joint economic planning.

The wager being laid by the Parti Quebecois government was that some sort of consensus could be reached on how to tackle the serious economic problems confronting the province.

The government lost its bet as business and labor spent most of the time talking at each other rather than with each other. Nevertheless, the occasion was a historic one with important political significance for the Levesque government.

The mere fact the government succeeded in getting business and labor leaders to sit down at the same table is an achievement. Labor-management relations in Quebec over the last decade have more often resembled a guerilla war than a serious attempt at dialogue.

Discussions like these could never have happened under the previous Liberal government of Robert Bourassa which was universally detested by union leaders. But the PQ government's social-democratic approach to problems is a little more palatable to leaders of Quebec's strongly leftist labor movement.

Double Bind

The two main issues put on the agenda were: Quebec's league-leading record of violence and strikes in the labor field and the falling productivity of the Quebec economy.

In bringing the two sides together to discuss these problems, the government temporarily put aside the question of political independence for Quebec. Yet the Parti Quebecois is aware the economy is becoming the principal issue in the debate over independence, and was hoping that progress made during the summit could strengthen it political hand.

The failure of the summit illustrates the PQ is caught in a double bind. It needs support from the labor movement to win a referendum on independence but by courting union radicals it runs the risk of alienating business and further disturbing the economy.

Into this rather delicate situation came a who's who of business leaders in Quebec, including Paul Desmarais, chairman of Power Corporation; Alex Hamilton, president of Domtar Ltd., Sam Steinberg, the supermarket executive, Brian Mulroney, vice-president of the Iron Ore Co. of Canada and Phillip Gordon, vice-president of Shell Canada.

On the other side of the conference table were the presidents of Quebec's three largest labor federations: Louis Laberge of the 250,000-member Quebec Federation of Labor; Norbert Rodrigue, of the 150,000-strong Confederation of National Trade Unions and Yvon Charbonneau of the 80,000-member Quebec Teachers Federation.

Despite a few incidents of name-calling, the antagonists remained remarkably civil to each other, although it became quickly apparent that the unions were going to monopolize the show as much as possible.

Representatives of the most radical federations, the CNTU and the QTF, had come to the summit in a spirit of confrontation. They took every opportunity to seize the microphones and call for massive public ownership of the economy.

Business leaders seemed reluctant to take the floor during much of the debates, and their silence was denounced by union leaders.

LABERGE
... it's a start.

Yet a dramatic incident during the first day of the conference symbolized what the Levesque government was looking for out of the summit. A group of about 80 paper workers from a Consolidated Bathurst paper mill 100 miles from here staged a demonstration outside the conference hall to protest the company's decision to shut down the plant and lay off 375 workers.

They succeeded in convincing Paul Desmarais, the reclusive millionaire who controls Consolidated Bathurst, to come outside and address them. Desmarais was joined on the steps by Premier Rene Levesque and QFL president Louis Laberge, and all three promised to do what they could to keep the mill going.

Later, Levesque insisted the incident symbolized a new beginning in economic cooperation in Quebec.

But despite the premier's insistence that the three sides reached a consensus on several points, the two days of discussions seemed more like an endless series of monologues.

Unions demanded quick government action on health and safety measures in the workplace as well as revisions to the labor code guaranteeing greater union security and easier access to unionization for Quebec's 1.3 unorganized workers. Business spokesmen were fearful of the economic consequences of such measures on small business.

But the government came up with enough promises to keep the unions hopeful. Premier Levesque said an anti-scab law guaranteeing the right of workers to return to their jobs after a strike will be introduced in the national assembly.

He also said the government is considering legislation requiring compulsory payment of union dues by all employees, the Rand formula, and a law setting out minimum working conditions on job sites.

While there was at least some meaningful exchange on labor-related issues, the three groups could not reach any common ground on strategies for long-term economic development in Quebec.

Worthwhile Exercise

Business leaders were somewhat reassured by the government's pledge to preserve the role of the private sector in the economy, while union leaders expressed their disappointment that the government continues "to serve the interests of the capitalists."

Economic Development Minister Bernard Landry tried to find a middle of the road approach by stating the government is prepared to intervene in areas of the economy which are badly served by the private sector.

Meanwhile, the message that business spokesmen were trying to convey to labor was one of restraint and social conscience. High labor costs are killing the competitiveness of the Quebec manufacturing industry, they say.

Perhaps the only point of agreement between the participants was the summit was a worthwhile exercise that should be repeated.

"We're pretty far apart from the unions, but some of this discussion seeps through," said Bernard Finestone, president of the Montreal Board of Trade. "You have to have dialogue, added Louis Laberge of the QFL: "This was a beginning. At least now they know a little bit about how we live and how we think."

"... gimme your shirt ... I'm gonna make a sail ..."

Blatant Sexism

I would like to bring to your attention the book review by Al Forrest on page 14 of your weekend Preview, Saturday, May 21, titled Taped Trivia Just Teases. I'm wondering why your editing staff would include this review written by so obvious a misogynist.

I'm postive that had the sentence, "For another thing there are too many women writers," been in the racial context rather than a sexist context, and had read "For another thing there are too many black or native Indian writers," you would not have printed the review.

These tiresome, corny inferences that men do, women are; or the theory of ratronalism versus emotionalism evidenced in the phrase —"a man would write about people struggling with issues, Kandy writes about people, period" — is a very old-fashioned, debunked myth.

Forrest states that the main shortcoming of the book, "How Jimmy Won" by Kandy Stroud is that it was written by a girl. Later he declares she, like most women, is unable to write about anyone other than herself.

The Victoria Status of Women Action Group hopes for more awareness on your part in the future to recognize blatant sexist attitudes and your co-operation in reviews. — Vaughn McMorland, Corresponding secretary, Victoria.

Misrepresented

The Victoria Times article of Thursday, May 26, entitled Schools Expand French Program and the lead editorial of Monday, May 30, A Happy Ending in French misrepresent both the work of the Elementary French Steering Committee and the results of the school board meeting of May 24. It is obvious that no one on the Times Staff made a careful study of the report received by the board. As one of the committee members mentioned in your editorial, I would like to try to correct a false impression left in the minds of your readers.

The purpose of the steering committee, as directed by the board, was to set objectives and develop a plan for evaluation for the French Immersion program now that it is approaching the end of its experimental stage. In the process we took the opportunity of emphasizing the educational value of a bilingual education and we included in the objectives what we felt was necessary to give the program permanent viability, expansion being one of these considerations. The committee can not claim any credit for the expansion anticipated for 1977-78. This is the work of the School Administration sent to the federal government for approval before the committee even came into existence. It was appended to our report to remind the trustees what federal funds are available if they choose to match them. If the administration is proceeding cautiously, it is to avoid making mistakes which would harm the program.

The committee was made up of parents, teachers, principals, administrative staff and a trustee, Mr. Bud Smith. If the parents were singled out for attention and praise upon presentation of the report, it was simply due to our being volunteers. The success of the report was due to the co-operative efforts of all involved.

It was mentioned at the board meeting that perhaps this successful combination of district staff and parents could lead the way to further endeavors of this type. As firm believer in the value of the volunteer, I would be pleased if this committee served as an example of what can be accomplished. The School Administration and the trustees welcomed our efforts and were gracious in their praise. It would be a shame if your downgrading of their roles caused them to think twice about working with volunteers in the future.

By the way, it isn't a happy ending, as suggested by your title, but a happy beginning for French in Victoria. — Janet M. Poyen, 3815 Campus Crescent.

(Editor's note: The Times was remiss in not including teachers, principals, administrative stafff and trustee Bud Smith in praising the committee, but our contention stands that the school board has dragged its feet on setting up an adequate French program in local schools. It appears to be finally moving forward, thanks in large part to this energetic committee.)

Gati's Exit

I feel that the recent announcement of Mr. Gati's retirement as musical director of the Victoria Symphony effective June 1978 should not go unacknowledged by the general public.

All devotees of serious music in this city owe a debt of appreciation to Mr. Gati for attracting to the orchestra a higher calibre of musician over the past ten years. He has certainly laid a foundation that could make the orchestra an impressive ensemble in the years to come.

Thank you, Mr. Gati, for all your work and for your timely understanding in stepping down. I wish you well in your future endeavors. — Harold T. Waterman, Box 1388, Victoria.

Thanks Victoria

Having just completed our first very happy holiday in Canada, I wonder if you could help us? Having spent 10 very pleasant days on Vancouver Island we were about to depart for the Rockies for the rest of our holidays when we met a resident of Victoria at the restaurant at Point No Point.

He heard that we were English and went to great trouble to draw us a map of Banff and all the things we ought to see around the area. Thanks to his great kindness we saw far more of the beauties of the Rockies than we would otherwise have thought of looking for.

Unfortunately we did not take his name or address, but if you would consider publishing this letter he might see it and we can thereby express our thanks.

May I say, in closing, how typical we found this friendship and helpfulness in all the Canadians we talked to which has made our holiday such a happy one. — A. Daborn, 1 Dogpole Court, Shrewsbury.

Pension Indexing

Recent headlines indicate a continued spiral in costs of food, clothing, housing and home heating in future. These necessities will affect all Canadians especially retired persons on fixed incomes, yet we have in our midst — The National Citizens Coalition — vehemently denouncing pension indexing.

Industry is indexed through rate or price increases. The labor force is indexed through pay raises or COLA clauses, but the retired person who does not contribute to inflation is expected to bear the full brunt of this merry-go-round, especially if he depends on RRSPs, private pension plans or annuities.

The head of this National Citizens Coalition, Mr. Colin Brown happens to be on the clients advisory executive of London Life Insurance Company and director of several other influential companies. He is listed in Mr. Peter Newman's recent book, The Canadian Establishment, and as a super salesman, has already managed to soft sell some radio hotliners and newspaper columnists with distorted facts concerning indexed pensions. He has with him as associates in this endeavor, several senior executives and directors of some of the best known banks, trust and insurance companies. These types of businesses thrive during inflationary periods. They are all in the money business, i.e. making money on other people's money — taking today's dollars and paying back in deflated dollars in future. Small wonder they oppose pension indexing. They are in business to profit from pension plans etc.

The answer to fair retirement plans are inflation linked securities or pensions. This is a right of all Canadians.

Write the Prime Minister, or M.P. and demand indexed pensions for all. If you have a bank account, trust account, RRSP or private pension plan write the president of these companies to see if they or their executive support the National Citizens Coalition in any way. If they do, remove your business. They are not acting in your best interests. Credit Unions seem to be a fair answer at present. — D. L. Clements, 3765 Casey Drive.

Foster Children

Citizens in Greater Victoria care about foster children!

They proved this when approximately 250 poured into the Junction Centre Building on the evening of May 18th to learn more about the critical situation in regards to foster children.

That they did not come out of idle curiosity was demonstrated by their earnest questions, their sincerity and their evident concern for these children. This concern was stimulated by the door-to-door blitz and recruitment booths arranged and manned by our staff.

It was encouraging to meet people of all ages — singles, couples, families on social assistance, others more affluent and experienced foster parents with their married children who were considering following in their parents' footsteps.

Their eagerness to become more informed was their common bond.

With such an overwhelming response to our call for foster parents, we had to move our training course for prospective foster parents to a larger hall: St. John's Anglican Hall, 935 Balmoral Street. This course will be given on Wednesdays — May 25th, June 1st and June 8th at 7:30 p.m.

The Open House on May 18th owes much of its success to the understanding and co-operation it received from the newspapers, radio stations and TV. We are grateful for this help, help which has always been available to assist us in our work.

May I take this opportunity to express our grateful appreciation to the media who gladly helped to make this successful gathering possible. — Bernice Levitz Packford, Supervisor, Parent Encouragement Program, Department of Human Resources.

ICBC: Why Not Pay a Tax at the Gas Pump?

By LEONARD SHIFRIN

OTTAWA — A recent comment by Manitoba Premier Ed Schreyer has got the province's auto dealers all upset.

Schreyer's heresy was to point out that there is no particular reason why government-run auto insurance programs should operate on a premium basis. They could equally well be financed in other fashions, he noted, such as by a 15-cent-a-gallon insurance tax at the gas pump.

The president of the Manitoba Motor Dealers Association immediately denounced the idea, insisting that the government insurance corporation "should stand on its own feet and live on its premium income."

It was a classic illustration of the passion with which we cling to familiar forms, long after their relevance has passed into history.

Individual premiums were the only way that private auto insurance companies could operate. That's not the case for the government-run programs in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

For government programs, premiums are simply one form of tax among many.

Before Medicare, health insurance was provided by private insurers on a premium basis. When the first of the government programs were established, they too were financed that way.

Today only three provinces still employ premiums — Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia — and in all three these cover only a part of actual program costs.

Quebec uses a salary-related payroll tax, and the other six provinces fund their programs out of general revenues — which means the income tax primarily.

While the same revenues can be raised in any of these fashions, which of the three methods is used makes a big difference in who pays how much.

Premiums — for high, low and middle-income families alike — are $384 a year in Ontario, $225 in B.C., and $154 in Alberta. By contrast, where program revenues come from the income tax, those with highest earnings pay the largest shares.

The Quebec payroll taxk — which assesses workers 1.5 per cent of their salaries, up to a maximum levy of $225, with a matching payment being made by their employers — has an effect somewhere between the other two approaches. It is more redistributive than flat-rate premiums, but less so than the income tax.

There are further variables from province to province, such as the income tax threshold ranging from $6,000 for a family of four in the Atlantic provinces to $9,000 in Manitoba, the exemption of those earning less than $5,600 from the payroll tax in Quebec and the different degrees of subsidization of premiums for the poorest families in Ontario, B.C. and Alberta. But, essentially, the choice of the tax mechanism determines the distribution of the tax burden.

The effect of financing auto insurance by way of a gasoline tax would be increased levies for those who do a lot of driving — particularly if they do it in big gas-guzzlers — and cheaper insurance for those who use their cars less often.

As Manitoba Finance Minister Saul Miller pointed out to the outraged auto dealers, there is no reason why "the little old lady who only drives to church on Sundays" should pay the same amount for car insurance as the businessman whose vehicle is in constant use.

Nonetheless, he assured them that the idea was a long way from being government policy. "I'm not sure that the public is ready for a plan of this type," he conceded.

Sad to say, he's probably right.

However negative their redistributive effects, the most acceptable forms of tax appear to be those which mimic payment mechanisms in the private sector — and thus don't seem so much like a tax.

That's why the federal government won applause, 18 months ago, when it increased unemployment insurance contribution rates in order to reduce the extent to which the program was financed from general revenues.

The change was portrayed as increasing the self-sufficiency of the unemployment insurance fund. What it was in fact was simply a shift of a half-billion dollars of revenue-raising from a progressively graduated income tax, under which a $20,000 earner pays more than twice as much as a $10,000 earner, to a form of payroll tax under which they both contribute the same amount.

The ultimate anomaly, however, comes when payroll taxes such as the unemployment insurance and Canada Pension Plan contributions are made deductible for income tax purposes.

In the case of the Canada Pension Plan, for example, the $10,000 earner and the $20,000 earner both contribute the same amount — $151 this year — to receive the same size pensions when they retire. But the $20,000 earner, being in a higher marginal tax bracket, recovers a larger proportion of his contribution by way of income tax saving.

Thus he actually contributes only $82 for his pension while the person earning only half as much contributes $102.

That sort of absurdity probably has its counterpart in the respective insurance rates per mile paid by the church-going little old lady and the businessman.

But, assessing the brief tempest in a hubcap set off by Premier Schreyer's remark, his finance minister's concession that the public is probably not ready for such an idea seems more significant than the prospective virtues of the idea itself.

For all that the inevitability of an ever-increasing pace of change has become today's standard cliche, we still accord any suggestion which challenges our traditional ways of doing things the same sort of welcome as we would the plague.

Alberta Takes the Lead

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

It was in Quebec, under the Quiet Revolution sponsored by the Liberal government of Premier Jean Lesage, that Canada saw the introduction of the right to strike for civil servants, teachers and other public employees.

The right was soon applied, in painful civil service and school strikes that contributed heavily to the downfall of the government that made them possible. More important in the long run, it was also demonstrated that there is a fundamental difference between strikes in the private sector and strikes in the public sector.

The difference is that governments don't go out of business. In the private sector the employer negotiates under strict and clean economic limits. If he settles for more than he can afford he will have to shut down. He knows that. The union knows that. So there is a limit to the gains the union can achieve, no matter how long it stays out.

In the public sector employers don't shut down. They don't have to compete for customers. Their revenue comes from taxpayers who don't have a choice. The costs of a settlement can always be passed on. So, when push comes to shove, the public sector employer backs off.

But instead of learning from Quebec's experience, other governments in Canada, starting with the federal government, merely imitated Quebec's example. The right to strike became the pattern for civil servants and teachers across the country.

And what that led to is now well known. Civil servants and teachers, having been underpaid for years by governments that dragged their heels in bargaining with employees who couldn't walk out, plunged into a militant campaign to catch up.

They did more than catch up. The public sector pay standards that had lagged behind the private sector moved, within a very few years, well out in front, sending government spending soaring en route and thus leading in the advance of inflation.

But now one government in Canada has taken a modest step in the opposite direction.

The Public Service Employee Relations Act, introduced by the Alberta government of Premier Peter Lougheed to bring together under one legislative umbrella civil servants who had been covered by a number of separate acts, writes into law the principle that public servants should not have the right to strike.

It will take some practical evidence to convince Alberta's civil service unions that they can have real bargaining clout without the right to strike. But if the Lougheed government can provide that evidence, not only to Albertans but also to more timid governments in other jurisdictions in Canada, it will perform an immensely valuable service to all Canadians who are members of that innocent group that is the third party, and the real victim of every public sector strike, the general public.

Indians: Why No Access to Media?

By SCOTT YOUNG
The Globe and Mail

"There are damned few Indians working in the media," states Jim Moses of Thorold, working toward a point that no one can dispute.

He is an Indian who has lived in Europe but came back because he thought he had a role to play in interpreting native Canadians to whites. He has found the role difficult for the simplest of reasons: to play it, he needs the media as a platform but the media don't feel they need him as a platform guest. His letters often are rejected by newspapers, including this one. He has one in at CFTO right now in which he terms "adolescent" a May 10 Tom Gould Backgrounder that expressed the quite common press and political opinion that a northern pipeline will be built and native opposition be damned. He might have phoned to protest that one but he has no phone.

He instinctively understands that he is a victim of the media system for handling consumer feedback that is very selective in its recognition of axe-grinders. If he could only think of a way to get his letters headlined English Usage, or Right to Life, he'd be in like Flynn.

I wonder why he has so much trouble being heard. Our media are full of specialists: stamp collectors, cooks, fashion arbiters, doctors, lawyers, feminists, sex advisers, bird columnists, wine tasters; from pussycats to shrews. Isn't there room for someone commenting regularly, from inside the lodge, on affairs that affect Canadian natives? A media-side Harold Cardinal or Kahn-Tineta Horn?

His basic premise is the need for communication before differences escalate into violence. He thinks that if Canada had paid the proper attention to Quebec 30 years ago, there would be no separation issue now. And he thinks that if Canada tries to bulldoze the North's land and people on the pipeline issue, anarchy will follow; all because of lack of communication and understanding.

"If Indians are supposed to assume responsibility in this country, then somebody better allow them the opportunity to do it," he says. "They can't be a part of the system, as everyone tells them they should be, while having to stand outside constantly being put off as unworthy of consideration."

When he was young, he says, he read a lot of books, including some of mine, that gave him an optimistic view of Canada in general. But, "that has changed. Now I feel that I've been the victim of a vast and involved joke."

"Indians belong in this country," he says. A self-evident fact. "We must be allowed into the mainstream." That makes sense. He doesn't see making the mainstream as merely getting Harold Cardinal or Andrew Richard quoted in stories written by whites; but more like having a regular opportunity to give a native point of view, right or wrong, as columnists on other subjects do. Well?

The Imperial Dentistry

russell baker

I had a toothache. It refused to go away. There was no getting out of it. Dentistry was called for. I phoned Dr. Needles, D.D.S. Walter Cronkite answered the telephone. "What is your question to the doctor?" he asked.

"Can he handle a bad toothache right away?"

He could not. Cronkite said the doctor was conducting a patient phone-in. He was swamped with callers who wanted to know what he proposed to do about the alarming rate of gingivitis and to give him their own suggestions for maneuvering dental floss under fixed bridgework.

Cronkite switched me to Needles's press secretary. He announced that Dr. Needles had abolished the ceremonial playing of Muzak at regular six-month checkups and ordered his receptionist to quit riding limousines to work and start taking the bus.

I hung up in disgust and pain and phoned Dr. Feingrind. He was unavailable, having taken the day off to attend a bull roast in Timonium, Md., at which he was to hear citizen complaints about dentistry and listen to suggestions for cheaper treatment of recessive gums.

Through shimmering waves of pain I dimly perceived what was up. I had read in the papers about dentists committing suicide at an abnormal rate because they believed people did not like them, and I had watched Jimmy Carter win the affection of the American people for a similar job which had once been feared and despised. Needles and Feingrind were following Carter's example to win love and escape suicidal despair.

Taking a cue from Wall Street, I threatened to go into a slump that would make it impossible to pay for my semi-annual X-rays unless Needles agreed to help me immediately. That did the trick.

"You are a good person," he said, greeting me in his old cardigan. "And these," he said, smiling delightedly into the buccal cavity, "are good teeth."

"Do something fast, Doc, please."

"Teeth as good as these deserve dentistry at least as good as they are," he said.

"If you want to pull it, go ahead."

"I may have to ask my patients to sacrifice," he said, "but when I do I shall always be prepared to share that sacrifice with them."

"If you want to pull one of your own molars, it's up to you," I said, "but I'd appreciate it if you'd do mine first."

He studied the problem with mirror and air hose. "It's only a cavity," he said. It would have to be filled. That could not be done yet.

When did he have in mind? I asked. "In 1981," he said.

I told him to cut the joking, get out of the cardigan, put on his white jacket, oil his drill and get to work.

"Out of the question," he said. "Look." And he produced a study done by his polling expert. In statistical jargon it said that if he wanted to raise his "approval" rating in the polls he would have to emphasize style rather than substance for the next four years. If he insisted on tackling matters of substance, the resulting pain and discomfort caused to his public would produce a sharp decline in his image, with who knows what devastating damage to his own psyche.

By 1981 he expected to enjoy such a high popularity rating that he could afford to lose the affection of a few of his patients by resuming fillings, root canals, inlays and caps. I wasn't sure I could wait. "You wouldn't want to feel that you were the one to blame, would you, if I sank into a dangerous depression?" he asked.

I liked him far too much to do anything like that. "But while we're waiting for 1981 to deal with the substance, is there anything you can do stylistically for this toothache?" I asked.

"Of course," he said, leading me out of the chair. "Let me tell you how opposed I am to abuses of human rights anywhere in the world." I wept with affection and pain.

Rio Algom

Rio Algom Ltd. is proceeding slowly with its plans for development of the Cabin Creek coal deposits in southeast British Columbia near the Montana border, a company spokesman said.

The spokesman attributed the slowdown to the state of the world economy and the Japanese steel industry, both of which are affecting the general demand for coal.

He said reports from Montana suggesting that the B.C. government had rejected the company's preliminary environmental impact assessment were wrong.

EARNINGS JUMP BY B.C. SUGAR

VANCOUVER (CP) — B.C. Sugar Refinery Ltd. has reported that its consolidated net earnings nearly doubled in the six months ending March 31, 1977.

Net earnings were $2,811,000 or $1.14 a share, compared with $1,550,000 or 61 cents a share in the same 1976 period. Total revenues, including investment income, were $82,555,000, up from $45,505,000.

Peter A. Cherniavsky, president, said although major gains were made in the latest period, it should be remembered that the company's Vancouver refinery was on strike during the 1976 period.

World sugar prices have increased in April but because large world production caused increasing inventories, it is unlikely the price will improve soon, said Cherniavsky.

He said 1976 sugar beet crops in Alberta and Manitoba produced a record quantity of sugar, pulp and molasses. Because of a record production crop in Manitoba the previous year, acreage planted this year has been reduced in order to lower carryover stocks of sugar.

The six-month report includes earnings for the first three months of this year by a subsidiary company, Somerville Industries Ltd., which has packaging plants in Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec. Cherniavsky said earnings from its packaging operations were below rising costs, a situation expected to continue throughout 1977.

Another subsidiary, Fairweather Gas Ltd., participated in the drilling of 64 wells, of which 30 were completed for further study as gas producers. Revenue from oil and gas sales after deduction of royalties was $685,000.

Chamber Optimistic on B.C.

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

The future is bright for the economy of British Columbia according to soundings taken at the B.C. Chamber of Commerce convention by Victoria president Alan Emery.

"Businessmen are very positive and there is a feeling that the economy is getting itself together again," he said.

This optimism was reflected in a number of low-key resolutions in the three-day convention, which ended here Monday.

He said convention delegates passed a number of minor resolutions urging the government to assist a recovery they believe is already under way.

Biggest news for Victoria was the overwhelming support among all regions of the province for a review of ferry rates to find out why there are 25 free ferry routes in the interior of the province while routes of similar size, notably the Mill Bay ferry, have fare structures.

Emery said in past conventions there had been resistance on the part of interior delegates to opening the question for fear they would lose their free ferry service.

The interior ferries operate on major lakes in the province.

Emery said a free service on the Kootenay Lakes is similar in many respects to the Mill Bay run except more expensive equipment is used on the free ferry.

He said the provincial government should make the small coastal ferry routes free and should review its charges for the larger runs.

Delegates approved resolutions urging highway construction to open up new areas in the Alberni and Comox valleys.

The convention urged a halt to construction of additional B.C. Hydro dams on the Peace River because of environmental considerations.

Resolutions passed by the convention will be assembled and delivered to the provincial government. Most of the resolutions deal with additional stimulants for the economy and for a review of labor legislation.

Creston Mayor Elidio Salvador was elected president of the B.C. chamber. Next year's convention will be held in Vernon during the last weekend in May.

Universal Pharmacare protection starts today.

"Universal Pharmacare is a new concept in health care for British Columbians—a plan to offer you and your family peace of mind and protection against unusually high expenses for prescription drugs. It will be especially helpful to people who suffer from long-term or unexpected illness. A brochure outlining the plan in detail has been mailed to all householders in the province. Please read it carefully and keep it handy for future reference. It would be wonderful if none of us ever required this protection—but if you should, we think you'll be relieved to know it's there when it's needed."

The Hon. William N. Vander Zalm
Minister of Human Resources

What are the changes under the new plan?

For the first time, all individuals or families registered with Medical Services Plan of British Columbia are eligible for benefits. You will be reimbursed for 80% of any amount over $100 spent for eligible prescription items in each calendar year. This means that if such drugs cost you, for example, $300 in a year, Pharmacare would pay $160.

Are existing benefits continuing?

Yes. Fully-paid benefits for eligible drug items will continue unchanged if you:

1. are 65 years of age or older and hold a valid Pharmacare card
2. receive the Handicapped Personal Income Assistance allowance
3. hold a valid Mental Health Benefits card
4. hold a valid Human Resources Medical Benefits Program "W" card for yourself and your dependents or
5. reside in a licensed long-term care facility.

If you are the recipient of fully-paid benefits, your pharmacist will be paid directly by Pharmacare.

Are there any new benefits?

Yes. For the first time, ostomy supplies and designated permanent prosthetic appliances will be fully paid for. Syringes for diabetics are another new benefit. Pharmacare will pay the supplier directly for these items.

Who is not eligible for benefits?

Tourists, transients and other temporary visitors to British Columbia are ineligible for Pharmacare benefits. People receiving fully-paid drug benefits from union- or employer-sponsored plans, or from D.V.A., D.I.A., Workers' Compensation or Home Care will continue to be protected by those programs.

What drug items are covered?

Most drugs prescribed by your doctor, dentist or podiatrist are eligible. However, such items as patent medicines, bandages, artificial sweeteners, vitamin combinations, antacids, laxatives and over-the-counter drugs will continue to be your own financial responsibility.

Your pharmacist can advise you on specific items.

How are claims submitted?

To receive benefits, all you do is submit a Pharmacare Claim Form, available from any pharmacist. Unless you are receiving fully-paid benefits, your pharmacist will give you an official Pharmacare receipt when you pay for eligible items. Please attach the receipt to the Claim Form. No duplicate receipts will be issued.

Receipts for ostomy supplies and permanent prosthetics should also be attached to the Claim Form, and Extended Benefit portion of the form completed.

When you and your dependents have receipts exceeding the annual $100 deductible amount, just complete the front of the Claim Form. It is already addressed. Simply fold and fasten it, affix sufficient postage and drop it in the nearest mailbox.

Who can answer questions about Universal Pharmacare?

Your pharmacist is completely familiar with the details of this new health plan.

TENANT WAKES UP TO WILY LANDLORD

Police said a 26-year-old woman awakened Tuesday to find a man in her bed kissing her. The woman was able to talk the man into leaving.

Port Angeles Oil Port Step Closer

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Support for an oil port at or west of Port Angeles would become state policy if a bill that passed the House Tuesday ultimately becomes law.

But the first major oil shipment legislation of the current session still has some formidable hurdles to clear before that happens.

The measure passed by a hefty 71 to 20 and shed a proposed amendment that would have banned any oil transshipment through the State unless mandated by federal decisions.

What happens to the measure in the Senate is open to question. No comparable legislation has been worked on there but Governor Dixy Lee Ray has opposed proposals by Northern Tier Pipeline Co. to establish such an oil superport. She favors using existing facilities at Cherry Point near Bellingham for transshipment.

It also required location of any oil trans-shipment point "at or west of Port Angeles."

Accused Lawyer Unfit Guardian, Trial Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Victoria lawyer was not a fit guardian of a 69-year-old woman and was going to be removed, the dead woman's co-guardian testified Tuesday.

Olga Young was testifying at the British Columbia Supreme Court trial of her cousin, Eloise Roads Wilson, charged with second-degree murder in the Dec. 2, 1975, strangulation death of their cousin, Marion Hamilton of Vancouver.

Mrs. Young said that some days before Mrs. Hamilton was found dead, she told the accused she did not consider her a fit guardian and was going to have her removed.

She testified that on Dec. 1, 1975, she telephoned the accused at Mrs. Hamilton's house to tell her she would be there the next morning to see that either a nurse or a nurse's aide was brought in.

The next morning, she received a telephone call from Mrs. Wilson saying that Mrs. Hamilton was dead.

She said she and the accused disagreed frequently over the best way to provide for the specialized care Mrs. Hamilton required because of recurring periods of senility.

Mrs. Young said that although Mrs. Wilson said Mrs. Hamilton could not afford to be placed in a rest home, Royal Trust, which had been appointed to handle Mrs. Hamilton's financial affairs, said she could afford such care.

Mrs. Young said the accused told her that her cousin's assets were not to be touched in order to provide such care and that she (Mrs. Wilson) was prepared to give up her law practice on Vancouver Island and move in with Mrs. Hamilton to look after her full time.

Earlier, Mrs. Young testified that Mrs. Wilson had told her that because she (the accused) was to be sole heir to Mrs. Hamilton's estate, it was her duty to "look after her.

The Crown alleges that Mrs. Wilson killed Mrs. Hamilton to get the estate of $175,000.

Pathologist Dr. Thomas Harmon testified earlier Tuesday that Mrs. Hamilton was strangled, with a length of string recovered by police. He said certain irregularities in the string matched a groove around the victim's neck.

The trial continues.

Oxley Elected In New Denver

NELSON (CP) — John Oxley will take office June 7 as the mayor of New Denver, 35 miles north of here, replacing Vandroy Hansen, who resigned in mid-April to become village works supervisor.

Oxley, who is retired, beat out two other candidates in the municipal by-election Saturday that attracted 77 percent of the 336 eleigble voters. Also elected as alderman was James McDonaugh, a welder.

The aldermanic seat came open after Ald. Walter Thring quit his council seat in an unsuccessful bid for the mayoralty.

Canada Sending Aid to Haiti

Applause Goes to McTeer

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Maureen McTeer briefly stole the spotlight Tuesday from her husband, Conservative leader Joe Clark, with a quiet but firm statement to an enthusiastic high school audience about her decision to continue to use her maiden name.

Although the Tory leader's wife had decided earlier in the day to fly directly to Vancouver from here and rest to treat a case of tonsilitis, she later decided to remain with her husband on the tour of British Columbia.

Her suggestion Monday that television news reports had "crapped all over" her husband became the main news story of a lacklustre tour.

Then an audience of Terrace high school students Tuesday morning gave her the warmest applause the Tories have heard since their seven-day blitz of the province began in Vancouver four days ago.

She came straight from a doctor's appointment at Terrace hospital to join her husband in a question-and-answer session with 750 students of Caledonia high school in Terrace, about 70 miles east of Prince Rupert.

The students sat on their hands until she ably fielded a question on why she uses her maiden name.

She and Clark believe marriage is an equal partnership, she explained, and for that reason she was anxious to keep her name as a reminder of her eastern Ontario roots and of her professional career in law.

The students gave her the most sustained applause Clark has heard all week.

"Why don't I get that kind of applause?" he asked.

Clark's turn came moments later when another student asked him how he could justify so much time away from important work in Ottawa.

"The answer is I think too many politicians, too many public servants, spend too much time locked up in the isolation of Ottawa," he said. "They get cut off from the country.

"I think that has happened to this government. I don't want it to happen to the government that I lead. I've now got some lead time before I've got the obligation of becoming the prime minister of this country, to get out and learn about local problems.

"That way when I sit down and have to make a decision about a pipeline or a railway, I'll know where Terrace is and I'll have talked to people who've been living with that kind of problem."

The highschool reception gave Clark a sorely-needed boost in a tour that has been dogged by small turnouts and public indifference.

The flight here from Terrace brought Clark into friendlier territory, the Prince George-Peace River federal riding represented by Tory Frank Oberle. Clark spent the afternoon speaking to a second high school audience and appearing on an open-line radio show.

SIX SCHOOLS IN BOYCOTT

NELSON (CP) — A two-week long school boycott to protest the demotion of a school principal in South Slocan, 15 miles west of here, widened Tuesday to include 427 students in six schools who missed classes.

Two schools in Slocan village, 45 miles north, were boycotted for one day Tuesday at the request of South Slocan parents who asked for more solidarity to protest the demotion of principal Alex Pereverzoff.

South Slocan parents distributed leaflets at two village schools Monday and only 57 of the 408 students there attended Tuesday.

In South Slocan, only 26 of 233 students in three elementary schools attended while 36 students at a nearby 245-pupil junior secondary school went to classes.

The parents are unhappy with the Nelson school board, which is demoting Pereverzoff from principal to teacher when the two elementary schools he heads become part of a new school now under construction.

PCs FAIL: WALLACE

PARKSVILLE (CP) — National Progressive Conservative Leader Joe Clark will lose his party leadership if the party continues to destroy itself from within, Dr. Scott Wallace, British Columbia Conservative leader, said Tuesday.

Clark's problems and his weakening leadership position "can't be blamed on him alone," Wallace said in an interview.

The national party has failed to become a "vibrant, exciting party that is a definite alternative to the Liberals," Wallace said.

"This has not come through to the public because of an apparent lack of depth and an image that the party is not pulling together."

What is happening now is "the Tory practice of circling the wagons and then everyone shooting inwards," Wallace said.

Clark's salvation will be a federal election, Wallace said, predicting an election will be called this fall.

Wallace said he will meet Clark in Victoria today to discuss federal-provincial party relations.

Labor Harmony Seen B.C. Trend

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia may be the forerunner of a move toward industrial stability, chairman Paul Weiler of the B.C. Labor Relations Board said Tuesday.

Weiler said there is a new trend of labor harmony in the province and called B.C. a "bellwether" for Canadian labor.

"It took until last year for the rest of the country to catch up to B.C.'s strike record," he said, referring to the province's reputation for industrial strife.

Len Guy, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Federation of Labor, acknowledged a trend toward labor settlements without strike or lockout action, but called it "a lull before a storm."

He attrabuted the relative peace to the federal wage controls, not to a new attitude of labor.

When wage controls come off, the labor movement will struggle to regain the purchasing power its members enjoyed prior to the anti-inflation program, he said.

"I don't think there will ever be any slowdown in the striving of workers to achieve a decent standard of living, and under our adversary system, therefore, we will always have disputes," he said.

Weiler said this year's decline in man-days lost through industrial disputes was not a short-term phenomenon. He said parties involved in bargaining disputes were "far more anxious to settle."

He attributed the decrease in job shutdowns primarily to the federal government's wage control program, but stressed it was not the only factor.

"All parties — management, unions and employees — have had it up to their eyebrows with work stoppages," he said.

Weiler also said he did not foresee difficulties when the wage controls were lifted.

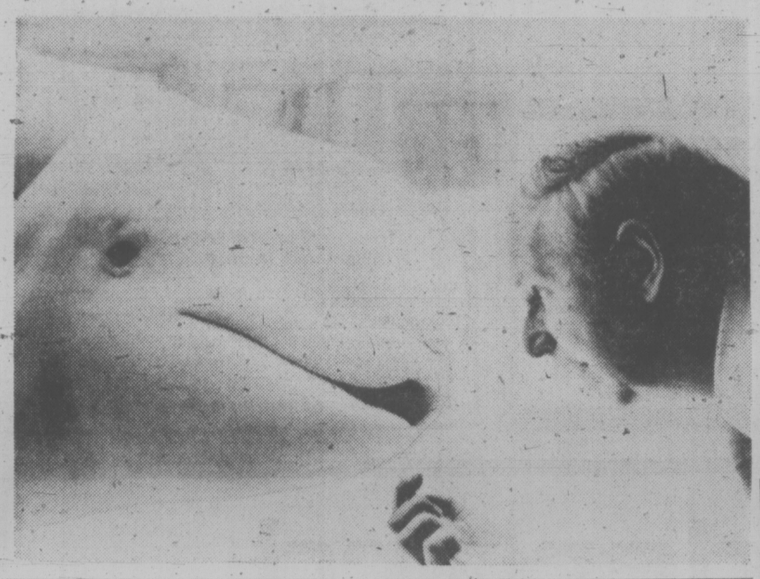

"We'll never go back to the kinds of summers we had in '75 or '72," he said.

The New Democratic Party government's back-to-work legislation (Bill 146) in October 1975 and labor's day of protest last year had also contributed to the current industrial peace, said Weiler.

Bill 146 had a "cold water effect" on labor and management, while Oct. 14 had a "cathartic effect," he said, adding the protest "got one massive demonstration of trade unionism out of their system."

Weiler cited the apparent end of double-digit inflation and the cooling impact of the B.C. labor code as other factors affecting the trend toward fewer disputes.

The board chairman coupled his observations with a plea to the provincial government not to tamper with current labor legislation.

WEIGHTY PROBLEM faced by Vancouver aquarium director Murray Newman is—is she or isn't she? The she in question is beluga whale Kavna and Newman, as well as other staffers, is wondering whether or not a recent weight gain denotes an impending new arrival in the tank.

500 Drivers Denied Rebates After ICBC Mistake—McGeer

A check list made by the Insurance Corp. of B.C. of 15,000 rejected safe-driving rebate applications has found that 500 persons were wrongfully denied their rebates.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, president of the Crown corporation, said Tuesday that ICBC is redressing the administrative error.

"Cheques will be going out late this week or early next week to these people with the apologies of the corporation," said McGeer.

The minister noted that all of the 500 drivers were under the age of 25.

Bev Penhall, ICBC spokesman, said two weeks ago that ICBC was making the check of the applications after a reporter suggested at a news conference that some applications were turned down because ICBC workers misinterpreted rebate requirements.

Single, male drivers under 25 were offered 25-per-cent rebates on their 1976 insurance premiums if they received fewer than six penalty points and were not responsible for any accidents during the 1976 calendar year.

McGeer said he couldn't guarantee there would be no similar administrative error next year.

On a related matter, the minister said that safe-driving rebates will be more extensive next year than this year.

He said drivers who have gone two years without a blameworthy accident will receive a larger rebate than those who have gone only one year without such an incident.

Conversely, McGeer said, drivers who are "repeaters" have blameworthy accidents two years in a row will soon have to pay a surcharge.

PROBATION OFFICER SUSPENDED

PRINCE RUPERT (CP) — A senior probation officer barred from juvenile court here since May 10 has been suspended without pay until June 10.

Regional corrections officer Jim Graham suspended Lee Oates after provincial court Judge E. J. Cronin barred Oates from court. —

Oates had asked Graham to mediate a dispute between he and the judge.

"I'll be back at work (after the suspension ends)," Oates said.

"I am not sure that involves going back to court or not. That depends on what the judge decides between now and then.

Oates, who said the problem is a personality clash, said his suspension is "pretty just — I probably handled it wrong," but declined to elaborate.

Judge Cronin could not be reached for comment.

Lake Spray Program Safe—Biologists

OMAK, Wash. (AP) — Attacks by an environmental group against the use of a herbicide to combat weeds in Okanagan Lake are unfounded, two Canadian biologists said Tuesday.

Federal government biologists Karl Marsden and Dweight Bailey said that use of the herbicide 2,4-D is the most effective way to combat the spread of erasian milfoil.

The biologists, who are based in Vernon, said the use of the herbicide in the lake is still in the testing stages, but they have found no harmful side effects from its use.

The water weed has responded very little to other methods aimed at its eradication, they said in an interview.

The two biologists were asked about the issue, following opposition by president Dr. Patrick Moore of Greenpeace who said Monday the organization is prepared to support the Okanagan Environmental Coalition in opposing the use of herbicides in Okanagan Lake.

Moore said the basic strategy would be to warn tourists not to swim in the lake because it has been treated with herbicides.

Ad Charge Dismissed

KELOWNA (CP) — A charge of misleading advertising laid against Bennett Hardware Stores of Kelowna was dismissed Tuesday in provincial court.

The company was charged after an advertisement appeared in a local weekly newspaper Jan. 7 said a brand-name box mattress was on sale, when mattresses of lesser quality were on sale.

Judge Steve Denroche said that one word contained in the advertisement, the name of the higher-grade product, had been inserted by the newspaper and had not been put there at the instructions of the accused.

The hardware store is part of a chain started in here 44 years ago by former Premier W. A. C. Bennett, father of present Premier Bill Bennett. It is still controlled by the Bennett family.

$400 AWARD FOR POT DISMISSAL

A Human Rights Commission board of inquiry has ruled that a woman fired from her job after being charged with trafficking and possession of marijuana be given $400 compensation.

The board ruled that Peace River Block News Ltd., along with Don Marshall, publisher and a former Socred MLA, should pay the compensation to Darlene Driediger after she was fired from the publication on October, 1976.

The board noted that Driediger had only been an employee for two months and that the dismissal was not wrongful under the common law.

It found, however, that the dismissal was a violation of the Human Rights Code of B.C.

Extra Pay Upsets Masons

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Cement Masons Union said Tuesday it is upset over Anti-Inflation Board decision to permit additional pay increases of 13 cents an hour to two other construction unions.

The board cited historical relationships in granting the extra wage increases to the Iron Workers Union Local 97, and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, Local 213.

Union business agent Frank Stevens said the board rejected a similar request by his union last year, and union members won't stand for the latest decision

Chuck McVeigh, Construction Labor Relations Association president said he supports the historical relationship ruling for the iron workers and the IBEW, but because their claim is based claim by the cement masons on a 10-year-old agreements, could not support a similar.

Stevens said he has asked the CLRA to have the board allow the union to recover the 14 cents rolled back from this year's construction industry contracts by placing it in the pension fund.

Wallace Gets His Say

PARKSVILLE (VCP) — Dr. Scott Wallace will be allowed to get his views before the current food industry inquiry in every community where hearings are held.

More than a month ago, the Conservative leader and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson were denied seats on the 10-member committee by a majority Social Credit vote in the legislature. Both are the only members of their parties in the legislature.

Wallace got a commitment Tuesday that will allow him to present a brief on food industry problems at every community the committee holds hearings.

He said outside Tuesday's session that he will attend every hearing and "from what we have seen so far I will end up with a better attendance record than some committee members."

Earlier, other witnesses argued that:

—The Land Commission Act is unfair and should be scrapped.

—The Act should be retained to preserve farmland for future food needs.

WALLACE

—Consumers on Vancouver Island would have cheaper milk if chain stores were not allowed to ship in packaged milk from their corporate dairies to island communities, and if processing plants were expanded to utilize all milk produced on the island.

—An investigation should be made of major chain stores to determine why they do not purchase B.C.-produced pork products that are fresher than meat brought in from the United States or the Prairies.

Berger Stresses Arctic Values

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger said Tuesday he favors industrial development of the north but it must be in harmony with the environment of Canada's last frontier.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria at the Strathcona Hotel, he said Canada has only one chance to protect its northern environment.

A natural gas pipeline would trigger a surge of industrial activities, including an exploration boom and the demand for an oil pipeline.

Once the pipeline is started, the northern way of life would be changed.

"I do not want to be misunderstood about this. I am not proposing that we shut up the north as a kind of living folk museum and zoological gardens," he said.

"I have proceeded on the assumption that, in due course, the industrial system will require the gas and oil of the western Arctic and that they will have to be transported along the Mackenzie Valley to markets in the south."

However, it should be delayed until native peoples have adjusted to the new way of life — at least 10 years.

In addition, a nine-million-acre wilderness park should be created across the northern Yukon, including the Arctic coast, he said.

The area is the breeding ground for a herd of 110,000 caribou, a feeding ground for 500,000 snow geese and the habitat for the peregrine falcon, golden eagle, whistling swans, polar bear, grizzly, black bear, moose, wolf, fox, beaver, wolverine, lynx and muskrat.

"This wilderness has come down through the ages and it is a heritage that future generations, living in an industrial world even more complex than ours, will surely cherish," he said.

Berger outlined the pipeline options which he presented to the federal government.

That Alaska Highway route would be better than the Arctic Gas line which would cut through the northern Yukon (ruining the proposed wilderness park) and down the Mackenzie River Valley.

(Berger added that he could not formally endorse the Alaska Highway route because it is the subject of hearings.)

It would be possible now to construct a pipeline to bring Alaska gas along the Alaska Highway route into Alberta and then into the United States.

Later, in 10 years, Canada could construct its own pipeline to bring Arctic gas down the Mackenzie Valley.

Berger said he is opposed to any plan to bring U.S. gas down the Mackenzie, because this would mean construction of a pipeline through the northern Yukon from Alaska to the Mackenzie Valley.

This line, along the Arctic coast, should never be constructed, he said.

Berger favored continuation of oil and gas exploration in the discovery area to the right of the mouth of the Mackenzie River. But exploration and development should be banned in the left secteor because this is the natural breeding ground for 5,000 white whales. They have their calves in the warm waters from the Mackenzie and the young whales stay there until they have formed enough blubber to withstand the cold Arctic waters.

If they are pushed from this breeding area by oil exploration they may disappear from the north, Berger said.

Fortunately, he said, no oil or gas has been found in this breeding area.

However, the Canadian government should declare it a whale sanctuary and put it off limit for oil and gas exploration for all time. There is more than enough petroleum potential in other northern areas without intruding upon the whale's home, he said.

Berger also has recommended the establishment of bird sanctuaries in the Mackenzie Delta and along the Mackenzie Valley. Oil and gas exploration should be permitted in these areas but only with the approval of the Canadian Wildlife Service, Berger said.

He said his concern for environmental values may have more support now than it would have three years ago. He said that when he started his study Canada had a shortage of natural gas. Now, however, it has a surplus and is able to export.

Later, Berger declined to discuss what his attitude would be if Ottawa attempts to water down his view in a compromise proposal.

"That is up to the government," he said. "My role was completed when I submitted the report."

Indian Expert Retires

On Tuesday, Emma Hunt, known to thousands of schoolchildren for her talks on native folklore and crafts, retires from the Provincial Museum. She sews, stitches, weaves, and makes baskets, such as this one she is holding.

Long-Gone Longhouse Was No Comfy Castle

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Living in the old-type Indian cedar board longhouse with an earthen floor and open fire wasn't exactly a "bed of roses," says Emma Hunt, 65-year-old Provincial Museum teacher who retired Tuesday.

Emma, known to thousands of Greater Victoria school children for her talks on native folklore and crafts, recalled she spent more than 12 years of her early life in an original Indian house.

"That was 60 years ago when my father's house burned down at Alert Bay," she said. "The family had no other alternative but to move into an abandoned Indian house."

She said the houses rebuilt as tourist attractions today might look romantic, but they were anything but comfortable, especially in winter.

"They could be cold, drafty and smoky," she said. "Someone always seemed to be either chopping or collecting wood from the beach for the open fire inside the house.

"I remember one day it hailed. We had to put mats over our beds to collect hail which came through cracks in the cedar roof."

She said the family enjoyed some privacy. They slept on raised platforms built around the side of the house which were partitioned with curtains or mats.

"But there were some compensations," she observed. "The family was drawn closer together. We would gather around the fire and tell stories for hours, or we would sing or dance."

One of her jobs was to cook the meals. The pots were placed on stones placed around the fire. The size of the fire varied. At meal times it burned low. In the evening it was made to roar with logs six feet long.

Emma was employed as a part-time teacher of Indian culture in 1971 and three years ago became a member of the museum's permanent staff. Her husband, Tom, was the stepson of Chief Mungo Martin, famous Indian carver, who died in Victoria in 1962.

A kindly and thoughtful woman, Emma likes to describe herself as a craftsman of all sorts.

"I sew, stitch, weave, make baskets and blankets," she said. "But I'm no artist . . . I can't draw or paint on paper."

She likes to recall the heydays of the B.C. canning industry which employed hundreds of Indians and some Chinese during the 20s and 30s.

"We used to go to Rivers Inlet where three canning plants once operated," she related. "There we met representatives from all the coastal tribes. the canning season was a social event for the native people of B.C."

"When I think back," she added, "I can't help thinking how we have mis-managed our fisheries . . . a major source of food, once as plentiful as wheat. People today have no idea of how great those salmon runs were."

Emma is sorry she has to leave the museum.

"You know I don't know why people have to retire at 65 when they are in good health and still quite capable. I have enjoyed it here."

VSO Boosts Core, Hikes Players' Pay

Fourteen more professional musicians will be hired by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and members will get a pay raise, the symphony society board decided Tuesday night.

The orchestra next season will have 29 professionals to form the core of the 65-member ensemble.

Musicians will receive an improved deal with the society as a result of the new master agreement which was adopted unanimously by the board on a motion of negotiating chairman Bob Wright.

Per service pay rate is raised 10 per cent to a minimum payment per service of $22. (The musicians' negotiating committee had been seeking a $34 minimum). All core players will receive a minimum of $26 per service. Services are concerts and rehearsals.

Other improvements include a rising scale of sick leave benefits and insurance on instruments deemed in the society's care while on tours or runouts — concerts more than 20 miles from the Royal Theatre.

Improvement in the financial position of the society was reported by honorary treasurer Ian E. Cairns.

A $52,000 deficit at the end of the season was projected at a January board meeting. However as a result of donations and other income — the Women's Committee has raised a total of $8,000 this season — the deficit may now range only between $5,000 and $10,000 by the time of the annual meeting June 29.

Laszlo Gati's resignation as musical director and conductor was accepted with regret. Formation of a selection committee to seek a replacement will be deferred for action by the in-coming board.

Dog Joins Search For Woman

An RCMP dog team from Nanaimo joined the search today for a 63-year-old Colwood woman who has been missing for a week.

Irma Zarft left her home at 2787 Jacklin last Wednesday morning without money nor medication she needs for an arterial condition.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the search will be concentrated in the Goldstream area where the woman frequently went on long walks.

Mrs. Zarft, described as five-feet five inches tall, 120 pounds with blue eyes and grey hair, was apparently suffering from acute depression at the time she disappeared.

Police said the woman has a recent history of wandering off for long periods of time.

Free Ferry 'Passport' For Tourists Praised

Mayor Young's proposal for a tourist passport giving visitors free ferry transportation if they stay one week or more was praised today by Visitors Information Centre president Ken King as "something that could really help Victoria."

King said he would like the mayor to refer the proposal to the tourist bureau for a feasibility study.

"We would like to take this on," King said. "Once we get the details ironed out we could find this will give the city a real boost. I am pleased that city hall is concerned about the tourist industry."

The mayor Tuesday told city council a free ferry ride would overcome the objections of U.S. and Lower Mainland residents that ferry fares are too high.

He said the cost of the ferry ride could be borne by Victoria merchants in cases where visitors are staying for at least one week.

He said all tourists should be issued with mock passports that list major city attractions and hotels.

The visitor would have the passport stamped at each location and at the end of the visit he would be able to redeem the ferry cost from the hotel where he stayed.

Merchants and operators of tourist attractions who subscribe to the scheme would pay a proportion of the rebate granted by the hotel.

Young said there would be no operating cost to the city, and the tourist industry itself would have to run the passport plan.

But the city would be prepared to help in setting up the program, and he said he is optimistic that there would be financial assistance from the provincial government in printing passports and generally promoting the idea.

Aldermen welcomed the proposal, which was turned over to Ald. Frank Carson, chairman of council's commercial development committee, to explore further with tourist industry representatives and downtown businessmen.

Ald. Bob Wright suggested that the Victoria Visitors Information Centre would be the appropriate agency to operate the program.

Such a novel invitation from Victoria to tourists at large would be certain to attract "international publicity," he predicted.

However, King today cautioned that it would not be possible to bring in the passport plan for the current tourist season.

"You can't just zap these things in without studying them carefully. It might be possible for next year if it looks attractive.

"We are already planning our Christmas packages and we are thinking ahead to next year. I am very encouraged by this proposal."

A spokesman for The Empress said "the idea is tremendous, if it works."

However, he wondered about the complexities of administering a program that involved stamping a passport at every stop made by the tourist.

In cases of large families the rebate could be quite high in relation to the amount spent in Victoria but over-all it might be a financial benefit.

He said it should be studied carefully before implemented.

Can Anybody Provide the Debaters With 36 French-Speaking Judges?

Rene Levesque's English-speaking friends and neighbors aren't the only ones whose headaches come in the guise of the French language.

Since the election of the Parti Quebecois, anglophones have found the tide of opportunity turning against them in Quebec: and many are leaving their home province.

Over here on the deaf and distant West Coast, the French language can often pose problems, too — but in a very different way. If you have to for any specific reason, it's often quite hard finding enough people here who speak it!

Harker, a school teacher, is president and Casey, a UVic student, is secretary of the Debate and Speech Association of B.C. And recently the association had the tricky problem of finding judges when Nathalie Cooke became one of four Victoria students chosen for the seven-member provincial team to compete in the annual Canadian Student Debating Seminar in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The "problem" was that Nathalie is bilingual and was the first French-speaking debater to be sent from B.C.

Now, Nathalie Cooke isn't your usual born-in-B.C. student. Pretty as a colleen straight from the Emerald Isle, she was born in India where her Irish father was a tea planter.

Nathalie has had the advantage of a mother who speaks French and the benefit of living in France for three months.

"We lived in a teeny weeny apartment in the back streets," she told me. "It was very small and very French and made learning the language easy."

As well as schooling in England, Nathalie learned French at Queen Margaret's School in Duncan, where her parents live, and is continuing her language instruction under Madame Rene Abrioux at Victoria's Norfolk House School where, at 16, she is in Grade 11.

Anyway, Nathalie was good enough to be named to the B.C. team along with Gina Wilkinson of Norfolk House, Christina Banman of St. Margaret's and James Angus of St. Micheal's University School. The other three team members were all from public schools on the mainland.

All those from Victoria gave an extremely good account of themselves in St. Catharines and, in fact, Christina — an 18-year-old, Grade 12 student — was named best speaker in Canada and best debater in B.C. But it was before the team ever left here that the fireworks started.

The group had to rehearse its debate and none of the debate coaches could judge a debate in French.

"We contacted the high schools in Greater Victoria but none were able to provide a person who was both a debate coach and a francophone," Brian Casey told me. "We found out that UVic's debate coach can speak French but he wasn't available. And we got the same response from Royal Roads Military College. Finally, we tried the French department at UVic and they said Jean Pierre Mentha, who teaches the advanced oral courses, would be delighted to come to the rehearsal."

But Mentha only solved the problem for the time being and association officials are shuddering to think of what will happen next year when the national debating seminar is held here in May.

Firstly, like everyone else, the association is suffering from a lack of money. Formed in 1974 with the aid of a $5,000 grant from the NDP government (which officials were led to believe would be a continuing thing), the association hasn't seen a penny since. It has taken them over two years to squeeze another five grand out of the Socreds (officials have just been told another grant is forthcoming from the education department) and, as Chris Harker points out, that will only cover operating expenses for the year.

"It's going to cost at least $30,000 to stage the 1978 seminar and B.C. will be responsible for half of that," Harker said.

Yet, just as it is in Quebec, funding may turn out to be a secondary problem to language by the time the seminar comes along.

"We will then need 36 French-speaking judges," Casey explained with a sigh. "And they will be needed not only in Victoria but right across the province because next year the national seminar will not centre in a single city but will start in Kelowna, move to Vancouver and finish in Victoria."

Nathalie Cooke admits she doesn't know what will happen here.

"There was quite a bit of tension at St. Catharines," she said. "The bilingual people were getting upset that all the announcements were in English only. It wasn't until we francophone delegates were together that we spoke French."

Just wait till the "bilingual people" get over here and there's barely a hint of what is one of our country's two official languages! They'll have plenty to say . . . and it won't all be in debates.

It's another example of just how steep the road ahead is; and just how much understanding it's going to take to cement national unity.

The answer lies with the young. And don't be fooled by that recent little bit of propaganda that "more Victoria students on a percentage basis are learning French than any other place in western Canada."

We've got a long way to go . . .

A. The maximum is $1,000; there is no minimum.

The Weather Strikes Out With Everyone

Victoria's weather could get worse — but it is difficult to see how.

Tourist officials are looking for sunshine and they are getting cloud. The forest service is praying for rain and the nine-month drought is continuing.

Forest are very dry and the local hotels are not yet humming with activity.

May was no help.

There were only 225 hours of sunshine during the month, 19 per cent below the normal total of 227 hours.

But rain fell on only 12 days and measured a mere 12 millimetres, or 45 per cent below the normal May total of 22 millimetres.

Ray Wormald, information officer for the B.C. Forest Service, said heavy rains are needed to dampen down the tinder-dry woods.

"Already there have been an unusually high number of forest fires and the season has hardly begun," he said.

"This is a dangerous situation."

Norm Dressler, chief forecaster for the Victoria area, says rain may — or may not be on the way.

"The total rainfall in a year tends to be fairly constant. That would lead you to believe that when spring is dry, like this one has been, that we are in for heavy rains later in the year."

Weather scientists, however have been fooled by averages too many times to base forecasts upon them.

"Just because spring is dry, this does not mean the rest of the year must be wet. It would be possible to have 12 months of dry weather."

In fact we are closing in on that now.

After last summer's heavy rains, Victoria moved into a dry era that produced lower-than-normal rainfall in every month except March, when it was slightly above average.

Precipitation in April and May was sharply below normal levels.

June came in just the way May went out.

The weather was cloudy and cool — but dry.

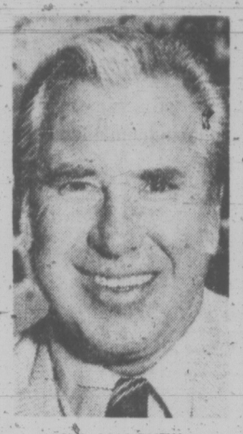

Official forecasts do not go beyond two days and scientists do not want to speculate beyond that point.

But if they could arrange the weather, they would make it the exact opposite of what it is now.

"This weather pattern isn't doing anyone any good," Dressler said.

He would like to predict sunshine for the cities and rain in the bush, but it is not yet in the cards.

Pully Tops Jake's List

PHIL MALONEY
. . . gets the axe

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jake Milford, who became the sixth general manager of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League on Tuesday, said his first choice as coach would be Bob Pulford of Los Angeles Kings.

"I don't expect to make any decision on the personnel until after the June 14 draft," said Milford who leaves the Kings to join the Canucks.

"Being honest, my first choice on a coach is Pully. I'd be lying if I said otherwise. But this is not a two-man package as Bob can't do anything until the 29th of June.

"I'll be talking to Orland Kurtenbach. I don't know much about his coaching background but I know he's a leader and a gentleman."

Kurtenbach, who took over the foundering club part way through the season, resigned last month because the club was taking too long to decide on whether he would be rehired for next season.

Milford, a 60-year-old native of Charlottetown, is expected to sign a two-year contract today. He will replace Phil Maloney who also coached the Canucks at the start of last season when the club failed to make the playoffs. Maloney had held the job since 1974.

Also fired Tuesday was assistant general manager Greg Douglas but the club retained Larry Popein, who is expected to advise the club on its draft picks.

Under the terms of Maloney's contract, the club will have to compensate him for the final year of his three-year pact.

Pulford, however, might not be as easy to land from the Kings as Milford. Alan Eagleson, Pulford's agent, said the Kings pilot is being wooed by at least four other NHL clubs.

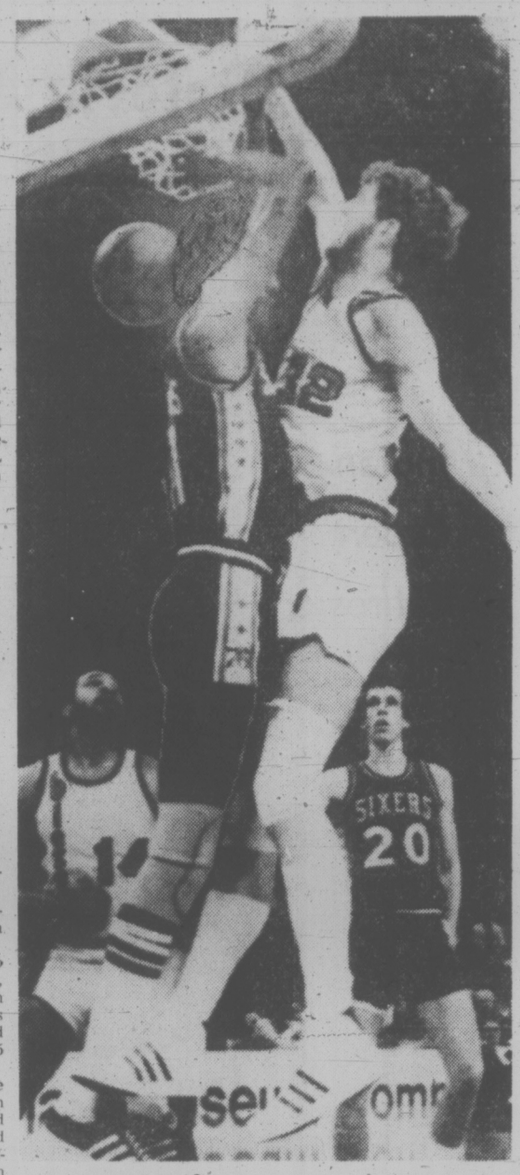

In announcing the front office changes, Canucks president Bill Hughes said he decided a change was necessary last November when Maloney replaced himself as coach.

"Phil himself told me that he learned the lesson that in this business you should get out while you're on top," he said. "He said he should have found a coach after the year (1974-75) they finished first (in the Smythe Division)."

Hughes said Scotty Bowman, coach of the Stanley Cup champions Montreal Canadiens, was offered Maloney's job but said he wanted to continue as a coach.

Milford said his decision to leave the Kings was sparked by owner Jack Kent Cooke trading defenceman Ab DeMarco to Atlanta Flames for Randy Manery without informing the coach or general manager.

Milford, who has operated the Kings with Pulford since 1973, never played in the NHL but Pulford was a star with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Rocks Change Stand Deal Cool to T-Men

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

The Shamrocks have had a change of heart and the Bob Cool case has been resolved.

Cool, the rookie drafted from the junior McDonalds who declined to report to the Shamrocks, has been dealt to Nanaimo Timbermen of the Western Lacrosse Association.

Shamrock directors, meeting Tuesday night, reversed a previous decision and decided to trade Cool to the Timbermen for $1,500 and Nanaimo's first draft pick next season.

Earlier, the Shamrocks had rejected a Nanaimo offer of $1,000 cash and the Timbermen's first-round draft choice for Cool.

Last week, WLA commissioner Roy Burton announced that Cool could become the property of Nanaimo Timbermen in an executive or coaching capacity but that he could not play without the Shamrocks' permission. The Shamrocks, he said, had declined to give that assent and a Shamrock official explained he didn't think that policy would change.

Since then, however, the Shamrocks have acquired forward Terry Sanderson from Fergus Thistles of the Ontario Lacrosse Association and apparently feel Cool is now expendable. Besides, Nanaimo needed the help, the club having lost its first seven games.

Cool, who scored 70 goals and had 106 assists for 176 points with McDonalds last year, will join his former clubmate and linemate Kevin Alexander on the Timbermen. Alexander, who has been hampered by an injured ankle, has scored 25 points this season.

Cool will make his first start for the Timbermen against New Westminster Salmonbellies at New Westminster Thursday night.

Under the terms of the deal, Nanaimo must pay the Shamrocks the first $1,000 by June 8 and the remaining $500 before the start of next season.

Nanaimo has two first-round draft picks — their own and the Shamrocks. The Shamrocks gave up theirs in the goalkeeper Larry Smeltzer deal with Coquitlam and Coquitlam in turn gave it to Nanaimo when they acquired goalkeeper John Lewis from the Timbermen.

Assistant coach Ken Alexander of the Timbermen said the Timbermen were extremely pleased with the acquisition of Cool and that Cool would most likely play on a line with Kevin.

However, he said that Kevin was an unlikely starter Thursday in New Westminster because of his injured leg.

"I know they will work well together," he said. Alexander and Cool were the sparkplugs of McDonalds in their march to the Canadian junior championship and the Minto Cup last year, scoring 287 points between them in the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League season. Alexander had 101 goals and 116 assists for 217 points.

Cool said he was happy, although he thought the Timbermen "paid too much money for me."

He has been running on his own but not otherwise working out, and will need some wind sprints before he approaches his best condition.

"I'm pleased with the deal," he added, "and looking forward to playing with Kevie

A Big Night For Tej Labh As Macs Roll

Tej Labh is the new scoring king of Victoria McDonalds of the Western Canada Major Junior "A" Lacrosse League.

The elusive forward, who labored in the shadows of the more illustrious Kevin Alexander and Bob Cool the last two seasons, rammed in four goals and had three assists Tuesday night as McDonalds came from behind in the third period to defeat Richmond Roadrunners 12-8 before 625 fans at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

The outburst moved Labh into the top 10 of the league scoring race and brought his season's total to 19 goals and 15 assists for 34 points in eight games.

Labh last year was the third leading scorer for McDonalds with 55 goals and 27 assists for 82 points.

As has been the case in all three games between McDonalds and the Roadrunners this season, Richmond battled all the way before going under in the third period.

The Runners, who now have lost nine straight and are winless this year, tied the score at 6-6 late in the second period and then took a 7-6 lead early in the third period.

It was only then that McDonalds showed their power. They ran in six goals in the final period to pull away for their fifth win of the season and a second-place tie with New Westminster Salmonbellies.

Kevin Kennedy scored three goals for the Macs while Steve Buckley added a pair and Jim Boyd, Bob Derraugh and Doug Angrove had singles.

Davinder Deol and Lindsay Ward each scored two goals for the Roadrunners. Roy Semlacher, Greg Jackson, Rob Broomfield and Dan Stewart scored the others.

McDonalds had the better of the play and tested goalkeeper Dave Lemire of Richmond with 63 shots. Rick Bains stopped 43 in the McDonalds' goal.

Scott Browning of McDonalds suffered a broken nose in the first period when hit by a stick. He also had other facial injuries and was taken to hospital for treatment.

McDonalds play league-leading Burnaby Cablevision at Burnaby on Sunday.

Burnaby on Tuesday ran up the highest score of the year, embarrassing Coquitlam J-Hawks 32-6 before 800 fans at Burnaby. The Cables led 10-3 after one period and 17-5 after two.

Bristol Bounced in Dispute; Reds Rally to Down Braves

By The Associated Press

Dave Bristol says he has a right to kick and umpire Lee Weyer agrees—provided he's not the target.

"Bristol bumped me," said the National League umpire. "Bumping an umpire usually carries a suspension. You can't take that. Bristol said to me, 'You haven't given us anything in eight years.' I told him I'm just out there to call them right."

This electric exchange and subsequent banishment of the Atlanta manager took place Tuesday night after a controversial call in the eighth inning kept a Cincinnati rally alive and helped the Reds beat the Braves 5-3.

Bristol insisted that Cincinnati's Ken Griffey was out trying to steal second. But Weyer called him safe, inducing Bristol to come charging out of the dugout.

"He threw me out before I was out there," said Bristol, still smoldering after the game. "He ran out there to throw me out. It was blatant."

"Griffey's spikes were caught in my glove," said Atlanta shortstop Jerry Royster. "It was a crime. Really, he was out."

After Griffey stole second, he moved to third on a wild pitch and scored when Cesar Geronimo hit a two-run single for the Reds' ultimate winning runs.

The victory, combined with Los Angeles's 5-2 loss to Houston Astros, moved the Reds within 9½ games of the front-running Dodgers in the National League West. They have not been that close since May 5.

In other NL games, Philadelphia Phillies edged Pittsburgh Pirates 6-5, St. Louis Cardinals blanked Chicago Cubs 6-0, New York Mets defeated Montreal Expos 6-2 and San Diego Padres trimmed San Francisco Giants 4-2.

The Reds trailed throughout most of the game as Atlanta's Phil Niekro scattered five hits through seven innings.

In the Cincinnati eighth, however, Niekro came unglued after Griffey led off with a single and stole second. After Niekro threw a wild pitch that allowed Griffey to take third, he walked Joe Morgan. Griffey held third when Johnny Bench bounced out. But the Reds loaded the bases on an intentional walk to Dan Driessen. Geronimo then came through with his game-winning hit.

A single by Dave Concepcion scored Driessen with the final run.

In American League play, Minnesota Twins collected 12 hits as Pete Redfern gained his second victory of the season and first win in more than seven weeks.

"Redfern has worked very hard trying to get his normal delivery," said Minnesota manager Gene Mauch after his Twins, leaders in the American League West Division, defeated Baltimore Orioles, leaders in the East, 8-3.

Elsewhere, Detroit Tigers defeated Oakland A's 5-2, California Angels nipped Cleveland Indians 7-6 in 10 innings and Boston Red Sox downed New York Yankees 5-1.

STARS DROP BURNS

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota North Stars of the National Hockey League have terminated the contract of Charlie Burns, 40, as assistant general manager.

New Shamrock Could Face Adanacs Tonight

Victoria lacrosse fans could get a look at the newest Shamrock player, Terry Sanderson, when the Irish tackle Coquitlam Adanacs at 8 tonight in a Western Lacrosse Association game at Memorial Arena.

Shamrock coach Nirmal Dillon said Sanderson, who arrived in town Saturday, will play if the club receives his release from Fergus in time.

Sanderson was a member of the Fergus team in the Ontario Lacrosse Association and, although the release is considered only a formality, the Shamrocks must have it before Sanderson can play.

Dillon worked Sanderson on a unit with Ranjit Dillon, Norm Baker, Gerry Cadwallader and Glen Neuman in practice and was more than pleased with the result.

"He impressed me with his stick handling," said Dillon, "and although he might not be in the best shape, having played only one game, I plan to use him on that line."

Otherwise, the Shamrocks will also be strengthened by the return of Glen Neuman, who missed the last two games because of shin splints, and Mike Beaulac, who has been out of action with a back problem.

On the debit side, Dennis Somner has his foot in a cast and is suffering from stretched ligaments.

Brian Evans of Nanaimo holds a five-point lead over Dave Litzenberger of Vancouver Burrards in the WLA scoring race. Two Shamrocks are fourth and fifth.

Evans has 37 points on 16 goals and 21 assists, and Litzenberger 32 on 17 goals and 15 assists. Ivan Thompson of the Shamrocks has 29 on nine goals and 20 assists and Ron MacNeil is right behind him with 11 goals and 15 assists for 26 points.

Dave Evans of Burrards continues to lead the goalkeepers with a goals-against average of 7.37 and Larry Smeltzer of the Shamrocks is second with an average of 9.51.

Budd Best in Super-Star Test

TORONTO (CP) — Soccer star Brian Budd had some trouble getting to compete in the Canadian Superstars competition this year, but he didn't have much trouble once he got here.

A forward with Vancouver Whitecaps of the North American Soccer League, Budd won the title on the weekend with 47 points, 4½ better than his nearest rival.

The event is an invitational national competition where athletes compete for $20,000 in prize money. It was taped by CBC-TV and will be a seven-part series beginning in January.

It was not until three weeks ago that Budd was invited to compete and once he received his invitation, he had to battle it out with his club to get permission to compete.

Budd excelled at the endurance events. He competed in four events — winning two, placing third in another and out of the running in the obstacle course.

He won the 100-yard dash in 11.8 seconds and the 800 metres in 2:01.9. He placed third in the one-mile cycling event.

The win was worth $14,700 to Budd, who admitted the money was important.

Tony Gabriel, all-star receiver with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Canadian Football League was second with 30½ points while Edmonton Eskimos' placekicker Dave Cutler was another eight points back.

Blazers Rout '76ers, Impress Philly Coach

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Excitement may be sweeping the city of Portland, but its young basketball team is calm.

"I'm not impressed," said Portland forward Maurice Lucas after the Trail Blazers routed Philadelphia '76ers 130-98 Tuesday night, tying their National Basketball Association championship best-of-seven series at 2-2.

"I won't be impressed until we win the final game," Lucas said. "I'm not excited, just ready."

Lucas and his team-mates had everything their way in Tuesday's game. Guard Lionel Hollins, who hit just four of 17 shots in the third game of the series, made nine of 16 Tuesday night and led all scorers with 25 points. Lucas had 24 points and 12 rebounds.

"The margin of victory is not significant," cautioned Portland coach Jack Ramsay. "It's just a victory. We're now in a three-game series and two of the games are on Philadelphia's court."

He meant that two straight home-court triumphs had put the Blazers back where they started when the series began, needing a victory on the '76ers court. They will have their chance Friday night.

If the Blazers were not impressed by their own show of basketball strength Tuesday night, the '76ers were.

"Portland was super, absolutely super," said '76ers coach Gene Shue. "They were in complete control. In fact, it was barely a game."

It appeared Philadelphia would have a chance to make a run at the Blazers when Portland's Bill Walton drew his fifth foul and left the game with 7:02 remaining in the third quarter and the '76ers trailing 71-57.

But the game became even more lopsided. Ramsay emptied the bench, but it did not matter. The lead widened to 41 points, 126-85, with 1:51 left in the game.

The final 32-point margin tied for third on the list of most lopsided NBA championship round games. Only Boston Celtics have run up more decisive victories. They routed St. Louis Hawks 129-95 in 1961 and Los Angeles Lakers 129-96 in 1964. The other 32-point margin also belonged to the Celtics, 142-110 over the Lakers in 1964.

Walton played slightly more than half the game, scored 12 points, grabbed 13 rebounds and handed out seven assists.

Julius Erving, who left the game with four fouls in the third quarter and played only sparingly after that, hit seven of 14 from the field and led the '76ers with 24 points. But he had just two assists, far below his output in the first three playoff games.

Accurate Vilas Bounces Smith

PARIS (AP) — Guillermo Vilas of Argentina knicked Stan Smith of the United States out of the French Open tennis championships 6-1, 6-2, 6-1 Tuesday night and moved into the quarter-finals for the third year in a row.

Vilas, placing his shots with pinpoint accuracy on the slow clay centre court of Roland Garros Stadium, destroyed Smith in a little more than an hour in one of the most one-sided matches of the tournament.

Raul Ramirez of Mexico was another easy winner and joined Vilas in the Latin American challenge for the $38,000 first prize. He rolled past John Yuill of South Africa 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Two other quarter-finals played Tuesday were closer affairs.

Adriano Panatta of Italy, the defending champion, came back from the brink of losing his title to overcome Buster Mottram of Britain 2-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 6-4.

Wojtek Fibak of Poland edged Rolf Gehring of West Germany 6-7, 6-4, 6-2, 3-6, 6-4 in a duel lasting three hours and 40 minutes.

The lineup for the quarter-finals is: Ilie Uastase, Romania, vs. Brian Gottfried, U.S.; Phil Dent, Australia, vs. Jose Higueras, Spain; Fibak vs. Vilas, and Ramirez vs. Panatta.

Two quarter-finals were settled Tuesday. Mimi Jausovec of Yugoslavia came from behind in both sets to edge Pam Teeguarden, the third American contender from Los Angeles, 6-4, 7-5. In a duel between two of the up-and-coming Czech players, Regina Marsikova defeated Renata Tomasova 7-6, 6-7, 6-3.

SAME CLUB, SAME BALL, SAME RESULT

The 24-year-old University of Victoria graduate used the same seven-iron and the same golf ball to score two holes-in-one within a week.

McCulloch got his first ace May 24 on the 120-yard fourth hole at Mount Douglas Par Three course and then canned another Monday on the 150-yard second hole at Cedar Hill Golf Club.

Three Guest Coaches Help Prepare Lions

VANCOUVER — A trio of guest coaches will help B.C. Lion head coach Vic Rapp to prepare the Western Football Conference team for the coming campaign.

Charlie Finley of Missouri, Adam Rita of Nevada and Chris Beaton of Simon Fraser University will serve as Rapp's special aides when the Lions launch full-scale training at Courtenay on Friday.

Finley, head coach at the University of Missouri at Rolla for the past five years, will coach B.C.'s offensive backs. Beaton will work with the defensive backs while Rita, an assistant at the University of Nevada, will concentrate on the receivers.

Lions' training officially started Monday with Backfielders and receivers reporting for medicals. Linemen will check in on Thursday and the entire team then will shift to Courtenay the following day.

Lion's first pre-season game will be June 16 at Empire Stadium against the Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Lions announced the signing of imports Tuufuli Uperesa and Paul Hunter. Uperesa, an offensive lineman, was with Ottawa Rough Rider last season. Hunter, a defensive tackle, is from University of Cincinnati.

Cardiff a Winner

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — The Cardiff Rugby Club played hard for only one half Monday night but it was more than enough to score a convincing 29-9 victory over the Fraser Valley Reps in this Vancouver suburb.

The tourists were lethargic and disorganized in the first half and the local side was well worth its 9-3 lead at that point. In the second half, Cardiff went back to the basics and showed the crowd of about 800 some of the style and flair of Welsh rugby.

Rowing Meet Set June 12

NORTH COWICHAN — Maple Bay Rowing Club will stage the B.C. rowing championships June 12 on Quamichan Lake.

EAST ACES SKIP ALL-STAR GAME

TORONTO (CP) — Tom Clements, the former Notre Dame quarterback who led Ottawa Rough Riders to the Grey Cup last year, will not play in Saturday's Canadian Football League all-star game at Exhibition Stadium here.

He will be replaced by Sonny Wade, the Montreal Alouettes veteran, who will share quarterbacking duties with Jimmy Jones of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Clements, an Eastern Conference all-star in 1976, is not a member of the CFL Players' Association, which is sponsoring the all-star game. And he has not yet completed contract negotiations with the Rough Riders. Neither factor would prevent him from taking part. He has simply chosen to pass up the East-West game.

Other East players who have decided not to play because they are still unsigned include tight end Peter Dalla Riva and running back Andy Hopkins of Montreal Alouettes. Montreal defensive end Junior Ah You will sit out the game for personal reasons.

Defensive tackle Granville Liggins has decided to play despite the fact he is involved in a contract dispute with Toronto Argonauts.

Missing from the West squad will be Edmonton Eskimos wide receiver George McGowan, who injured his leg in the television Countdown competition. George Reed, president of the players' association, said Steve Mazurak of Saskatchewan Roughriders will replace McGowan.

Cents Become Bighorns; League May Alter Name

CALGARY (CP) — The move of Calgary Centennials of the Western Canada Hockey League to Billings, Mont., for the 1977-78 season was announced Tuesday by team owner Dick Koentges.

In a news release, Koentges said approval for the move had come from the WCHL governors, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States.

He said the Billings entry will be named Bighorns, a name chosen to draw attention to the southern Montana area, the history of which

The team will play its home games at the 8600-seat Yellowstone Metra, making it the third-largest arena in the 12-team league.

Billings becomes the third U.S.-based WCHL team. Other U.S. teams are Portland Winter Hawks and Seattle, which recently acquired its franchise from Kamloops Chiefs of the WCHL's western division.

Koentges added there is a possibility the league will change its name to the Western Major Hockey League because of the three American franchises.

Nielsen, Waterland Rate Praise for Firm Stand

Some rambling notes along the trail:

No matter what this writer thinks about the shortsighted moves made by cabinet ministers Jim Nielsen and Tom Waterland in other areas, they both deserve top marks for taking firm stands on two controversial issues ... Nielsen, the environment minister, has gone on record as being firmly opposed to the raising of Ross Lake dam by Seattle Light, an action that would bury some 5,000 acres of prime wildlife and recreational land within B.C.'s Skagit Valley ... And forests minister Waterland has stated emphatically that there will be no logging in the areas adjacent to three lakes — Hobiton, Tsusiat and Squalicum — within the proposed Nitinat Triangle addition to Pacific Rim National Park ... Let's hope they stick to their guns!

B.C. Salmon Derby officials have completely revamped the popular fishfest ... Starting July 16, there will be four consecutive weekends of competition in differing areas and a handicap weight system will be in effect for the 10th annual edition of the derby ... Dates, areas and handicap weight are as follows: July 16-17, Howe Sound, English Bay, Fraser River mouth, plus 10 pounds, and Pender Harbour, Egmont, Secret Cove, plus 13 pounds; July 23-24, Pedder Bay and Becher Bay, zero handicap; July 30-31, Cowichan Bay and Saanich Inlet, plus six pounds; Aug. 6-7, a repeat of the opening weekend ... The entry fee is $15 and fishermen will be allowed to compete in a different area each weekend for the one fee ... Entry forms should be available around mid-June from Super-Valu stores, participating marinas and tackle shops and all Cloverdale Paint 'n Paper outlets ... Donations of $2 or more to Salmon Unlimited, the new funding arm of the society running the derby, will allow the participant to get in on a draw to award six free fishing trips during the derby with sports or television personalities ... Further information on the derby may be obtained by writing: B.C. Salmon Derby, 17 Coal Harbour Wharf, 566 Cardero Street, Vancouver, B.C., V6G 2W7.

The 1977-78 provincial hunting regulations were passed by order-in-council Monday and a fish and wildlife branch spokesman said the printed synopsis should be available "around mid-July."

Money-minded individuals who insist on comparing the economic values of recreational use of land to those of industrial use should take note of statistics recently released by the National Parks Service in the United States ... Over 58 million people participated in outdoor camping activities in the U.S. last year ... A surprisingly high figure of "over 10 million individuals participated in 'solo backpacking'" ... In 1966, there were only 17 million outdoor campers and officials predict the number will swell to 60 million by the end of 1977 ... Perhaps our own provincial government should keep these figures in mind while determining land use merits, remembering the fact overcrowding is already present in many U.S. parks ... Tourism could conceivably replace some of our resource-extraction industries as top money-earners if managed in an appropriate manner.

It's that time of the year again ... Young animals will be found in the woods and various kind-hearted people, thinking the "babies" have been abandoned by their mothers, will attempt to adopt them ... Its a dangerous practice — not to mention the fact that it's illegal to be in possession of young wildlife ... Bears, deer, elk and moose females have been known to attack a human trying only to help or pet their young ... In most cases the mother is not far off, but when it's apparent after some time that young animals have definitely been abandoned, report their location to the nearest fish and wildlife branch office.

Perhaps the most odious argument put up by B.C. Hydro to justify their mania for building more and more dams in British Columbia is that our standard of living demands it ... I wonder just how great our standard of living will be when the last bit of agricultural land is drowned and we become entirely, rather than partially, dependent on outside food sources? ... Dam-building also has extremely adverse affects on fisheries (another food source), wildlife and forestry values ... Our present life-style embraces these values, so what will it be like when they're severely depleted or gone?

Remember Those Cards For City Amateur Test

Limited to the 69 entrants with the lowest handicap ratings, the tournament will open Saturday on the long Glen Meadows layout.

Gandy and his rivals will wind up the title scramble Sunday on the demanding Royal Colwood course.

Forgetfulness could be costly to contestants this year since for the first time Victoria District Golf Committee officials are insisting that certified handicap card be presented to the starter.

Failure to present a card prior to the first round will result in a two-stroke penalty to the card-less player. A similar transgression on the second day will result in disqualification.

IRAN DROPS PLAN

TEHERAN (Reuter) — Iran has abandoned plans to bid for the 1984 Olympic Games and will not submit a formal application.

One-Player Show

CALGARY (CP) — Stand-off half Ian Ball scored all of the England under-23 rugby union team's points to lead the side to a 16-7 win over Alberta in an exhibition game Tuesday night. Ball kicked four penalty goals and ran 45 yards for a second-half try to sink a hardworking Alberta team.

England seemed well on their way to their third straight win of the six-game Canadian tour when the team jumped to a 12-0 lead at half-time. But Alberta fought back strongly in the early stages of the second half and Calgary stand-off Chris Thompson put them on the scoreboard with a 35-yard drop goal. Ron Pieschel added a try.

CEC TRAILS IN TRIAL

PINEHURST, N.C.

Toronto's Tim McCutcheon topped the list of seven Canadian golfers after the first round at the United States Professional Golfers Association Tour qualifying school here Tuesday.

McCutcheon, a former resident of Petersborough, Ont. and Kitchener, Ont., fired a three-under-par 69 at one of three courses used by the qualifying school.

Gar Hamilton Jr., also from Toronto, fired a 71 as did Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont. They were followed by Tom Irwin of Moncton, N.B., with a 73, Dan Talbot, Beloeil, Que., 73, Michel Boyer, Laval, Que., 74, and Cec Ferguson, Victoria, 77.

The Canadian contingent is competing with 408 other golfers who are attempting to qualify for the PGA tour.

The 415 golfers will play six rounds on three different courses for approximately 20 PGA cards. After the third round, the field will be cut to about 120 and then down to approximately 70 after the fourth round.

Lance Suzuki of Hawaii shot an eight-under-par 63 to lead all qualifiers and the 25-year old former Brigham Young University star has a three-stroke lead on his closest opponents.

Seven golfers are bunched at five-under par 66 and Bob Byman of Raleigh, N.C., also shot a 66, but played the par-72, 6946-yard No. 3 course.

In all, 103 of the golfers trying to earn PGA playing cards broke par, with the majority of low scores coming on the No. 3 course. None of the top first-round finishes came from the club's famed par-72, 7051-yard No. 2 course.

Gorge Pair Wins

Norm Parsons and Ted Gardner of Gorge Vale retained possession of the Victoria District senior golf buttons Monday by defeating Royal Colwood challengers Ben Domoney and Ed Cuppage on the 16th green in a match played at Glen Meadows.

Thermoshell It's more than home heat

Thermoshell means warm friendly service, practical payment systems and a clean efficient way to control the temperature in your home.

A more efficient design

Perhaps you thought one furnace burner was much like another? Well, that's certainly not true anymore!

Compared to conventional models, the new thermoshell furnace with Clean-Start Burner can reduce the amount of fuel you burn by as much as 10%. This advanced design is the result of our continuing program to find ways to conserve fuel.

How it saves fuel. Your furnace goes on and off thousands of times each winter. Every time it does, some fuel is not burnt efficiently. Result? Smoky flare-ups with energy-robbing soot deposited on burner, furnace interior and flue pipe. When it's shut off some oil may leak into the combustion chamber, too.

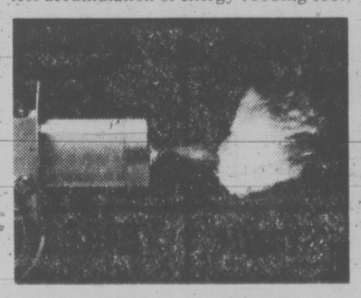

The thermoshell furnace overcomes these problems with a delayed start-up that allows a stabilized air flow/oil pressure to ensure split-second ignition. It also stops instantly on shut-off.

Our Clean-Start Burner has other advantages, too. A higher furnace efficiency than provided by older gun-type burners. And this efficiency can be maintained throughout the heating season. It also reduces soot emissions to the atmosphere.

If you're building a new home, or your furnace is on its last legs, give serious thought to this amazingly efficient furnace. If you pay $450 a year for fuel oil, it could mean a saving of $45!

Clean-Start Burner in action!

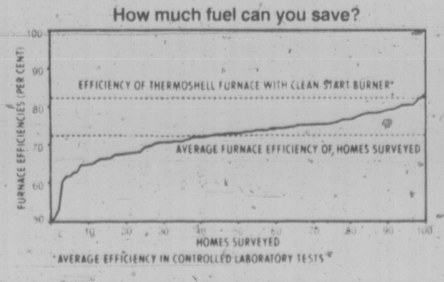

LEFT: The large, irregular flame from an old-style gun burner. RIGHT: You can see the Clean-Start Burner has a more intense and stable flame. It is also cleaner so there's less accumulation of energy-robbing soot.

How much fuel can you save?

Chart shows average efficiency of old-style burner-furnace units in a recent survey of Canadian homes. You can see that over 95% of the units were working below the 82.5% efficiency of our unit. In fact, 40% were working 10% or more below the efficiency of the thermoshell unit! (The average efficiency of all the homes was 72.5%). Now you know why we say that this amazing burner-furnace unit could reduce your fuel oil consumption by 10% or more!

You'll have a nice warm feeling for our products and services

Four Canadians Ousted

GANTON, England (CP) — Graham McIntyre of Halifax and Eric Hanson of Toronto took 1-up first-round victories Tuesday to stay alive in the British amateur golf championship as two prominent Americans were eliminated.

Defending champion Dick Siderowf of the United States lost 2 and 1 to Bernard Meldrum of England and reigning U.S. champion Bill Sander was beaten 2 and 1 by George Ellis of Scotland.

McIntyre and Hanson joined Jim Nelford of Vancouver, member of Canada's World Cup team and the national amateur champion the last two years, in the second round of the competition. Nelford won his first-round match Monday, defeating M. R. Waters of Britain 6 and 5.

McIntyre topped R. Kelley of Britain, while Hanson defeated R. W. Davenport of Britain.

Four other Canadians were eliminated Tuesday. George Rogers of Charlottetown was defeated 4 and 3 by J. G. Parkhill of Britain in second-round play, and Lorne Rubenstein of Toronto lost 1-up to H. J. Evans of Britain. Paul Brown of Vancouver was beaten 1-up by Dr. James McKenzie of the United States, and John Brown of Deep River, Ont., lost 3 and 3 to D. W. McCart of Britain.

Gordon Le Riche of Caughnawaga, Que., and Lou Milner of Toronto were ousted in first-round play Monday.

Siderowf, a 39-year-old stockbroker from Westport, Conn., was trying to be the first American to win the title three times.

PENALTY TALLY BEATS ENGLAND

LONDON (Reuter) — Wales beat England 1-0 Tuesday to take the lead in the British soccer championship.

A 45th-minute goal on a penalty shot by Leighton James gave the Welsh their first-ever victory at Wembley Stadium.

Wales outplayed England in the first half and then held out under intense pressure after the interval.

England was apparently robbed of a goal in the 56th minute when Welsh goalkeeper Dai Davies brought down Stuart Pearson well inside the penalty area.

Wales, with three points from two games, complete their schedule Saturday against Northern Ireland in Belfast.

Emile Francis Denies Rumors of Move

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Emile Francis, coach and general manager of the St. Louis Blues, denies reports that he may become new coach of the Los Angeles Kings of the National Hockey League.

Francis was reported to be the choice of owner Jack Kent Cooke to replace Bob Pulford, who resigned as coach during the weekend after five seasons.

Asked about the reports he might be headed for Los Angeles, Francis said he had not talked with Cooke about a job in several years, and added, "I have a long-term contract with the Blues and I'm part-owner."

Judges' Pay Hike Backed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons gave final approval Tuesday to a bill that will increase the number of federally-appointed judges and also increase their salaries.

A pool of 15 judges will be established under the bill to handle unified family courts if the federal and provincial governments agree to set up the courts.

These courts would handle family-related matters ranging from juvenile delinquency to divorce now dealth with by a variety of courts.

The bill also gives federal judges a $2,000 pay raise retroactive to April 1 with another $2,000 April 1, 1978. The salary range would be from $65,000 annually for Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada to $43,000 for district court judges.

A Commissioner to administer judges' salaries, pensions, expenses and other matters will also be set up.

The Ontario Unified Family Court Act comes into effect July 1, allowing federally-appointed judges to handle issues that previously came under provincial jurisdiction.

British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Newfoundland have also been experimenting with family courts.

Five Choose Quick Trial

VANCOUVER (CP) — Murray Pezim, one of Vancouver's most active stock promoters until last year, surprised judge and the prosecution Monday by selecting trial by provincial court judge on charges of conspiring to defraud and commit theft from one of his public companies.

The five face charges involving dealings with BX Development Ltd., a Vancouver-based company which operates a lime plant in Arizona and which trades on the Vancouver Stock Exchange.

The charges have no bearing on the company's future business, but the five accused decided they wanted to have the matter dealt with as soon as possible.

Judge Les Bewley called Pezim's selection of trial method unusual and Crown prosecutor Ken Eaweus was expecting an election of trial by a higher court judge which would have meant a lengthy preliminary hearing to determine whether the five should be committed for trial. The trial is scheduled to begin June 13.

Before The Judge

A Metchosin man who found out, after hitting a pedestrian with his fist, that she was a young woman pleaded guilty Tuesday in provincial court to common assault.

Arthur Kirkby, age not given, of 3336 Acemink, pleaded guilty but Judge Blake Allan, after listening to Kirkby's explanation, agreed that there was a certain amount of provocation and fined Kirkby the minimal sum of $10.

Kirkby said that on the afternoon of April 25 while driving north on Oswego near Kingston, James Bay, he had to stop to let two pedestrians cross the street.

A third pedestrian, he told the court, strolled across slowly and stopped in front of Kirkby's idling vehicle to eat some candy.

Kirkby said he leaned out his window and said to the pedestrian, "You sure are a slowpoke," and the pedestrian replied by calling him an obscene name.

Kirkby then got out of his car and struck blows to the pedestrian's head before realizing he was hitting an 18-year-old woman.

Allan asked Kirkby if he was sure the words repeated by him were what the young woman said and when Kirkby said they were, agreed that there was provocation.

Reginald John Green, of 4668 Cordova Bay Road, pleaded guilty and Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told the court Green and a companion left Coffee Mac's, 617 Gorge Road East, at about 2:40 a.m. April 17 without paying the bill.

When pursued outside by the manager, court was told, Green produced the knife and warned the manager not to take down the licence number of Green's vehicle.

Before levying the fine, Allan told Green he was fortunate in not being charged with the more serious crime of possession of a weapon dangerous to the public peace.

An 18-year-old was remanded in custody until today for a bail hearing on a charge of robbery with violence.

Leonard Paul Morberg, of 1017 Queens, was charged in connection with a May 29 incident in Saanich.

Mulligan told the court Alan Michael Parlow, 19, of 3553 Murdoch Crescent, is charged with the same offence. Parlow appeared before Allan on Monday and was also remanded in custody until today.

An 18-year-old youth was fined $150 on a charge of wilful damage and also ordered to make $186.25 restitution for damage to a girl friend's car.

Court was told Robert James Crawford, of 2933 Oldcorn Place, went to see the girl May 22 at 408 Craigflower and began by throwing a beer bottle on the roof of her car. A short time later, court was told, he kicked and dented the left front door and then punched the left fender, causing further damage.

Allan also placed Crawford on six months' probation and ordered the damage be paid within four months.

ADVISER NAMED

Dr. William Armstrong, chairman of the Universities Council of British Columbia, Monday was named as special adviser to the ministry of education on the establishment of a research secretariat for the provincial government.

Education Minister Pat McGeer said in a news release Armstrong will advise the B.C. Development Corp. and the government on the development of Discovery Park, a plan to further industrial research involving corporations and universities

Homosexuals Hit

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — The Florida House of Representatives overwhelmingly approved bills Monday outlawing same-sex marriages and barring homosexuals from adopting children. Both bills, which now return to the Senate, appear to be a backlash against a Dade County ordinance giving homosexuals protection from job and housing discrimination.

CITY SPEEDING JUBILEE CELEBRATIONS

A trifle late in the day, Victoria city council seems to have woke up to the realization that this is a royal silver jubilee year, marking Queen Elizabeth's 25 years on the throne.

With the belated recognition Tuesday came a decision to hold Victoria's own festivities, including military parade, mini-naval review, sunset ceremony, bonfire, fireworks and 21-gun salute.

Entrusted with the job of co-ordinating all arrangements by the tentative D-Day — Saturday July 2 — was Ald. Frank Carson, chairman of council's commercial and industrial development committee.

Mayor Mike Young, who originated the proposal, said that at a time when there is much discussion about promoting Canadian unity, "it occurred to me that we should be doing something about silver jubilee celebrations in the city."

He told council's caucus meeting he is optimistic the event can be staged, despite the rush involved.

He said he has already mentioned the idea to the admiral's office, and received promising indications of armed forces' support.

The provincially-owned Reid Centre site on Wharf Street might be suitable location for the bonfire and fireworks, the mayor said.

Ald. John Hayes commented: "I think it's a tremendous idea."

Walkout Urged

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — The Times of Zambia urged in an editorial Monday that African leaders walk out of the British Commonwealth conference in London June 8-16 if Ugandan leader Idi Amin attends. Some British government sources have said privately Amin will be barred from entering Britain for the conference, but there has been no official announcement.

Trust Building Gets Reprieve

The Yorkshire Trust Building at 737 Fort, soon to be dwarfed by flanking office highrises, will be designated a heritage structure.

Designation will ensure that the building does not follow the path to demolition of its neighboring contemporaries, the Campbell Building, the Jones Building and the Haynes Block.

The Yorkshire Trust Building was constructed in 1912. Heritage advisers to city council say its "solid three dimensional facade in the Edwardian Classical style rendered the desired banker's image of solidity and permanence."

At Tuesday's meeting of the city's land-use and zoning committee, Ald. Bob Wight said the building had been recommended for designation by the Heritage Advisory Committee because it is a "unique building in Victoria."

Ald. John Hayes agreed that it would be a "disaster" if the building is demolished.

Later Tuesday, at city council's caucus meeting, Wright informed aldermen that the heritage committee is preparing a short list of about 30 commercial buildings in the Old Town area which should also be protected by designation.

They are all in the area south of Johnson and west of Government, he said.

Letters will be sent to the building owners, notifying them of the proposal and offering them an opportunity to respond.

Wright also said he hopes that a regular clinic, offering technical advice on the restoration of old homes, will be in operation some time in June.

The city's heritage advisory committee has set up the clinic arrangements in conjunction with the Hallmark Society and the Victoria chapter of the institute of architects.

Pipe Oil Costs Soaring

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atlantic Richfield Co. (ARCO) has told the U.S. Interstate Commerce Commission it will cost $5.04 a barrel to carry oil through the Alaska pipeline — much higher than the $5.50 federal officials had expected.

The tariff rate, filed Tuesday with the commission, also indicates the price of building the pipeline has increased to perhaps 10 times the original estimate of $900 million, ARCO officials said.

ARCO is the first of eight companies that own the pipeline to file the required tariff with the commission.

The commission is expected to examine the added costs that have sent the price of the pipeline soaring since construction began in 1974. The line runs from oil fields at Prudhoe Bay on Alaska's north shore to Valdez on the south coast.

ARCO, which owns 21 per cent of the pipeline, placed its share of construction costs — including the interest on borrowed money — at about $1.95 billion. Assuming the other oil companies' costs are similar, the price tag on the entire pipeline would be about $9.2 billion, commission officials estimated.

The original estimate of $900 million was made in 1970. Cost overruns are the result of delays, environmental requirements and the need to correct thousands of faulty welds.

A commission spokesman said officials will have a better idea of the total cost after the other companies file their tariffs. Exxon Corp., which also owns 21 per cent, is expected to file within a few days, as is the combine of British Petroleum and Standard Oil of Ohio.

The first oil is expected to flow into the pipeline about July 1, with the capacity projected at two million barrels a day.

POWER EXPORT SOUGHT

OTTAWA (CP) — A public hearing will open in Vancouver July 7 on an application by Cominco Ltd. for five-year licences to export electricity to the western United States, the National Energy Board said today.

Cominco is seeking permission to sell to U.S. utilities 500 million kilowatt hours of electricity annually.

It also wants a licence to sell any surplus electricity up to 900 million kilowatt hours with the provision that such an export can be interrupted if the power is needed at home.

A third application is to export 50 million kilowatt hours annually to the U.S. and to import an equal amount. It allows use of U.S. facilities to move Canadian power where it is needed.

Creative Years In Later Life

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto professor collects Ulyssean adults. Dr. John McLeish, professor of adult learning and psychology, said he coined the phrase after the legendary Greek hero whose later life was devoted to exploration and adventure.

Ulyssean adults, he said, are those whose lives from the middle years on into old age are filled with growth, exploration and creativity.

"Our society has created enormous horizontal time barriers," he said. "These are supposed to indicate to adult people, regardless of individuality, that the time has come to stop learning."

"In fact, except in the domain of the body's physical powers, no such universal time barriers exist."

McLeish, who studied at McGill, Cornell and Harvard universities, said the Ulyssean concept came from seminars on creativity in adult life that he has held. He said many people in their 40s, 50s and 60s showed remarkable ability in taking up studies again, or exploring fields new to them.

A typical Ulyssean, he said, is former publisher Cecil Eustace, 73, who retired in 1968 as president of a publishing company, has since published two novels and is a book reviewer for The Catholic Register.

Eustace described himself as "a creative person getting on in life, fortunate to have good health and most of my marbles."

The mark of a Ulyssean, McLeish said, is that he or she has introduced something new into life.

"Wilder Penfield turned aside from his world famous work as a brain surgeon to write two good novels in his 60s. Cardinal Leger gave up his archbishopric in Montreal to become a worker among the deprived peoples of the Third World."

McLeish said he collects Ulysseans and never ceases to be amazed at their infinite variety.

MARK TRAIL

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

"Card reading" is defined as drawing the correct inferences about the nature of an opponent's high-card strength and distribution from information revealed or deduced by the fall of the cards. Today's deal illustrates this theme.

	NORTH ♠ A 5 ♡ K Q J 7 2 ◇ J 8 5 ♣ 9 6 3
WEST ♠ 7 3 ♡ 10 8 5 4 ◇ 9 6 4 2 ♣ K 8 2		EAST ♠ K 8 6 ♡ 9 ◇ Q 10 7 3 ♣ A Q J 10 4
	SOUTH ♠ Q J 10 9 4 2 ♡ A 6 3 ◇ A K ♣ 7 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♠	1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Two of ♣.

After winning the opening lead with his ace of clubs, East shifted to the nine of hearts, right into the jaws of dummy's strength.

There was no doubt in declarer's mind that the nine of hearts was a singleton. Also, West almost surely had the king of clubs, for if East had possessed both the ace and king, he would have won the opening lead with the king. And East, having opened the bidding, rated to have the king of trumps, probably twice guarded.

Declarer's worry, of course, was that West would obtain the lead, and play a heart which East would ruff. So declarer's play had to be geared towards making every effort to prevent West from obtaining the lead with his club king.

South won East's heart return at trick two with his ace of hearts. He next cashed the ace and king of diamonds. Then came a trump to dummy's ace, after which the jack of diamonds was led. When East covered with the queen, South discarded his remaining club.

East played back the four of clubs, but in vain. South ruffed and led the queen of trumps. From here in all the defenders could make was East's trump king. So declarer's only losers were a club, a diamond and a trump.

If declarer, at trick three, had led the ace and another trump, East would have won the trick with his king. Next would come a club to West's king, after which West would have led a heart for East to trump, for the setting trick. But declarer's play of the diamond suit effectively prevented West from obtaining the lead to play a heart for East to trump.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Pull pieces together — long-distance call, other communication is necessary. Element of mystery prevails. Older, more experienced individual could aid in clarifying "instructions." Yes, money is involved. Stick to number "8".

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Obtain hint from Aries message. Check behind scenes. Clandestine meeting may be on the agenda. Accent on financial aspects of contract, partnership arrangement. Dig deep for information. Reject superficial explanations. Research into "occult" material could prove fruitful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Emphasis on marital status, contractual obligations, ability to break new ground. Leo, Aquarius persons are likely to be in picture. One who holds views opposite your own is willing to make concessions. Be a gracious winner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Follow through on hunch — a former "teacher" will help show you the way. Aquarian figures prominently. Remember diet, natritional requirement. Vitality is making a comeback — know it and help yourself. You'll be working harder, enjoying it more and gaining additional compensation.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Highlight versatility, accept social invitation, ask questions, give full play to intellectual curiosity. Write, publish, advertise. You may be "wined and dined." Personal magnetism is magnified. Don't sell yourself short!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Property settlement could be on agenda. You reach agreement on what you need, what is to be sold or discarded. Home or domestic adjustment is featured. You could be changing residence or embarking on vacation. Scorpio, Leo persons figure prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Secrets, glamore, confined quarters are featured. Key is to know that your position is strong — refuse to be intimidated by gossip, second-hand reports. Older individual, probably another Capricorn, is backing you up — behind the scenes.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Friendship could prevail at expense of practical business procedure. Key is to be equal, not to carry a burden that is not your own. Message will become crystal-clear. Aggressive individual wants you to "volunteer," to pay through the nose in more than one way. Draw line. Be polite, considerate but firm. Put an end to emotional money drain.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You have friend in "high place." Career gets boost. Ambition is closer to fulfillment. Be independent — take lead. Highlight originality, courage of convictions. Yes, do get to heart of matters. Leo is in picture and so is love!

What seems a setback, emotionally and professionally, will "right itself." In October, you make a comeback. You'll be stronger, more confident. Meantime, go slow, play waiting game, plant seeds for future growth.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

"Loan me a dollar, Dad," said Ken. "I'll pay it back."

Tom checked, and did some quick figuring on the back of an envelope. "I don't have that much on me," he replied. "But I'll give you what I do have if you can tell how much it is. If you add twice the amount to half of it, and also to its square, you get a penny short of forty bucks."

CIA to Let Tourists Peek Into Headquarters

By LEE LESCAZE
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — Move over White House. Move over FBI. The Central Intelligence Agency is going after its share of Washington tourist.

The CIA, which until June 1973 preferred, not very successfully, to mask its location in Langley by marking signs on its acess road "Bureau of Public Roads," "Federal Highway Administration" or "Fairbanks Highway Research Station," is going to conduct building tours, beginning next month.

It seemed only appropriate for an agency famous for its control officers that a spokesman stressed the tours would be "controlled."

"We've got some very real problems about people out here who don't want to be photographed, or even seen," the spokesman said.

To lessen the chances of a "deep cover" CIA operative turning a corner in headquarters and confronting 30 instant cameras including one held by his Uncle Bert who'd always been told his nephew was in the import-export business, the CIA tours will be held Saturday.

CIA officials have visited White House tour directors to learn how that operation functions and to get an idea how many tourists can be handled at a time.

Tickets will probably be issued through congressional offices, but a spokesman said it is not yet decided, how many each member will have to give to his constituents.

The tickets will be designed to serve as souvenirs for those wanting to keep them and will feature the CIA seal, the spokesman said. There is also likely to be a printed tour program.

No tickets are available yet. "It's still in the drawing-board stage," the spokesman, Herb Hetu said.

Tourists who take the tour won't see exhibits of dart guns or cloaks and daggers. In fact, part of the CIA's problem is to come up with tour exhibits while preserving the secrecy of its intelligence work.

For example, no pictures taken by spy satellites are likely to be shown because the agency does not formally acknowledge that it has satellites.

Tentative plans call for the tourists to assemble in "the bubble," as the CIA auditorium is called.

They will be given a briefing on the history of intelligence and probably shown a film. At present, there is thought being given to editing down a CIA training film for the tourist audiences.

After the film, the tourists will walk through an underground tunnel to the main building and emerge on the first floor. The tunnel, the spokesman said, is just a tunnel designed to keep people dry and warm when they head for the auditorium or bus stop.

Breast Tumors Drop For Women on the Pill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new report on birth control pills says women using oral contraceptives seem to have less chance of developing noncancerous breast tumors but a higher risk of developing rare benign liver tumors.

The review said there is no clear evidence the pill causes any kind of cancer, but it emphasized that much is not known and future findings are difficult to predict.

The report by the George Washington University Medical Centre Population Information Program said the strongest evidence yet available deals with non-cancerous growths.

Seven of nine studies published since 1970 concluded pill users faced significantly less risk of developing benign breast tumors than nonusers. The other two studies found no significant difference.

The report, published in the May issue of Population Reports released Tuesday, said women who have had benign breast growths are more likely to develop breast cancer. But the report cautioned against assuming that protection against benign tumors offers protection against malignant breast tumors.

The report said most population studies have found no evidence of either a positive or negative association between breast cancer and short-term (up to four years) use of oral contraceptives.

A number of large studies of breast cancer and the pill are now underway, the report said, "and may provide better evidence about what relationships, if any, exist between oral contraceptive use and breast cancer."

More than 100 cases of benign liver tumors in women using the pill have been reported in the past five years. In addition, the report said other studies also suggest that certain types of the noncancerous liver tumors occur more frequently in women using oral contraceptives, primarily for more than four years.

"Despite the apparently much higher risk for long-term users, the actual number of women developing tumors remains quite low," the report said.

The report dealt only with the pill and tumors and did not consider cardiovascular and other health effects of oral contraceptives.

Portrait Honors Former Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Lucien Lamoureux, Speaker of the House of Commons from 1966 to 1974 and now Canadian ambassador to Belgium, was honored Monday with the unveiling of his portrait to hang in a Commons hallway with paintings of 26 other former speakers. The painting, done by Suraj Sadan of Montreal, was unveiled during a ceremony on Parliament Hill.

N-POWER NOT CHEAP

WASHINGTON (AP) — A citizen environmental group said Tuesday that nuclear power carries hidden costs that will raise future electricity prices for consumers.

The Environmental Action Foundation, in a 104-page book called Nuclear Power: The Bargain We Can't Afford, charged that nuclear power has failed to deliver its early promise of cheap electricity.

Nuclear plants could not succeed commercially if they charged customers the full costs, including such items as safe disposal of radioactive wastes and abandonment of worn-out nuclear plants, it said.

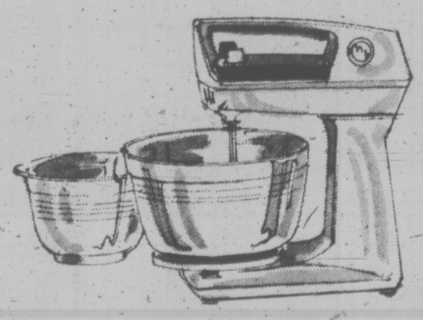

Although the book admitted that "a definitive comparison of the economics of nuclear and coal-fired power is impossible" because of future uncertainties, it challenged the claim by some unspecified utilities that nuclear power eventually would be about 30 per cent cheaper than coal power.

"Nuclear power receives additional subsidies through taxpayer-financed research and development and a federal exemption for utilities from liability in the event of a nuclear accident," it said.

"Critics believe that consumers would reject nuclear power if they were required to pay the full costs of this energy source."

Such arguments have been raised before, and the nuclear power industry's response has been that the problems and costs will not be nearly as large as the critics fear.

Small Farmers Driven Into Poverty—Report

WASHINGTON (WP) U.S. agriculture policy, in the pursuit of possibly mythical efficiency, has driven thousands of small farmers off the land and stranded them in urban misery or rural poverty, according to a major study conducted in part by Labor Secretary Ray Marshall before he joined the cabinet.

This decades-old policy, practiced by Republican and Democratic administrations alike, has exacted a disproportionately harsh toll on small farms in the South, particularly black-owned ones, the study says, as farm, tax, credit and research programs advanced large and corporate farms.

"The present agricultural system is dominated by certian actors who attempt to maintain control primarily for their benefit," conclude Marshall and Allen Thompson, an economics professor at the University of New Hampshire.

"The controlling figures in this system (large farmers and their organizations, the U.S. department of agriculture, the land-grant college system, food processors, agricultural equipment dealers, key congressional representatives and senators) share certain values about how the system should operate and for whose benefit."

The basic premise that large-scale farming is more efficient in that it produces more low-cost goods is challenged by the two. They say the traditional view has avoided the costs of research, lost taxes, energy consumption and environmental damage in determining efficiency, and has overlooked the costs of welfare, unemployment, crime and the urban decay resulting from a displaced population.

"One of the greatest tragedies in the past several decades," Marshall and Thompson say, "was the large-scale displacement from agriculture of people ill-prepared by education, training or experience for non-farm jobs. Clearly this has resulted in increased urban congestion, with all its associated problems and costs, as well as widespread poverty and unemployment in rural areas."

Their report, "Status and Prospects of Small Farmers in the South," was prepared for the Southern Regional Council, a private organization seeking to eliminate racism and poverty.

The study was completed late last year while Marshall was director of the Centre for the Study of Human Resources and professor of economics at the University of Texas in Austin. It was released last week.

LIFE UNDETECTED IN MARTIAN SOIL

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) The $50-million Viking search for life on Mars is over, and scientists are generally pessimistic about the results from the two robot spacecraft.

"The majority opinion is that they have not detected life in the samples of Martian soil they tested," a spokesman for Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Tuesday.

Viking 1 set down on the red planet last July 13, and Viking 2 landed Sept. 3. The Viking landers scooped up soil from the Martian surface and performed experiments until Tuesday, when their automated laboratories were switched off from earth.

They ran out of the nutrient liquids and helium gas needed to conduct the biology experiments.

Results beamed back to earth at first led scientists to think they might have found evidence of life. But later experiments did not clear up the ambiguous results, and scientists developed theories of how the results might have been produced by a unique chemical process in the soil.

Dr. Don DeVincenzi, who heads the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's (NASA) Division of Extraterrestrial Biology, said Tuesday that he doesn't think the findings "negate the possibility of life on Mars."

"The problem is that Viking has only searched about 160 square feet of the planet, and we're trying to extrapolate the results to the whole planet."

SERVING THE WEST

SINCE 1892

AUCTIONEER calls for bids on farm equipment belonging to Texas farmer Johnny Gooding who gave up in discouragement after a succession of problems including dust storms, drought, early and late frost and rising prices.

Texas Farmers Calling It Quits

By JAMES P. STERBA
New York Times

SEAGRAVES, Tex. — Gaines County is one big sandbox this spring. Sand drifts five feet high stopped trains here yesterday and dust grounded airplanes the day before. The wind blew up so much dust and sand the other day that farmers joked about seeing prairie dogs digging holes 10 feet in the air.

"If you stood into the wind and grinned real wide, you could get your teeth sandblasted whiter than white for free," said one cotton farmer.

Grinning was minimal at Johnny Gooding's farm auction this month. About 100 farmers, used-equipment buyers and junk dealers showed up to pick over the remains of 19 years of farming. Gooding is quitting.

"It's all I've ever done and all I ever wanted to do," he said. "But it just got to the point where I couldn't make it."

Drought, dust storms, early frosts, late frosts, increased irrigation costs, soaring equipment prices and snafus in old Government allotment programs all conspired to drive Gooding off his family farm. He is 39 years old, has a wife and three teen-age children, and does not know what he will do next.

The Texas Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said there were 207,000 farmers in the state in 1975. By the end of this year there will be 5,000 fewer, the service estimates. Much of it is normal attrition — smaller farmers selling out to bigger ones. But in the Texas High Plains, sellouts are running higher than normal this spring.

"This old sand will grow anything if you can hold it down," said Gooding. "It looks like a desert right now, but in July and August it will be a green paradise."

One way to hold the sand down is by irrigating it. But the cost of natural gas, used to run irrigation pump motors, has gone up six times in three years. Pumps that cost $80 a month to run in 1973 cost $400 or more a month now.

Herb Henderson has been an auctioneer in the Texas High Plains for 14 years. The "big sellout of the spring of '77," he says, is a combination of several factors that have put a squeeze on area farmers for the last three years. Basically, he said, crop prices have not kept up with operating costs of borrowed money, labor, fuel and equipment.

There are always sand storms in March here. This year's are worse. Older farmers at the auction said the wind had blown harder and more oftern this spring than at any other time since 1953, or maybe 1933, the peak of the last big plains dust bowl.

Pick Swiss Chard For Flavorful Dish

By HILDA BEASTALL

As the first fresh garden peas come into use we must also be sure that none of last season's crop of swiss chard is wasted. The plants are now hurrying into seeding with the warmer temperatures and longer daylight, but before discarding to the compost heap we can pick off a couple of plastic bags of the youngest leaves. These are still tender and flavorful.

Stored, before washing, in the vegetable crisper of refrigerator they will be good for up to five days. Remember to wash the leaves before cooking; there will be dust lodged in the crinkled surfaces.

Although spinach seems ahead of chard on nutrient analysis charts in most categories, chard has more calcium and possibly more protein-tan spinach.

When stored for a day or two, I make sure to add a half dozen freshly picked comfrey tips to the chard leaves to bring up the vitamins and minerals which decrease every hour after being taken from the growing plants.

If you have no swiss chard, use spinach or green spring cabbage which you may need to buy if not ready from the garden. These recipes are adaptable.

The first recipe makes chard or spinach interesting as well as even more nutritious to those not too keen on green vegetables.

HOT GREEN SAUCE

4 cups swiss chard, spinach or spring cabbage
¼ cup dark raisins
¼ cup ground raw cashews or peanuts few grains salt
1 tbsp soft margarine

Wash chard well, remove stems. Lift from water and cook 10 minutes with only the water remaining on leaves. Add other ingredients. Reheat.

This makes an unusual sauce for serving over other nutritious dishes such as Bean Patties, Meat or Fish Burgers, Brown Rice Cakes (recipe below).

For a complete supper, serve Hot Green Sauce on heated wholewheat buns or bread, then top with Welsh Rabbit.

This dish got its name, according to legend, when Welsh countrymen came home without having succeeded in snaring a rabbit for supper.

The wives would then serve this substitute, calling it Rbbit.

WELSH RABBIT

1 Tbsp soft margarine
½ cup milk from skim powder
1 Tbsp rice polishings
2 tsp torula yeast
¼ cup grated Cheddar cheese
1 small egg, slightly beaten

In small pan melt margarine; mix in rice polishings (this is a fine nutritious flour) and milk. Stir until smooth and thick.

Add torula yeast, cheese and egg. Mix and stir into hot mixture just to melt cheese and cook egg, but without extra heat. Serve very hot over the Green Sauce on heated split and buttered buns.

BROWN RICE CAKES

Pre-cook:
1 cup brown rice
2½ cups cold water
⅛ tsp salt

1 cup grated carrot (fine)
1 small onion chopped fine
OR
1 tsp chopped green chives
1 tsp lemon juice
1-cup cut-up chard, spinach, comfrey tips, mixed
1 Tbsp soft margarine
½ tsp ground ginger or candied

Precook rice until tender, about 25 minutes fast boiling. Or use leftover cooked rice. Meanwhile, scrub and grate or grind carrot tossing in lemon juice to preserve color and vitamins.

Add remaining ingredients; then add cooked rice.

If too moist add a tablespoon of soy flour; if too dry add a tablespoon of liquid skim milk.

Form into about 12 round cakes, or sizes to suit.

They can be baked on a cookie sheet in a slow oven at 150 deg. C for a total of 30 minutes, turning once.

Or the Rice Cakes can be cooked in a skillet or covered frypan with a little oil or margarine. Brown one side, turn and brown; second side. This takes a total of 20 minutes on a slow heat, with lid on pan.

Topped with Welsh Rabbit, you have a savory and satisfying meal for 2 or 3.

Salads will use up some of the smallest of swiss chard thinnings, radishes, green leaves, mixed with lettuce onions.

While leftover winter vegetables have a great use when committed to the compost heap for making new soil, part of the fun of gardening is to learn new ways of serving the home grown produce.

KEEP ASPARAGUS COLD AND MOIST

OTTAWA (CP) — Fresh asparagus should have a green stalk, a tightly closed tip and feel moist at the base, nutritionists in the food advisory division of Agriculture Canada say.

In a release, timed to offer tips to consumers during asparagus-harvesting season which lasts until late June, the division recommends keeping the vegetable cold and moist until ready for table preparation.

Refrigerate it unwashed and untrimmed in plastic bags and plan to use it within a day or two. Keep the stalk bottoms moist with damp paper towels.

Before cooking, break off the base where it snaps easily and wash carefully but thoroughly. Remove any large scales where sand may collect.

For six servings, allow 1½ pounds or 18 to 24 stalks. Don't discard the tough woody bases because they can be cooked for use in soups.

Four half-inch diameter spears provide only 10 calories, the release says. On a nutritional basis one serving contains such nutrients as more than 50-per-cent vitamin C and 10-per-cent vitamin A.

Saccharin Has No Value for Dieters

eating right

By RUTH FREMES and ZAK SABRY

Most of us would expect the health protection branch of our federal department of health to ban any substance that might cause cancer or be toxic in any other way. After all, it is the branch of government charged with the awesome task of protecting our health.

The public response to the saccharin ban was overwhelming. People wondered what would happen to those who are overweight or diabetic. Some of the letters we received implied that without saccharin, the obese will continue to gain weight and the diabetic will have no way of keeping his blood sugar under control. This logic reminds us of the reader who wrote sometime ago asking, "How many diet soda pop should I drink a day to lose forty pounds?" She thought that diet-pop would take weight off and melt fat away. We certainly have the ads for these diet soft drinks to blame for this misconception, for they have been telling us that diet drinks will help us lose weight. So, who will blame you for thinking if one bottle will help you lose one pound, five bottles will remove five pounds off your waistline.

The truth of the matter is saccharin has no value in the treatment of obesity, diabetes or any other disease. It supports a sweet tooth tht at does neither the obese nor the diabetic any good.

Some readers wrote us about their diabetic children who are burdened with dietary restrictions that make a normal social life with other children impossible. This is a hardship that could affect children, particularly if their condition is not fully explained to them, certainly.

Diabetes results from the lack of insulin or the inability of the body to use the insulin it produces. Our bodies produce insulin every time we eat carbohydrates. It helps the brain, the muscles and other tissues use the carbohydrates as a source of energy. The diabetic, depending on the severity of the condition, will have to cut down on carbohydrates; enough to match the body capacity, and may even have to take insulin injections. This means rigid controlling on the amount of sweetened foods in the diet. There are a number of sugar-reduced jams, jellies, desserts and soft drinks on the market. These are used not only by the diabetics, but also by overweight persons trying to cut down on their caloric intake while retaining sweetness in the food. Most of these foods contain saccharin as a sweetener. It is important to note that some do not contain saccharin and their formulation will not be affected by the ban.

Remember, anyone in Canada will still be able to buy saccharin from the drug stores without a prescription.

Diabetics will be able to sweeten some of their foods themselves and keep track of how much they use in a day. We have heard of one soda pop manufacturer who is getting ready to put out a soft drink with no sweetener at all, to which you may add sugar or saccharin or a little bit of each.

Diabetes is a disease that requires the help of a knowledgeable physician and a qualified dietician. It is imperative that the diabetic understand what his or her body needs and how it functions. It would be worthwhile to write The Canadian Diabetic Association, 1491 Yonge Street, Toronto, Ontario M4T 1Z5, for information and educational material.

(Dr. Z. I. Sabry is a professor of nutrition at the Univeristy of Guelph. Ruth Fremes is a home economist and a reporter on consumer issues on CTV's program W5.)

Foul-Tasting Diet Drink Costly

By NADINE BROZAN
New York Times

Some have hailed it as a breakthrough in the battle against obesity. Others say it is no more than a transient gimmick that will pass into obscurity before 1978.

But whatever its future, talk of the "revolutionary" new diet is on everyone's lips — and the faith it inspires has liquid protein drinks passing through many of those lips.

The regime, known formally as the protein sparing modified fast, is based on a product that's at least 20 years old. But Dr. Robert Linn, an osteopath, put it on the dietary map earlier this year. "When Everything Else Fails ..." the cover of his book begins, drawing the reader into its alluring title, "The Last Chance Diet."

In pursuit of that "last chance," dieters forego all food and subsist only on a liquid protein supplement until they have lost their desired weight.

The liquid, is said to taste dreadful: even when mixed, as suggested, with water or low-calorie soda. And it is an expensive source of protein: A pint, which lasts slightly more than three days, was selling for between $5.79 and $7.25 in a recent tour of stores in New York City; a quart was $10 to $12, depending on the brand.

Bearing such names as Prolinn, Gro-Lean, Super Pro-Gest, LPP or E.M.F., the liquid protein serves as the sole sustenance for the diet's adherent. The daily supplement of about five ounces, worth about 300 calories, makes the crucial difference between drastic, rapid weight loss of the modified fast and the total starvation of a true fast.

Responsible physicians conduct complete physical examinations, along with batteries of X-rays and blood and urine workups, before granting their approval.

For the duration of the diet — from a few weeks to nine months or so, occasionally, a year — patients are frequently checked. In addition, when properly managed, the diet is accompanied by intensive psychological counselling and behavior modification in an attempt to set the patient on the proper nutritional course.

Many medical authorities do not advocate this stringent routine for the individual who wants to drop 10 or 15 pounds. The nutrition service at Mt. Sinai Hospital in Cleveland, which has operated a protein fasting clinic since 1971, accepts only those considered "morbidly obese," those with 50 or more pounds to lose. Most patients there carry between 100 and 200 pounds in excess weight.

A similar program will be established at the New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Centre on May 27, but places are limited. Like its Cleveland counterpart, it will use as its supplement a powder called optifast, whose protein comes from egg albumen.

Dr. Victor Vertes, director of mdicine at Mt. Sinai Hospital and professor of medicine at Case-Western Reserve Medical School, explained why the diet is not regarded as appropriate for the moderately overweight.

"People with only 20 or so pounds to lose would be on it for such a short while that they would have no time to retrain their eating habits and their metalbosim wouldn't have changed," he said.

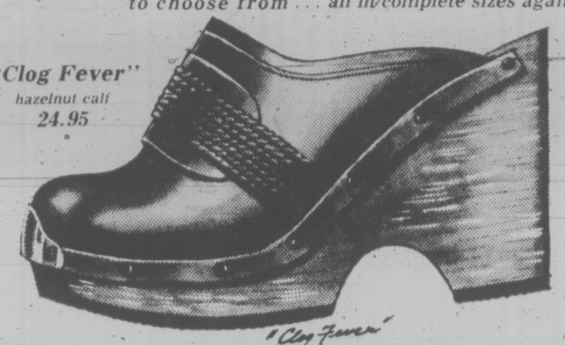

BANQUET BEAUTY is provided with this luscious green and white jellied mould, ideal for convenors of end-of-the-season banquets and hostesses who want made-in-advance dishes. The mould calls for bananas and canned pears.

SING PRAISES FOR RHUBARB

By MARION CLARK
Washington Post

Here it is, June again: the great glories of strawberries — "Doubtless God could have created a better berry, but God never did" — are being blathered around; and asparagus; and tender new lettuce.

But as usual, rhubarb, that Rumpelstiltskin of the plant world, is taking the annual back row in the spring plot. Children don't know its name, let alone its taste. Adults don't know if it's a fruit or vegetable.

Can the lovely mauve stalk that was once the hero of so many victory gardens remain unsung much longer?

No. Herewith, an ode to the royal herb. But first, we offer a rhubarb ruse for those of you who complain it needs too much sugar. If, when you are using rhubarb, plain or in a recipe, you first blanch it, you need only half as much sugar to bring out its sweetness.

When you are steaming rhubarb, cut the stalks in one-inch chunks, use as little water as possible, and simmer gently without stirring until the rhubarb becomes tender (about 25 or 30 minutes. Then dissolve about ½-cup of sugar for each pound of rhubarb in ¼-cup hot water and add this to the simmering rhubarb. Steam for another 2 minutes. It can be served hot or chilled, as is or with cream and sugar, or a lacing of maple syrup.

RHUBARB SHERBET

Simmer 4 cups diced rhubarb in ½-cup water for five minutes. Add 1 cup sugar, ½-cup corn syrup, ¼-cup orange juice, ¼-cup maple syrup, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Bring to a boil, then cool and put in a refrigerator tray. Freeze for one hour until mushy. Turn into a chilled bowl and whip well. Fold in 2 egg whites that have been stiffly beaten with 2 teaspoons sugar and ¼-teaspoon salt. Return to freezing tray and freeze until solid, stirring occasionally.

RHUBARB CHEESE PIE

Use a standard recipe for cheesecake with sour cream topping, that in The Joy of Cooking, for example. Cut 3 cups (1 pound) of rhubarb into 2-inch slices. Mix with ½-cup sugar and one tablespoon flour. Pour into pie crust and bake at 425 degrees for 15 minutes. Then mix the cream cheese filling from your recipe. Pour over the rhubarb and bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes. Spread on sour cream topping and bake as directed.

Lovely on Any Table . . . Popular Jellied Moulds

Mary Moore

Maudie D. wrote saying "keep those jellied moulds coming. I'm convener of our women's group who have consented to prepare a congregational banquet. Jellied moulds are one popular and pretty thing we can make in advance."

Before she wrote I knew all too well how popular jellied moulds are with you so here is another and it is green and white and will look lovely on any table — banquet or family or guest dinner.

PEAR AND BANANA LIME MOULD

1 6-oz. pkg. lime jelly powder
1¾ c. boiling water
1 19-oz. can pears (including syrup — see below)
2 tbsp. lemon juice
1 banana
⅞ c. dairy sour cream

In a big bowl with pouring lip, thoroughly dissolve jelly powder in the boiling water. Drain pears well. (Measure syrup. I had ⅞ cup.) Stir pear syrup and lemon juice into green jelly liquid. Pour ¼" layer into bottom of 6-or 7-cup ring mould 8" in diameter. Slice the banana and arrange neatly in this thin layer of jelly liquid. Chill until softly set but be sure banana slices are anchored in it.

Into 1 cup of the still liquid jelly stir the dairy sour cream. (Be sure no watery liquid from the sour cream is included.) Mix with wire whip. Carefully and slowly spoon over set bottom layer without disturbing bananas. Chill until softly set.

Arrange pear halves cut side down and narrow top ends pointing in toward tube of ring mould over set sour cream layer. Press down down ever so gently. Now slowly pour all remaining liquid green jelly over, aiming stream over hump of pears so it will flow gently into crevices. Chill until firm.

To unmould lower mould into hot water and count to five. Loosen sides with knife. Invert fancy plate over top vices. Chill until firm.

If desired this may be garnished with thick slices of banana dipped in lemon juice to prevent browning.

Sierra Onion Tarts

1 stick pie crust mix
1 medium onion, chopped
1 tbsp. butter
3 eggs, separated
1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. paprika
1 cup grated jack cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tbsps. minced parsley

Prepare pie crust dough as package directs. Divide into five portions. Roll out, each part on floured surface into five-inch round. Fit rounds into five baking cups. Flute edge. Prick with fork. Bake in 450-degree oven eight minutes or until golden.

Meanwhile, saute onion in butter until tender. Beat egg yolks with sour cream, salt, pepper and paprika. Divide onion and jack cheese into tart shells. Spoon egg mixture into shells. Bake in 325-degree oven 20 minutes.

Whip egg whites until stiff but not dry. Spoon over tarts. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Continue baking 325 degrees 10 minutes longer. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes five servings.

Convulsions Can Terrify Parents

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

During a bout of tonsilitis, our 5-year-old son had a convulsion which lasted for about four minutes, then stopped. Our doctor assures us that this happens to some of his patients and that they never again have a convulsion. We'd like your added opinion. — Mrs. J. T., Ill.

Dear Mrs. T.:

A convulsion is a terrifying thing to watch. It's particularly terrifying when it occurs so unexpectedly and without any previous knowledge of an existing illness. All of us in the practice of medicine have known children who, during a period of high fever, have a convulsive seizure.

Such a single convulsion does not mean that your child has been left with any brain damage. Neither does it mean that these convulsions will recur later in life.

When your son has completely recovered from the infection which precipitated the convulsion, routine neurological tests will undoubtedly be done. A brain wave study (electroencephalograph) should be done to rule out definitely any possibility of epilepsy as a cause for the convulsion. Sometimes parents are unnecessarily fearful of such tests, and deliberately delay having them made. This can do an injustice to you and the child, for only by these extensive studies can the doctor be sure that the convulsion was in no way related to epilepsy.

If I take my shoes off in the late afternoon I can barely get them on again because my feet are so swollen. After a night's sleep, the swelling is gone. Since I'm in good health I wonder what can cause this. — Miss S.S., Nev.

Dear Miss S.:

Swelling (edema) of the feet and legs may be caused by a variety of conditions. As in your case, the problem is usually a simple one. In others, it may represent some signs of disturbance of the blood circulation.

Varicose veins, marked overweight, retention of fluid and standing on the feet all day may cause the swelling.

Many people have a slight swelling of the feet which is known as "positional edema." With the feet elevated in bed, the swelling usually disappears by morning.

There are now many simple, painless tests by which the circulation of the blood and the lymph drainage system are studied.

Persistent swelling deserves the benefit of these tests so that the underlying cause can be found and eliminated.

Broccoli Is a Best Buy tiny bennett

By TINY BENNETT

A vegetable that is never in short supply is broccoli, a neglected, delicious and vitamin-rich produce that is always a best buy.

This time of the year, it is quite expensive at about 90 cents a big head, because the main crop comes in October and November. However I hope to persuade you that while this might appear a luxury item at out-of-season prices, broccoli should always be considered cheap, because of its superb flavor and high food values.

Broccoli is best bought fresh for important dishes, but the frozen type is very good and usually quite cheap. Since the reasons for my advocating fresh broccoli will be covered later in this column, perhaps right now we should take a look at the vegetable — how to select the best and prepare it as a side dish to go with chops, steaks, etc.

It is in fact a very simple and easy process.

Broccoli was brought to North America from Italy, where it has been a favorite dish for at least 2000 years. A kissing cousin to cauliflower, and looking very much like it but for color, it is incredibly rich in vitamin C, and contains excellent amounts of iron, riboflavin and (to my surprise) calcium.

Select broccoli on the basis of the darkest green heads, ranging down to purple, and don't neglect to examine the stalk, since not only are you paying for it — by weight — but because it is delicious and is cooked right along with the heads.

I like the stalk so much, that after I have cut off the toughest part at the end (test with your thumb nail) I slice off a length and nibble at it raw, an okay habit for weight watchers who are unrepentant nibblers, since broccoli only contains 32 calories per 3½-ounce serving.

Cut off the tougher portion at the end of the stalk, and remove the bigger leaves, leaving a generous amount of the stalk and all the little green leaves.

Now you can cook it in a very small amount of salted water either whole or cut into flowerlets. It really depends on how you plan to serve it.

In flowerlets, cut down lengthwise, starting at the base of the flower head, slashing right down through the stalk. Done in this fashion, it will take from 10 to 15 minutes in a tightly covered cooking pot, but you should take the lid off several times, so that the head retains its bright color. This is important, because it is a decorative vegetable.

To cook whole, simply slit the stalk up in a series of slashes from the end, all the way up to the base of the flowers, and if you stick it into a pot containing boiling salted water STALK DOWN, the root cooks in the water and the tops in the steam.

Proceed as before, lifting the lid to let the steam escape, and test for tenderness with a kitchen knife point. IN THE STALK.

Broccoli can be sauteed, steamed, simmered, in chicken stock, and whirled in a blender to make a fantastic soup, and made into an incredible range of dishes. But my favorite is in the form of a cheese custard, which produces a rich dish, stuffed with vitamins, minerals and protein, yet is low enough in calorie values for a dieter to enjoy a generous helping.

Now this is where we get to the economy factor, even at out-of-season prices, by using the broccoli in conjunction with milk, cheese and eggs, to make a main course vegetarian dish.

The big bunch of broccoli that forms the centre of the dish costs at the most $1.50 (should be around 99 cents) and for a serving for four that's a tough value to top.

So here it is:

BROCCOLI-CHEESE CUSTARD

Take a large bunch of broccoli and prepare it, cutting it down into flowerlets as I have suggested. Cook uncovered in a small amount of salted water — that's very lightly salted, and simmer until barely fork or knive-point tender.

Drain over your stockpot so as not to waste any leached out vitamins and minerals — can't afford to waste them — and then put into a shallow baking dish, or better still any fancy oven-proof, oven-to-table dish.

Beat three eggs in ⅔ cup of milk, add 1½ cups of grated Cheddar cheese and salt and black pepper to taste, beat again, and pour over the broccoli.

Put the dish into another pot containing an inch of hot water, and bake in a moderate (350 deg. F.) oven for 30 minutes, or until the custard is set firm and the cheese is nicely browned on top. (You can put it under the broiler for a minute or two if you want the top browner, but just a very short time, mind you.)

This will make vegetable haters come back for seconds.

ADD FIBRE TO SALAD

It's easy to make salads higher in fibre content when you sprinkle them with wheat bran cereal. An example is Bran Waldorf Salad. The wheat bran cereal gives delicious texture contrast — almost a nut-like flavor and the earthy taste of the good grain with which the cereal is made.

Bran Waldorf Salad

- ½ cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon chopped parsley
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups diced cored red apples (do not pare)
- ½ cup thinly sliced celery
- 1 cup halved grapes or ¼ cup raisins
- ½ cup bran breakfast cereal
- Salad greens

In a medium bowl mix mayonnaise, lemon juice, parsley, salt and pepper. Stir in apples, celery and grapes. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Stir in wheat bran cereal just before serving. Serve on salad greens.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

DEAR LYNN and JOEL: I have visited more churches since becoming a plantoholic because rummage sales are marvelous places to find interesting, unusual and cheap planters. Trees look great in churns. My old pitcher cost 30 cents at a rummage sale and provides a perfect environment for my weeping fig.

I love plants. While one of my twin sons was in Vietnam in 1967 I functioned totally because of my involvement with my plants. I had everything from Jerusalem artichokes to begonias and the plants are still with me!

I always give trees (live, of course) for wedding gifts. Occasionally, the gift outlasts the marriage, unfortunately.

Thanks again. I look forward to your columns. — Lucille

Dear Lucille: The plant experience offers beauty, peace and love — the best medicine. We all yearn to feel "one" with the universe and the involvement with our green friends brings us closer to the creator.

Your loving nature is apparent and we thank you for your letter.

CHEESE AND ARTICHOKE TART

- 2 (6-oz.) jars marinated artichoke hearts
- 1 cup chopped green onion (1 bunch)
- 1 lb. ricotta cheese
- 1 cup grated Parmesan cheese
- 1 cup grated jack cheese
- ½ cup dairy sour cream
- 4 eggs
- 2 tbsps. flour
- ½ tsp. tarragon, crumbled
- ½ tsp. oregano, crumbled
- ¼ tsp. pepper
- 6 (12x17-inch) sheets filo dough, about 4 ozs.
- Melted butter, about ¼ cup.

Drain artichokes and cut up coarsely. (Save marinade for salads, etc.) Mix with onion, cheeses, sour cream, eggs, flour, tarragon, oregano, and pepper. Layer three sheets filo dough in nine-inch springform pan, draping closely to sides. Brush melted butter on each layer before adding next.

Add cheese mixture to pan. Trim filo with scissors allowing top edge to extend about 1½ inches above filling. Fold dough over filling. Place trimmed scraps on top. Take one remaining filo sheet, brush with butter and fold in half, butter side in. Lay on top of filling, folding edges underneath and shaping to fit pan. Brush with butter. Repeat with remaining two sheets.

Bake in 400 degree oven 20 minutes. Place piece of foil loosely over top to prevent further browning. Continue baking 35 minutes longer. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes eight servings as appetizers, four to six as an entree.

dear abby

Can a Woman Face A Charge of Rape?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 23-year-old woman with a problem I am almost ashamed to admit, but I need an answer, and you're the only one I can ask without embarrassing myself, so here goes:

I've been seeing a 15-year-old boy, and we really dig each other. He's very mature for his age (physically, that is) so when he told me he was 20, I believed him.

I admit, it was dumb of me, but we were at his house and his parents walked in on us and caught us in "the act."

I know that an adult male who is caught having relations with a minor girl can be arrested for statutory rape, but does the same hold true for an adult female and an underage boy?

His parents said they are going to have me arrested. Can they get me for statutory rape?

WORRIED IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR WORRIED: No, but in California, you can be charged with "contributing to the delinquency of a minor."

DEAR ABBY: As a lawyer, I would like to comment on your answer to SPEECHLESS, wherein you advised her to tell Grandma to "write down" how she wanted her jewelry, silver and heirlooms to be divided after she died.

Abby, please tell your readers that unless Grandma "writes it down" in the form of a will, the only way her favorite loved ones are going to get what she wanted them to get is to climb through the back window while they're carrying Grandma out the front door.

Please correct this as soon as possible, or all my clients for whom I have prepared wills will think I have overcharged them and they'll be out in the parking lot slashing my tires.

LAWYER

DEAR LAWYER: You're right. I should have told SPEECHLESS to advise Grandma to engage a lawyer to draw up a proper will because most of those handwritten do-it-yourself wills aren't worth the paper they're written on. In matters having to do with the law, it's wise (and cheaper in the long run) to hire a lawyer and pay him for what he knows.

DEAR ABBY: I have just experienced one of the most uncomfortable afternoons of my life. I had a luncheon for three close friends, one of whom is a widow. The other two women spent the entire afternoon bragging about the gifts their husbands had given them, the trips they had taken and their plans for future trips. The little widow had nothing to contribute to the conversation, so she just sat and listened. I could tell she was hurt.

Don't women realize how often they do this? I am furious because this happened in my home. I haven't as yet had the opportunity to tell those two women how inexcusably rude they were, but I hope you will mention it in your column because they both read it.

DISGUSTED

DEAR DISGUSTED: I shall. But don't hesitate to let the offending women know your feelings. And should you ever find yourself in the company of such thoughtless and insensitive people, steer the conversation to another subject.

Pickle and radish slices

LIVELY flirtation blossoms between David Petersen and Diana Belshaw in this scene from Tom Cone's duMaurier Festival piece, Shotglass. Vancouver's New Play Centre has produced this festival consisting of the finest in new west coast plays, for the past three years. Shotglass will be seen tonight through Saturday at 8 at The Belfry, 1291 Gladstone. Cone is the author of Herringbone, a character piece which toured Canada including appearances at the Montreal Olympics and Habitat and was filmed for CB CTV. Also on the program will be another short play, The Frog Galliard, by former Vancouver Sun theatre critic, Christopher Dafoe.

SCHOLARSHIP FOR MUSIC

Lionel Martin of Victoria, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard H. Martin, 295 Homer Road, has been awarded a Nancy Reynolds Scholarship as an outstanding returning student to the School of Music, North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem.

Choice of Martin, an oboist, for the major award was made by the NCSA music faculty. Martin is a member of the NCSA Orchestra and the school's professional affiliate, the Piedmont Chamber Orchestra.

Abby Drover's Captor Loses Appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Court of Appeal unanimously rejected Tuesday an appeal of a life sentence imposed on the kidnapper of Abby Drover, 13, of nearby Port Moody.

Chief Justice J. L. Farris, sitting with two other judges, told defence lawyer Kenneth Baxter that Donald Alexander Hay, 43, should never be released from prison.

Hay, a neighbor of Abby's, imprisoned the girl in a tiny underground bunker under his garage for 181 days in 1976. He joined several searches for the girl.

Hay was sentenced to life imprisonment after pleading guilty to kidnapping, and received an eight-year concurrent term for having sexual intercourse with a girl under 14 years of age.

"I am not concerned about this man at all, I'm concerned about this girl and the protection of the public," the chief justice said Tuesday.

"I cannot imagine a more horrible crime and it was not an isolated case. This man has engaged in deviant practices for 10 years."

Mr. Justice Farris rejected Baxter's argument that the sentence was unduly harsh and that the provincial court judge who sentenced Hay was wrong to discount the evidence of a psychiatrist on the possibility of Hay's rehabilitation.

"I do not care what a psychiatrist says now, or later," Mr. Justice Farris said.

Watergate Duo Face Jail Date

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Judge John Sirica soon will set a date for a hearing on when former Attorney General John Mitchell and White House aide H. R. Haldeman must go to jail for their role in the Watergate coverup conspiracy.

The Supreme Court Tuesday denied their request to stay the sentence while they prepared a plea for reconsideration of their appeal. A spokesman for Sirica said the date for a hearing will not be set until Sirica receives formal written notice from the Supreme Court.

The appeal of another top Nixon aide, John Ehrlichman, also was refused but he began voluntarily serving his term last year.

Each former top White House aide has been sentenced to 30 months to eight years.

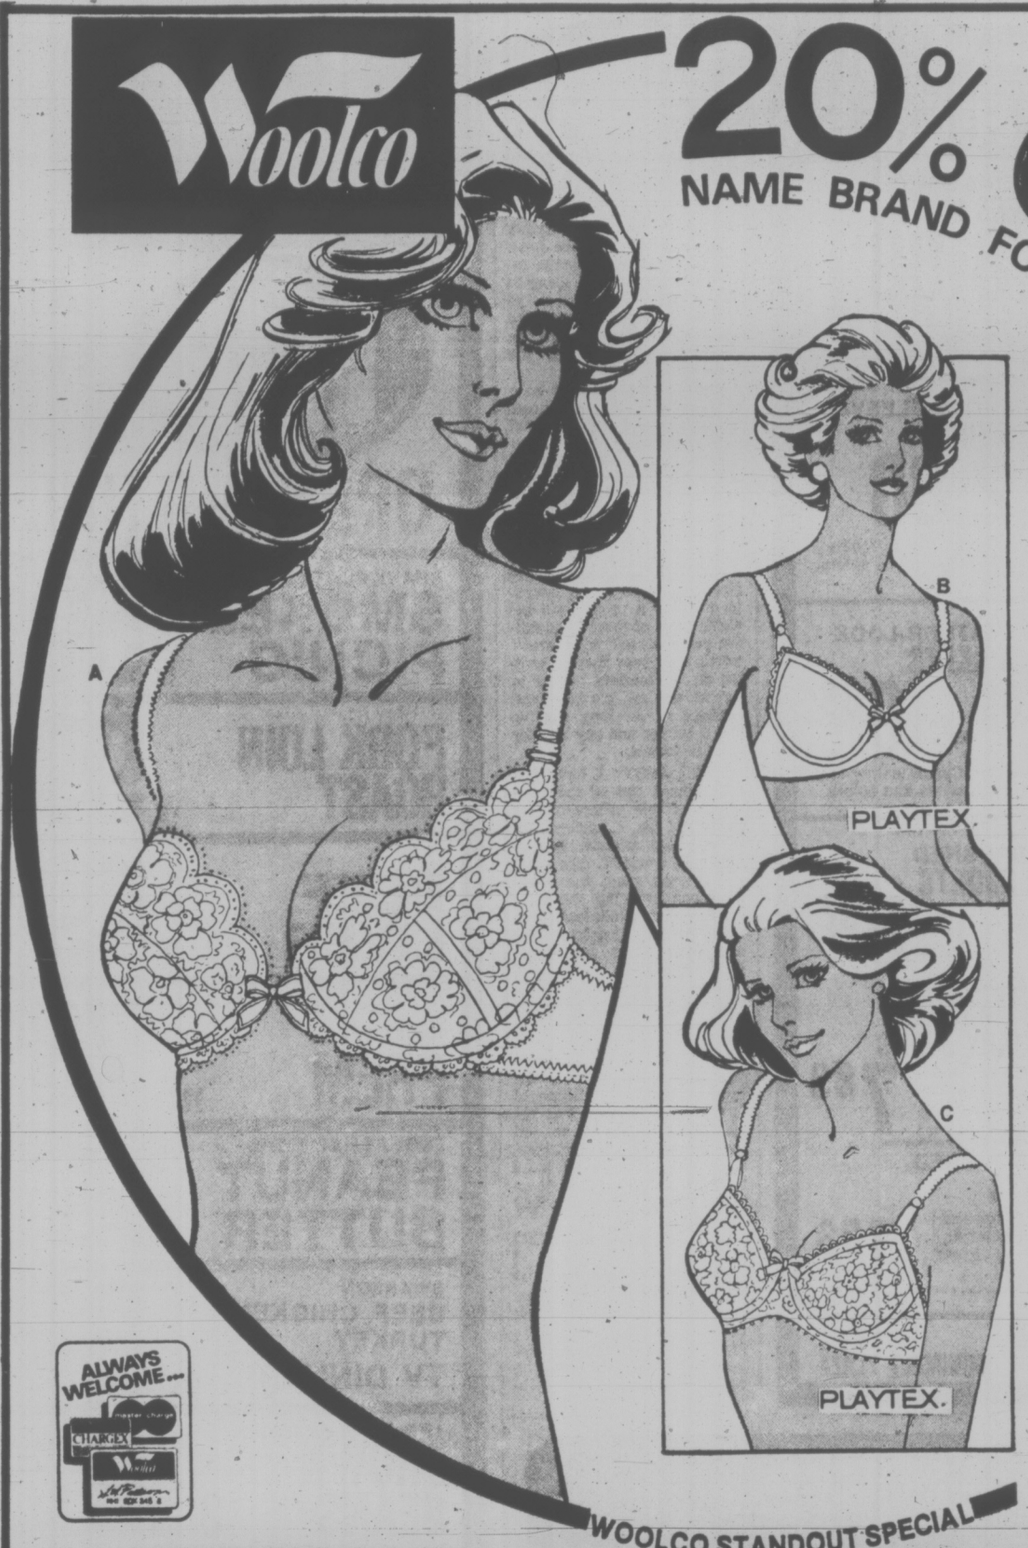

Lawyers for Mitchell and Haldeman will ask the court to reconsider its decision, but a reconsideration motion is almost never granted.

They asked the court last week to stay their clients' jail sentences while the appeal of the appeal is being considered. It was that request which the court denied in a brief order Tuesday.

Sirica's hearing will allow the defendants to request time to wind up their affairs before surrendering.

Jaws Sequel to Have Plenty of Bite

By JUDY KLEMESRUD
N.Y. Times

NEW YORK — He is a brainy Harvard graduate who went from directing classics in the theatre to making films that are praised for being "human," such as Bang the Drum Slowly.

She is an actress who specializes in serious, meaty, women's roles, such as Rennie in the film End of the Road and Tennessee Williams characters on stage.

He is John Hancock, 38 years old, tall as a basketball player at 6 feet 3 inches — with thick dark hair curling into his collar.

She is Dorothy Tristan, about 35, thin, blonde and intense. They have been married for 18 months.

Judging from their pasts one might think that the two of them would now be involved with something cerebral. Well, no. What they are involved with is Jaws II.

He is the director, and she is the co-author, of the sequel to the biggest money-making film in history, about a shark that terrorizes an East Coast summer-resort community named Amity.

"I thought it was a smart career move after doing small, heartfelt stories about dying friends," Hancock said the other day as he sat next to his wife on a sofa in their Plaza Hotel suite.

He was referring to the film that has brought him the most critical acclaim, Bang the Drum Slowly, based on Mark Harris's novel about a dying baseball player (played by Robert De Niro).

The couple who tend to be secretive about the sequel, nevertheless disclosed that Jaws II would have even more bloody carnage in it than the original, caused by a new $1 million mechanical shark that Hancock jokingly called Milton.

Jaws II, which begins shooting June 6 on Martha's Vineyard, is set four years after the shark in Jaws was blown to smithereens, and will have three of the original stars: Roy Scheider as the chief of police of Amity; Lorraine Gary as his wife and Murray Hamilton as the Mayor.

The victims?

"Well there's a water skier whose horrified husband watches her being eaten," Hancock said with a fiendish smile.

He also muttered something about the shark attacking boats during a race and terrorizing a group of teen-agers on a makeshift raft.

And rumor has it that Milton also leaps out of the water and chomps on a helicopter that is trying to find him.

"This is one movie where I don't care about humanity at all," Hancock said, still smiling. "I just want to maximize the terror. People are just now going back into the water after the first Jaws. Well, we'll fix 'em."

Hancock and Miss Tristan gave the distinct impression that they regard Jaws II as a rather exciting, if somewhat embarrassing, lark — the way intellectuals often do when they're dealing with something that's bound to be popular with hoi polloi.

Hancock: "A lot of my friends keep asking me, 'What's the premise?' and that's embarrassing, because we don't have a premise." Miss Tristan (smiling): "The premise is chomp, chomp, dear."

John and Dorothy . . . chomp, chomp, chomp

Amy's Got a Boyfriend at Home

PLAINS, Ga. — Amy Carter has a boy-friend and he gave her a foot-high stack of comic books to welcome her home to Plains. Scott Roberson, who like Amy is nine years old, rode with Miss Lillian, president Carter's mother, to nearby Peterson field to meet Amy as she stepped off her father's presidential helicopter. Amy was clearly glad to see him. She greeted him before she greeted Miss Lillian. "That's her boy-friend," said Miss Lillian adding: "I'm excited to see Amy — Amy not Jimmy." Scott's motherr confirmed the young friendship. "They have just always been sweethearts," she said.

LOS ANGELES — After a 12-year absence, Lee Van Cleef, the hard-eyed Old West gunsel of High Noon and later Clint Eastwood's For a Few Dollars More, is returning to television. Van Cleef's show, airing Sunday on NBC, is a series pilot called No Where To Hide. He plays a U.S. Marshal protecting an informant the mob wishes to kill. It's a strange role for the man who, because of 60 movies and 150 TV shows, is well known as one of acting's most sinister villains.

PITTSBURGH — I. W. Abel, who helped forge the United Steelworkers into one of the most powerful labor unions in the United States, retires today at age 68. Abel plans to go to Sun City, Ariz., where he and his wife will live on a pension of half his $75,000 annual salary.

WARSAW — Comedian Peter Ustinov received a Warsaw newspaper's annual "Order of the Smile" award Tuesday for bringing joy and laughter to Polish children. Ustinov was decorated for organizing and taking part in UNICEF — UN International Children's Emergency Fund — concerts.

NEW YORK — Conductor Leonard Bernstein has cancelled a series of European concerts for June on the advice of his doctors. Bernstein's personal representative said Tuesday. The representative said Bernstein had been suffering from a viral infection for the last month.

ROME — Giudita Rissone, actress and first wife of the late actor-director Vittorio De Sica, died in a clinic here Tuesday. She was 81. De Sica died in Paris in 1974.

WORKMEN RENOVATING a Toronto house discovered a cache of 100 bottles of almost 70-year-old rye whisky when they tore down a wall. Pat Giglio, 27, (right) co-owner of the house, said he cannot figure out why the bottles were there. Giglio said he and the two other owners including his brother Dominic (left) probably will have the bottles appraised by an expert before deciding what to do with them.

COTRONI FREED

MONTREAL — Vic Cotroni, whose conviction on an extortion conspiracy charge was quashed Monday by the Ontario Court of Appeal, was released from prison here Tuesday.

Cotroni, 65, was greeted by members of his family outside the wire-mesh fence of the nearby Archambault federal penitentiary.

Robert Lahaye, Cotroni's lawyer, said his client intends to take a rest. The former construction worker and professional wrestler has been reported in frail health lately.

However, David Doherty, the Ontario Crown prosecutor who pleaded the case before the appeal court, said Tuesday he is considering the possibility of appealing the latest court ruling.

The four were charged with conspiracy to possess $300,000 which had been extorted from two Toronto money lenders.

Human Mate Denied For 'Missing Link'

LOS ANGELES — A New York attorney who owns "Oliver the missing link," an unusual ape-like creature, sued two magazines Tuesday for reporting that he plans to mate Oliver with a Japanese actress.

Michael Miller filed suit in Superior Court against Oui and National Lampoon magazines, asking for $1 million in damages from each, on the grounds the reports portray him as engaging in "immoral and improper conduct."

Oliver resembles a large chimpanzee but walks more erectly and has a more human-looking face. Miller "unveiled" him to reporters in New York some time ago, saying he bought him for his scientific value, not as a freak show attraction.

Zoological experts expressed doubt at the "missing link" theory.

Both magazines, the suit said, reported that Miller planned to mate Oliver with a 19-year-old Japanese woman named Hiroko, a waitress in a raw fish restaurant and sometime actress, who volunteered for the experiment in hopes the publicity would get her movie roles.

Oui said the mating was to take place in a Tokyo hotel room, the suit said, describing it as "a contemporary sequel to 'King Kong'."

The National Lampoon, the suit said, reported that "Miller felt that a human sexual partner would gratify (Oliver), the Japanese public's taste for titillation and the cause of science."

Songhees Reject Dock Plan

A proposal for an industrial development at the Maple Banks reserve on Esquimalt harbor has been rejected by the Songhees Indian band, owners of the land.

Chief John Albany said the proposal came to the band through the federal Indian Affairs Department but he is unsure if it is to be a government or private development.

The project would have included a graving dock, he said.

"The band council felt that Maple Banks should stay as mother nature put it at least until all Indian land claims are settled," he said.

Albany added he is optimistic that the Indian land question will be settled within three to four years.

Navy Reserve School On

More than 1,000 reservists will graduate from the largest naval reserve summer training program in Canada which is well under way in Esquimalt.

Male and female naval reservists from communities across Canada began arriving in April. Rotating courses will continue until mid-September.

In addition to the established training locations used up to now in the dockyard and Naden of CFB Esquimalt, a third base of operations has been established.

Recently named Patriot Division, it is on department of national defence property at Albert Head. Training for new entries and officer candidates will be included.

A few regular force specialists will augment the training staff drawn from reserve divisions. Fifty sea cadets from across Canada will be employed on general duties.

Capt. S. B. Alsgard of Powell River, commendant of the Naval Reserve Training Centre, says the training is designed to allow graduates to be more valuable to their individual divisions and be able to work alongside members of the regular force without difficulty.

"Summer training for these young people is not a free ride for the asking," he said. "It demands total application and discipline which will not only result in a quality naval product but, which in turn, will prove invaluable in helping them establish their niche in life."

What About Crime Victims?

Canadian Press

At 81, Harold Taylor has been mugged six times, once by attackers who tore his face open with a blackjack. Twice he was beaten up on his own front porch. But in one respect, he's lucky..

He happens to live in Washington, a state that provides compensation for victims of violent crime. In the past four years, the Seattle man has received $10,098.

But Ruth Pitt, 56, disabled by a robber's bullet that richocheted off a wall and hit her in the face, used up her savings and then got a few welfare dollars. Her city's liaison officer counselled her but has no funds to pay her bills. It took him 13 months of work and letters to persuade United States Social Security to approve Mrs. Pitt for $237.30 a month.

Mrs. Pitt lives in Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

"If I were part of the problem, I could see this," says Mrs. Pitt, whose face is so mutilated she can't even smile—or grimace. "But I was an innocent victim and my whole life has been shot by this. Yes, shot.

"Authorities concentrate on the offender. From what I see on the news with these jail cells—TV, comfortable beds and all that. Why should he have all the luxuries of home?"

There are thousands of people like Mrs. Pitt; shocking numbers who have been left maimed and impoverished by crime. If they were run over by a garbage truck or socked in the eye with a golf ball, chances are somebody's insurance policy would pay.

But not when hit by crime in most states. Although 20 states have set up victim compensation programs, some provide little help. Many programs survive only because most victims are unaware the programs exist.

New Jersey has a backlog of more than 2,000 claims, some dating to 1974. The program in North Dakota, which has one of the lowest crime rates in the nation, ran out of money early this year and had to be bailed out by the legislature.

"It's a shame, with all the money we spend rehabilitating criminals, they can't come up with any to aid the people really hurt by crime. We pay for college educations for criminals, why can't we compensate their victims?" says Joseph Moriarity, an investigator for New Jersey's program.

Money is always the problem. The issue no longer seems to be whether crime victims should receive help, rather who should do it and who should pay for it.

Rhode Island lawmakers decided it was up to the U.S. Congress to provide the money, and made the state's program contingent on federal funds. When Congress didn't provide the money last year, Rhode Island's measure went under.

Louisiana lawmakers repealed the state's crime victim compensation law last year. But then it had never been used during its four years of life because the state never provided any money for it.

In the past several years, nine federal bills to compensate crime victims have been introduced in Conugress. Bills have passed the Senate but bogged down in the House.

The first states to have crime victim programs were California in 1965, New York in 1966 and Hawaii in 1967.

Other states with compensation laws include: Alaska, Delaware, Illinois, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nevada, New Jersey, North Dakota, Ohio, Pennsylvannia, Washington and Wisconsin.

Three other states—Virginia, Tennessee, and Michigan—have such new programs that no money will be paid out until later this year or 1978.

There are nearly as many approaches to victim compensation as there are programs. Generally, money is intended to help cover uninsured medical bills, lost wages and other expenses incurred by victims of violent crime. It is not used to replace lost property or make up for pain and suffering. If the victim dies, most states give the money to dependents.

Navy Can No Longer Design Its Ships

OTTAWA (CP) — Because of cuts in the defence staff, the navy no longer is capable of designing its own ships and for the first time will have to count on civilians to do it.

Vice-Admiral R.H. Falls, vice-chief of defence staff, told the Commons defence committee Tuesday that naval designers and architects were let go as the armed forces were gradually reduced to their present size of 78,000.

He said late in an interview that naval experts believe Canadian industry is capable of designing ships to suit Canadian needs.

In other matters, Defence Minister Barney Danson said he could not guatantee that West Coast ship yards would get a share of the multi-billion ship-replacement program he is considering.

Admiral Falls was answering questions from Lloyd Crouse (PC—South Shore) and Allan McKinnon (PC—Victoria), his party's defence critic.

Danson said $75 million will be spent between now and 1981 designing ships expected to be between 3,500 and 4,000 tons and be about 400 feet long.

McKinnon said because of labor costs and transportation the West Coast yards were unable to make successful bids on the last ships the navy purchased.

Danson said the West Coast yards will have an equal chance to bid with the eastern yards and he hopes they can prove competitive.

RETIRING DEFENCE CHIEF DRAWS PRAISE

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of the Commons defence committee praised Gen. J. A. Dextraze Tuesday at his last appearance before he retires as chief of defence staff.

Marcel Prud'homme (L—Montreal St. Denis), committee chairman, said the general's career clearly shows he is a great man in the military profession.

Allan McKinnon (Victoria), Progressive Conservative military critic, extended his respects and said he enjoyed meeting the general at committee meetings, sometimes as an adversary and sometimes as a collaborator.

Dextraze, who retires in September but, because of accumulated leave actually will leave his office in June, said he has enjoyed the last five years as defence chief tremendously.

EDC Undermining Jobs: MP

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's Export Development Corp. (EDC) is financing overseas projects that will take jobs from Canadians, Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) said Tuesday in the Commons.

Stevens, Conservative finance spokesman, said $108.7 million that the EDC loaned to Poland to buy Canadian equipment and services to expand its pulp and paper industry will help it compete against Canadian products.

Stevens said he does not accept the explanation given the Commons finance committee by EDC president John A. MacDonald that if Canada did not offer financing, the Poles would have bought their equipment elsewhere.

He spoke during final Commons consideration of a bill to increase to $2.5 billion from $750 million EDC authority to insure Canadian exports against failure by foreign purchasers to pay. It would raise its maximum insurance of government-administered exports such as wheat to $1 billion from $750 million.

Stevens, a Toronto financier, said his party accepts the validity of EDC insurance activities, but has grave reservations about its loans to finance exports.

He warned that many Third World countries will have trouble meeting their loan commitments. He urged establishment of a budgetary reserve to meet this eventuality.

Stevens also questioned whether smaller Canadian companies are getting their fair share of EDC export insurance.

In 1976, the 50 companies arranging the most insurance through the corporation secured liabilities accounting for 60 per cent of the total.

In the last five years MacMillan-Bloedel Ltd. of Vancouver, a paper producer, accounted alone for more than 10 per cent, he said.

PIPELINE EXTENDED INVESTMENT

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canada Development Corp. of Toronto has extended its conditional commitment to invest in an northern gas pipeline proposed by Canadian Arctic Gas Pipeline Ltd. of Toronto, according to both Arctic Gas and CDC.

The new commitment, expressed in a letter dated March 22 but not formally put before the National Energy Board's northern gas pipeline hearings before they ended, will last until Nov. 30, replacing a previous commitment which was to expire March 31.

Canada Stalling on Boarding Powers

OTTAWA CP) — Canada has the legal authority to board tankers and other commercial ships beyond its 12-mile territorial limit but is holding back on exercising that power until the current Law of the Sea Conferecne ends, coast guard spokesmen said Tuesday.

Ron Quail, deptuy-commissioner of the coast guard, told the Commons fisheries committee that under the Canada Shipping Act, Canadian officials can board vessels within the 200-mile zone if they are suspected of posing a serious environmental threat.

But because the Law of the Sea Conference hasn't reached agreement or consensus on environmental zones, Canada is reluctant to use this power, he said.

Also there is sufficient time to do on-board inspections once a vessel is within the 12-mile limit where there are no doubts about Canada's authority, he said.

W. R. Graves, director general of coast guard ship safety, said the government has "reserved the right to seek out iinformation from ships beyond the 12-mile limit."

Last year, a voluntary ship reporting plan was started on the Atlantic Coast to encourage ships to report by radio to their port of destination when they were still 24 hours away, Graves said.

This was designed to allow East Coast traffic stations a chance to get information from th ship on how safe it is.

Thorson To Chart Future

OTTAWA (CP) — The man who has written most of the federal laws since Pierre Elliott Trudeau entered federal politics in 1965 now has been assigned by the prime minister to help chart the constitutional future of the country.

Trudeau last Thursday named Donald Scarth Thorson his special constitutional adviser, saying this signified to Quebec that "we are willing and able to discuss constitutional change."

If anyone in the country is able, it should be the 51-year-old Thorson, who has been deputy minister of justice since 1973 and a federal lawyer for 20 years.

He has been chief draftsman of the Canada Pension Plan, the present Divorce Act, the Official Languages Act, the major tax changes of the early 1970s.

He was chief legislative counsel in the justice department while Trudeau and John Turner were justice ministers. As such, he advised them on dozens of constitutional problems involving the law, including his own father's unsuccessful assault on the language law.

"I'm not there because of an expertise in constitutional law," he said in an interview this week. "I'm there because I was engaged in making the constitution work for a long time."

His new job, he says, deals with "where we're going" as a country.

"It isn't issue-oriented. It's concerned with the framework we're going to be living with in the future. It's pretty fascinating stuff."

Thorson hopes jurisdictional jealousies that have marked past constitutional discussions can be put aside. The knack would be to find out "who does what best"—Ottawa or the provinces—and assign jurisdiction on this basis in any revision of the British North America Act.

Provincial involvement in opening the issues is basic. But what if Quebec's independence-minded government won't talk? Ottawa, says Thorson, would then go to the people.

Thorson, who has received tempting offers from several law firms that would have given him more time with his family—he has three daughters, Jennifer, 18, Rebecca, 16 and Stephanie, 11—and put him above his $60,000-a-year federal salary, obviously is taking the job for its irresistible challenge. Some colleagues see him as one of Confederation's saviors.

Millions Made

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government had net revenues of $115.71 million from the sale of Olympic coins and stamps up to March 31, according to a report tabled in the Commons Tuesday by Finance Minister Donald Macdonald.

Quebec Tory 'Mafia' Slammed by Wagner

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MP Claude Wagner said Tuesday that a small group of party members from Quebec are waging a vendetta against him.

Despite the group he called "the little mafia of Quebec," Wagner said he plans to remain in the party.

Wagner's comments to reporters outside the Commons followed criticism of the Quebec MP from Roche LaSalle, member for the Quebec riding of Joliette, and Michael Meighen of Montreal, president of the Conservative party.

LaSalle and Meighen had upbraided Wagner after the MP for Ste. Hyacinthe criticized the leadership of Joe Clark in the five recent Quebec byelections. The Liberals won four of the contests and the Social Credit party retained one seat.

Wagner said he had not meant to criticize the leadership of Clark, only the advice given to him and the resulting strategy in the byelections.

Wagner, who narrowly lost the Conservative leadership to Clark last year, especially criticized LaSalle, who subsequently replaced Wagner as Clark's Quebec lieutenant.

LaSalle suggested Monday that if Wagner was not happy under the leadership of Clark, he should leave.

Wagner said LaSalle, who temporarily left the Conservative party a few years ago to sit as an independent, was the expert on defections.

"What LaSalle says doesn't keep me from sleeping," Wagner said.

95 Moving, Paper Says

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says it has learned that Canadian Pacific Ltd. will transfer 95 employees from its pension fund and money management divisions to Toronto by the end of the summer.

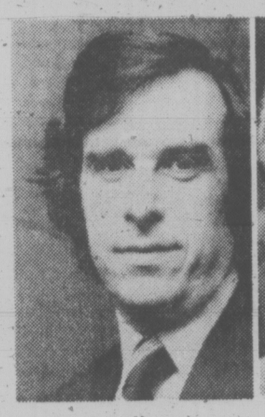

The move will affect 25 portfolio managers, investment administrators and clerical staff who manage assets of the Canadian Pacific pension fund and 70 investment planners and traders who invest the company's available cash in money markets, the newspaper says.

The Gazette quotes an unnamed CP Ltd. official as saying the decision to move was taken to give CP Ltd. investment personnel "better working contact in Toronto where many of the specialized people are now located."

The official denied that the political situation in Quebec had affected the decision to move.

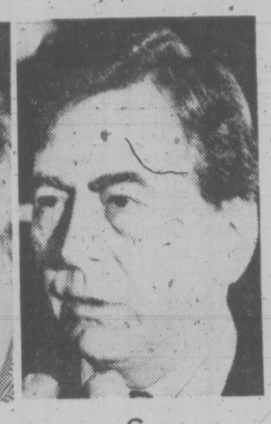

Non-Quebec French Rights To Be Probed by Ottawa

Tellier

Blais

Guay

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will set up an inter-departmental committee to study the rights of French-speaking minorities outside Quebec, Prime Minister Trudeau announced Tuesday.

Trudeau told a news conference he hoped the study would be completed by September and the government would be able to decide what to do.

The rights of the French-speaking minorities outside Quebec must be safeguarded "If we are not to have just French in Quebec and English elsewhere," Trudeau said after meeting representatives of the Federation des Francophones Hors Quebec.

The federation says it represents more than one million French-Canadians outside Quebec.

Accompanying Trudeau at the meeting with the federation were two cabinet ministers who come from French-speaking areas of mainly English-speaking provinces — Postmaster-General Jean-Jacques Blais of northern Ontario and Multiculturalism Minister Joe Guay of St. Boniface near Winnipeg.

The ministers and Paul Tellier, a privy council executive dealing with national unity, are expected to be leaders in the study.

Federation representatives are to meet with Tellier later this week, said Donatien Gaudet, federation president, who added:

"We are happy to know that the government will take some action."

He said he believed the prime minister and his government "have committed themselves to a global policy for francophones across the country."

A recently-released federation report claimed French-Canadians were still being assimilated into the English-speaking majority and that most provinces lacked enough French schools and services in such domains as the courts and medical facilities.

No Mud At PQ, Says QFL

QUEBEC (CP) — Louis Laberge, president of the Quebec Federation of Labor, said Tuesday the QFL is willing to establish a different relation with the Parti Quebecois government than the confrontation-style relations it had with the former Liberal government.

Laberge told 400 delegates to the 10th congress of the Quebec council of the Canadian Union of Public Employees that the PQ government "is a government we don't have the right to throw mud at."

The government of Premier Rene Levesque has already publicly promoted an "anti-scab" law and a new safety and health code defined and controlled by workers, he said.

The CNTU continued stubbornly to hold on to its policy of conflict relations with the other social partners, Laberge charged.

The CNTU, which decided at the last minute to attend the economic conference, had criticized Laberge for his willingness to participate.

Laberge said the economic conference was successful in getting a consensus to modify the safety and health codes for workers, to "civilize a little the management and the government, to make them less violent."

Duplessis Comeback

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Levesque said Tuesday his government soon will unveil a statue of former premier Maurice Duplessis which has been kept in a government warehouse for more than 15 years.

Levesque said feelings concerning the former UN premier, who died in 1959, were too hot in the past to permit unveiling of the statue but "the time was more than ripe" to do so now. Autonomy was the theme of Duplessis's relations with the federal government in the 1940s and '50s.

Dumbells of First World War Are Being Revived

OTTAWA (CP) — The First World War has been called by some the singing war, and for a lot of young Canadians the last music they heard was The Dumbell Rag.

Memories of the war and the troupe of players drawn from the Canadian Army Third Division are being revived for a new musical at this year's Charlottetown Summer Festial, The Legend of the Dumbells.

For the antics and songs of the Dumbells have become a legend with the sudden death this month of the last of the original seven, pianist Jack Ayer, aged 83.

"I spent a day with Jack Ayer and he was in the prime of life," said Alan Lund, artistic director of the Charlottetown Festival and producer of the show.

"He played all their old tunes for me and relived the entire 1917 period of their formation, he sang me some of their songs and showed me their old posters. Three days later he died."

The Dumbells were formed in 1917 and named after the crossed dumbells of the Third Division's insignia. Capt. Merton Plunkett, a YMCA worker with the troops, brought them together for their first variety show near Vimy Ridge in France.

Other countries were able to send concert parties to Europe to entertain their troops, but for the Canadians it was a case of making do with what talent they had.

And the Dumbells had such talent that after the war they continued performing, including engagements at the Coliseum in London, the Grand Theatre in Toronto, and the Ambassador Theatre on Broadway.

They continued touring until their show died under pressure from motion pictures, the death of vaudeville, and growing lack of interest in wartime entertainment as the world moved into the 1930s.

But in their heyday they introduced such still-remembered songs as Pack Up Your Troubles, Tipperary, Roses of Piccardy, and Oh What a Lovely War.

Lund, who was here last week to revive By George! at the National Arts Centre for this season's run in Charlottetown, said his show will be not just a revival of the Dumbells, but a story about how they were created and what happened to them.

"The old soldiers I've talked to tell me it was really a singing war. Life expectancy for troops at the front in 1917 was seven days, and the average of an officer was 19."

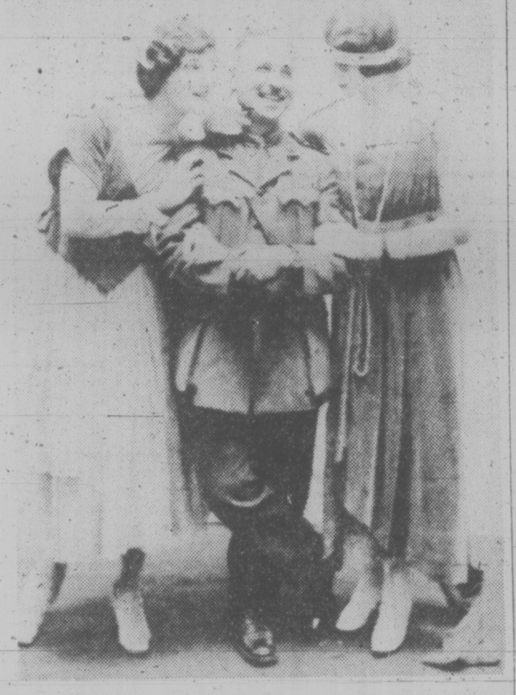

Plunkett found his players here and there. One was a sergeant who had a talent for mimicing his colonel. Another could dance, and one, Ross Hamilton, had a high tenor or counter-tenor voice.

He of course became Marjorie. Since there were no women at the front, the Dumbells had to create Marjorie. And Hamilton in drag became a star.

Their theme song was The Dumbell Rag, and the troops whistled it regularly.

For this year's Charlottetown Summer Festival, the perennial Anne of Green Gables is being put on again, along with By George! And for the first time, a fourth show will be staged in a small studio theatre across the street from the Confederation Centre in Charlottetown.

The Road to Charlottetown, a review-type show about the Fathers of Confederation, will be staged by a Toronto company in the Mackenzie. It will be an alternative to the main productions for people who can't get tickets on sold-out nights.

New Checklist For Executives

NEW YORK(AP) — Qualifications for chief executive officers in the future will be quite different from those of today, finds International Management.

The réason, says J. Russell Boner, editor-in-chief of the magazine, is that the next few years are expected to bring accelerating change to the business scene, "creating problems for which firms have had neither precedence nor experience."

The ideal candidate, the publication says, should:

—Understand the inner workings of legislative and administrative units of government at all levels;

—Have demonstrated ability to deal with militant environmental and consumer groups;

—Possess extensive international experience;

—Have proven ability to generate profits and protect shareholder investment through strong centralized financing controls;

—Be responsive to worker demands for job security, and be willing to share management decisions and authority with employees.

June: Flowering Time for Cistus

June is the main flowering months for the Cistus group of shrubs. Don't confuse this name with Cytisus which is one of the Brooms. Both names are from the Greek: Cistus from kistos, meaning a Rockrose; Cytisus from kytisos meaning trefoil, the three leaves of many of the species plants. This helps to keep the names straight in our minds.

The Cistuses are limited in their natural home to the warm rocky Mediterranean shores, so that we are constantly surprised at the hardiness of some of the species in the Victoria area. This is in part due to the usually dry summers.

Other requirements for success of these showy and altogether lovely shrubs may be contrived by the home gardener who wishes to enjoy their beauty. Give them a light, rather poor soil, good drainage (for winter this is essential) and full exposure to sunshine.

Two to three-inch wide open saucers are either pink, a deeper rose or white, with a sort of crinkly sheen, like slightly rumpled silk. Each flower is centred with a cluster of yellow stamens. It resembles our native Rosa nutkana.

Gardens bordering salt water are particularly suited for growing these summer shrubs. Rocky or gravelly soil is usual there, and salt air is to their liking. Since our winters are not like those of the Mediterranean area, we must be sure there is dense shrub protection or a building to the northeast as protection against the coldest of our winter winds.

The names of hybrid Cistus become confusing for seedlings are easy to raise and these may differ a little from the parent plants. The best way to obtain a plant that appeals to you is to find which nursery or garden centre already has them in stock. Then visit during June to catch the display of flowers.

Remmember Cistus flowers are a fresh show each day, for promptly at an invisible signal a shrub drops every petal somewhere around six o'clock by Pacific Daylight Time.

Our two large Cistus laurifolius just now have hundreds of buds almost ready to open. After the first day I shall know again the moment of the daily petal fall. More buds develop as the month progresses. It would be of interest to count the seedpods when all buds have opened and petals fallen. Each year, these are promptly clipped off to encourage the new growth and it would be possible to keep a rough count of the number of clusters and then estimate the total. Probably thousands on a five foot, 10 year old shrub.

This is a fascinating genus to become interested in, for variations occur in seedlings as they flower, some having maroon blotches of varying size on the petals, others with foliage that varies from light green to greyish to dark green.

Alcan Route Backed By U.S. for Gas Pipe

Canadian Press

Canadian legislators have been told the United States probably would prefer the Alaska-Canada natural gas pipeline route rather than one down the Mackenzie Valley.

At the conclusion of a four-day conference of Canadian and U.S. legislators, MP David Macdonald said the gas pipelines were the major topic of concern for the section discussing energy.

Macdonald (PC—Egmont) said U.S. congressmen made it clear that there would be serious objections from the Americans if Canada decided to go ahead with the Mackenzie Valley route.

"It was possible the U.S. would proceed with its own Trans-Alaska route shipping liquefied natural gas in tankers down the British Columbia coast, in competition with the Mackenzie Valley line, Macdonald said, "and then we'd have the worst of all possible worlds — all the damage a pipeline would cause and more tankers than ever down the coast."

Macdonald said the U.S. legislators felt the Mackenzie Valley route would mean that Alaska could not get full benefits from all its own gas and would mean higher prices to consumers in the U.S. Midwest, the prime customers for the gas.

However, most U.S. legislators seemed to feel the Alaska-Canadian route running parallel to the Alaska Highway would be a suitable compromise.

Although it would not be as advantageous to the U.S. as the Trans-Alaska route, it would remove the tanker problem, as far as gas is concerned, so would probably be acceptable, he said.

Talks at the conference were divided into three main areas: energy, the environment and economic matters.

Canadian Senator Daniel Land said the main purpose of the talks, held annually, is for each side to educate the other, and no specific recommendations come from the discussions.

However, governments sometimes act on the basis of what they learn at the talks. He cited the example of the Garrison Diversion project in North Dakota which is being approached much more carefully by the U.S. because of complaints made by Canadians about harm that would be done to Manitoba.

World-Wide Railways Beg for Cash

By DON DALLAS

LONDON (Reuter) — Railway chiefs around the world have experienced successes and setbacks in running battles with their governments to get funds, according to a new reference book.

Last year was disappointing for those who believe there is an urgent need to revitalize speedily the world's rail systems, says Paul Goldback, editor of the 1977 edition of the authoritative Jane's World Railway Systems.

"Despite the obvious need for modernized rail facilities to cope with growing world requirements for more efficient transport systems, governments generally still are reluctant to invest a fair share of public funds in better railway networks," he says.

Other countries in a similar category are the United States, West Germany, France and Britain — and all face problems of increased costs because of running expenses and development plans.

Referring to Japanese National Railways, Goldback says the deficit for the fiscal year 1975 was a record-breaking 32.3 billion.

"Neither efficient management nor the success of high-speed services over JNR's shinkansen super railway network have been able to sort out the railway's finances," he continues.

"Main problem is that JNR's operating income for several years has suffered from a paltry series of rate increases that have been neither adequate nor timely."

Goldsack says that for railroads in the United States 1976 was a "mixed bag" of a year. Financial performance had improved after the low of 1975.

In France, passenger traffic became more profitable last year and the national railways obtained an increased investment budget from the government.

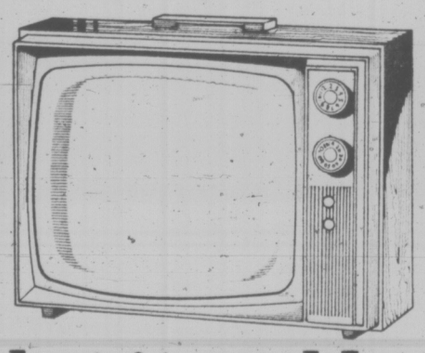

High-speed train operations in France have proved successful. Construction of the new Paris-Lyon line, on which hith-speed trains will operate, began last year.

The reference book illustrated new double-deck coaches introduced on the French railway system in the suburbs of Paris last year. Each can carry 175 passengers and the entrance doors at each end are almost six feet wide, to ensure fast boarding.

Early last year, the German railway system Deutsche Bundesbahn proposed, in a report to the government, to cut the present rail network by almost a half as an economy measure.

He adds that Deutsche Bundesbahn cost West German taxpayers in 1975 a total of $2.25 billion — a figure that could rise to $12.4 billion by 1985 if no cuts are made.

Britain's Top Earners Fleeing From Taxman

LONDON (Reuter) — For centuries Britain's shores beckoned to refugees fleeing from illiberal regimes in other countries.

These days there is a movement the other way. More and more people are leaving Britain to escape the taxman.

This applies particularly to the big earners, like top pop stars. The Rolling Stones, Rod Stewart and Led Zeppelin have all declared themselves voluntary tax exiles. Last year, their absence cost Britain an estimated £1 billion ($1.7 billion) in lost revenue.

One of the latest to leave is American film producer Cubby Broccoli, who made his name and fortune from the James Bond films and had lived here for 25 years.

Broccoli is leaving not only because of tax reasons but also because he finds it difficult to persuade tax-conscious actors to work in Britain.

Dr. Crick, together with American Dr. James Watson, discovered the structure of the genetic substance DNA at the laboratory of molecular biology in Cambridge. Now he is planning to take up a permanent post at the Salk Institute in La Jolla, Calif.

Shortly after this became known, Dr. Max Perutz, another Nobel laureate, announced that he and other senior scientists at Cambridge were contemplating a similar step.

A chief factor is the new tax law of 1974. This aimed at blocking a loophole which had allowed tax evasion through the payment of salaries through an overseas agency. But it also blocked the route by which academics traditionally bolstered their relatively low British salaries with American lecture tours.

The cases of Crick and Perutz prompted The Times to comment in an editorial on "the ridiculous level of British taxation."

"In any country like the United Kingdom, or Sweden, after decades of increasingly progressive taxation, financing rising public expenditure, the very rich are going to have inevitable income tax problems," it said.

But it added that when eminent people leave, the country almost certainly loses more than it gains. "First there is the social loss of the contribution which these individuals could make to society in the widest sense . . . The socialist stereotype is that very high income is almost exclusively associated with inherited wealth and a particular social class. In fact many tax exiles are actors, entertainers, writers and others. . ."

This attracted a large colony of English authors and television writers, including novelists Len Deighton and Frederick Forsyth.

Forsyth said: "When a company or an individual can show beyond a shred of doubt that he has by his efforts earned enormous sums in foreign currency then I think there should be an encouragement for him to go on and earn more and stay around and keep on earning more."

The same Times editorial urged Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey to begin the process of restoring sense to the tax system in his annual budget.

In fact, Healey announced that those Britons who worked overseas for more than 30 days would be relieved from paying tax on the first 25 per cent of their income earned abroad.

Tax Relief Swap For Dog Control?

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

Capital Region District chairman Jim Campbell feels confident the district will get some tax relief from the provincial government in return for assuming responsibility for dog control.

"I assume that it is just a question of the amount rather than the principle," he said in an interview.

The principle involved is whether the municipal affairs ministry should reduce the amount of tax levied against unorganized areas to compensate for dog control costs.

The province told the regional districts last November that it wanted out of dog control in unorganized areas.

In return for taking on the new responsibility the districts would be given a $1,000 grant, the average of the compensation payments made over the past two years to those whose livestock was killed by marauding canines as well as the revenue from dog licences.

The CRD rejected this offer saying it was not adequate compensation.

However, in a letter to Campbell May 3, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt suggested the district approach Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis to see if there could be compensation by way of a reduction of the 10-mill rate levied against regional districts.

Campbell said the district will draw up a budget outlining the costs of dog control as well as the expected remuneration from the province and present it to Curtis in a matter of weeks.

He is optimistic Curtis will agree to the tax relief route because Hewitt made the suggestion after talking with the municipal affairs minister.

Campbell said he would have liked the province to look after dog control and added he doesn't expect the responsibility under district management will be a money maker.

"If they won't do it we'll have to and it is going to cost money," he said.

Campbell himself was a victim of marauding dogs when 13 of his choice ewes were killed a couple of years ago on his Saturna Island property.

He said there is a serious dog control problem in Metchosin, parts of the Colwood-Langford area as well as on the Gulf Islands.

Al Pelter, head of the livestock branch of the agriculture ministry, said the government wanted out of the dog control program because it found most of the time spent by those involved was on non-agricultural matters.

He said the Central Okanagan district has assumed responsibility for dog control and in return has been given some tax relief from the government.

He said four other regional districts are looking seriously at the matter.

Pelter said Neil Rhodes, the province's only domestic animal protection officer, will be transferred shortly to other responsibilities.

In his letter to Campbell May 3, Hewitt said his ministry will continue for the balance of this year to pay for enforcement and administration of dog control.

He said he expects the district to have a dog control bylaw in place for next year.

Hewitt suggested the district be given the authority immediately to hire one full time enforcement officer with provision for a second part-time person if this appears necessary.

Crystal Fate in Private Hands

Public initiatives have failed in the years-old dream to rehabilitate the Crystal Garden building, and now it's up to private enterprise to see whether the building can be saved.

Victoria city council decided Tuesday to invite proposals from the private sector for restoring the Crystal Garden to some form of commercial use.

The action came at the urging of Mayor Mike Young, who said it was "obvious" that provincial and city efforts in that direction had failed and that there is some urgency in preventing further deterioration of the ailing structure.

Young said all proposals for the broadest and most attractive use of the Crystal would be considered, as long as they do no entail any initial commitment of taxpayers' dollars.

"I don't think we can refuse any proposal," he said, "but obviously we cannot offer the same terms to someone wanting to buy the building as we can to someone wanting to lease it for 99 years."

Ald. Bob Wright suggested that no conditions be attached to the call for development proposals, adding: "Let's first see what's out there."

Among other private proposals in recent years which got nowhere was one to convert the derelict pool into a "dolphinarium," complete with associated marine attractions.

SMOKE WORTH 5½ MINUTES?

LONDON (Reuter) — A cigarette smoker shortens his life span by about 5.5 minutes for each cigarette smoked, a report released today says.

However, the study by the Royal College of Physicians on all aspects of smoking, say that if a smoker kicks the habit, his extra risk of dying before his time disappears in 10 to 15 years.

Summarizing the findings of their third report on smoking, the College says: "Cigarette smoking is still as important a cause of death as were the great epidemic diseases of the past."

It notes that though deaths from lung cancer have been declining in men under 65, they have been increasing in women over 45.

"But under the age of 65 smokers are about twice as likely to die of coronary heart disease as are non-smokers and heavy smokers about 3.5 times as likely," the study says.

"The mortality of women from coronary heart disease and their consumption of cigarettes are both rising. Sudden death may be the first manifestation of coronary heart disease and, especially in young men, is related to cigarette smoking."

FERRY OFFICERS' AGENT URGED

By MIKE HUGHES
Times Staff

The B.C. Labor Relations Board has laid out conditions which will ensure that B.C. Ferries officers are adequately represented in the decision-making process of the new union representing all ferry employees.

In his ruling, released Tuesday, LRB chairman Paul Weiler grants certification to the B.C. Ferry and Marine Workers Union to represent all the employees.

However, Weiler also suggests the union, an off-shoot of the marine services — general component of the B.C. Government Employees Union, appoint a six-member committee to select a special business agent to look after the interests of the officers.

There are about 500 officers in the new union, and the remaining 1,800 in the group are unlicensed ferry workers, clerks and tradesmen.

When the LRB ruled last month that all ferry workers should be represented by one group instead of bargaining as separate components the officers expressed concern that they would not be adequately represented.

There has been a long-standing internal rift between the officers and unlicensed groups and it surfaced during last month's four-hour strike by the officers.

George Hornett, chairman of the ferry and marine workers union, said today the two groups have had their differences but that is all in the past.

"We've got to get on with the job," he said. "the name of the game now is fair and equitable opportunities for all parties."

Hornett of Victoria has served for the past 14 years as chairman for the unlicensed personnel, the same term served by Norm Thornber as business agent for the group. Thornber continues in the same role with the new union.

Peter Marshall, who represented the officers during their recent strike, is still a BCGEU staff representative but union general-secretary John Fryer said today he has no specific assignment.

Fryer said he suggested to Marshall that he apply for the special business agent job with the new union.

Hornett said he does not know at this stage whether single bargaining unit for officers and unlicensed personnel is good or bad.

He said it is something that had never been tried in the marine industry.

"We've are certainly going to have to make it work," he said, adding that his union, prior to Weiler's, one-unit ruling, had been pushing for two separate groups.

CITY BLACK MARKET BARED

Laetrile . . . for a Price

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Laetrile — the controversial cancer treatment substance damned by the medical profession as useless — is readily available in Victoria to people with the right contacts and enough cash, a former cancer patient claims.

The man, a Victoria resident in his 30s who asked not to be identified, says he has been taking laetrile for three years and pays $60 to $65 a week for the drug which he gets through a local source.

He estimates there are about 1,000 persons on Vancouver Island in the same boat and some pay as much as $125 a week.

While some persons smuggle in their own supplies from Mexico and Germany, he says a number buy it directly from established contacts in Victoria.

The contacts include, he says, some "very rich and prominent individuals."

"They're bringing it in at great personal risk and little or no profit," he says. "To us, they're like Robin Hoods."

Laetrile is classified as an "uncleared new drug" by the federal drug inspection service. It can't be sold or advertised in Canada. But there is no prohibition against possessing it or even importing it, provided it is used solely by the importer.

The man says there is a laetrile blackmarket in Seattle to which some cancer sufferers have turned and he said he knows of a drug store in Vancouver where the substance is sold under the counter at exorbitant prices.

All of the local deals are handled on a special consignment basis and adds he is aware of at least two doctors who are steering cancer patients to the right people to get the drug.

"You'd be suprised at just who's involved in this thing," he says. "There are lawyers, doctors and business people."

He agrees the cost of the treatment is grossly inflated.

Laetrile, after all, is nothing more than pure amygdalin, a nitriloside found in the pits of apricots, peaches and plums as well as about 1,500 other plants.

"Sure it's a rip-off," he says. "But if you have cancer you'll pay anything to try to get a remedy.

"But you can't blame the people who sell or take laetrile for its high cost. It's the position taken by doctors and the government that has made it so expensive.

"They've made it illegal and the law has made us all criminals."

He says that 3½ years ago he was diagnosed as having terminal stomach and intestinal cancer. Doctors gave him six months to live.

He says he spent a small fortune criss-crossing the United States seeking medical advice. He saw 15 specialists, the top men in the cancer field. They all told him there was nothing they could do.

Finally someone suggested laetrile. He went to Mexico, and spent $3,000 on a three-week treatment program that involved massive injections of the substance.

When he left he was put on a special diet and advised to continue taking laetrile to prevent the cancer from recurring.

Three years have now passed and, he says, he no longer has symptoms of the disease. He has regained 80 of the 100 pounds he lost during his illness and says: "I've never felt fitter."

He doesn't believe, however, the treatment alone was a cure.

"Laetrile, doesn't fight cancer as such," he says. "What it does, and pareticularly the diet, is supply the body with the necessary vitamins to ensure good health.

"Together they build up the body and keep it from being starved by the cancer. You'll never see a fat person die of the disease. In this case, fat can be beautiful."

UN Action Sought On Rhodesian Raid

United Press International

Britain and the United States are considering possible joint action, including an appeal to the UN Security Council, to compel Rhodesia to withdraw its troops from Mozambique, the British Foreign Office said today.

A spoksman said the British government always has ruled out major military action against Rhodesia, "but an appeal to the Security Council is a possibility."

The statement came amid warnings that the invasion by Rhodesia could trigger "a serious military conflict" and disrupt attempts to neigtiate a peaceful transition to black rule.

A defiant Rhodesia, meanwhile, says its troops have captured a Mozambican town and will remain deep inside Mozambique until they "eliminate" black nationalist guerrillas headquarters there.

Lt. Gen. Peter Walls, the Rhodesian military commander, said Tuesday his troops have now destroyed four guerrilla bases and penetrated as far as 47 miles inside Mozambique where they captured the town of Mapai.

The invasion has disrupted "the chain of command and logistical support" of the Zimbabwe African National Liberation Army, the guerrilla group led by Robert Mugabe, he said.

Rhodesian troops have killed 32 guerrillas but lost none of their own men, Walls added.

"Would I have liked to kill hundreds? Yeah. Sure," Walls said.

The four guerrilla bases destroyed so far included "a major administrative centre" three miles inside Mozambique, a main supply and logistics headquarters outside Mapai and two welcoming centers for recruits at Jorge do Limpopo and Madulo Pan.

Wall said no Mozambican civilians have been killed "as far as I know" and that there "probably" were no civilians in Mapai when the town fell.

"This goes far beyond hot pursuit (of guerrillas) and raises issues of the utmost seriousness challenging the territorial integrity of a member state of the United Nations," British Foreign Secretary David Owen said.

Secretary-general Kurt Waldheim, in a statement released at UN headquarters, demanded the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of the Rhodesian troops.

JAPAN OFFICE EYED BY B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The provincial government may establish an office in Japan to promote tourism and trade, says Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy.

McCarthy, minister responsible for the travel industry, told the Pan Pacific Congress of Real Estate Appraisers that about 50,000 Japanese tourists visit British Columbia each year, in addition to 20,000 from other Pacific nations.

B.C. already had trade and tourism promotion offices in San Francisco and Los Angeles, she said.

McCarthy said later that no final decision had been reached, but indicated her office and the ministry of economic development were compiling statistical information for the cabinet.

The provincial secretary also told the congress the social credit government was combating unemployment through the encouragement of private enterprise.

She said there had been an over-reaction to environmental problems, adding, "there is a worse pollution problem in the province than the environment can ever be, and that is the pollution of unemployment."

Drunk Blocks Friday

Greater Victoria police departments will have roving roadblocks one duty Friday night for the first skirmish in the province's new war on drinking drivers.

City police chief Jack Gregory said his traffic division will be bolstered by auxiliary policemen as they are for the regular Christmas roadblocks.

And Insp. Bob Rivers, head of the RCMP traffic division, says the force will "back to the hilt" Attorney-General Garde Gardom's assault on the drinking driver — even if it means overtime and redeployment of manpower.

Money and manpower are assigned by priorities, and the drinking driver is a priority, he said, pointing out there were 630 road deaths in B.C. last year.

Spill Flows Into Alt.

FORT ST. JOHN (CP) — Some oil from a 2,500-barrel spill got past containment booms on the Peace and Pine Rivers and was flowing into Alberta Tuesday.

More than 112,000 gallons of oil had spewed from a rupture, 28 inches long and four inches wide, which occurred Friday in a 12-inch pipeline owned by Westcoast Petroleum Co. Ltd., the line runs along Stewart Creek, which empties into the Pine river.

Robert Lawrence of Calgary, Westcoast president, said cost of the cleanup is expected to be $400,000.

Build Defence Forces Or Join U.S.—Boyle

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

If Canada isn't prepared to spend money on defence, it should become part of the United States, Vice-Admiral Douglas Boyle said Tuesday.

"Everyone has life insurance and that's what defence expenditure is," he said. "If we're not prepared to have that life insurance, we should pack it up as a country and become the 52nd state."

The hard-hitting admiral, who retires as commander maritime command on July 4, said the navy now has 20 ships in operation and these should be replaced in the next 20 years. He estimated it will cost $300 million a year to start the ship replacement program.

Boyle said to build six ships within the next eight years will cost between $2.3 billion and $2.4 billion. Apart from construction costs, millions will have to be spent on designs, duty for imported equipment, purchase and design of computer programs, as well as 12 per cent sales tax.

"But the money will be spent in Canada and will provide jobs and help Canadian shipyards," he said.

Boyle warned that undue delay in the ship replacement program will "be critical".

Boyle said officials are divided into two camps on what sort of vessels should replace the againg Canadian fleet. One group wants the most modern of fighting ships while the other is promoting patrol vessels.

"It's my view that we should have sophisticated ships that can do everything, both fight and deter, and do all of the whole patrol activity," Boyle said. "In our business, if you're not the best you get killed."

He said the defence department's paper on ship replacement is now before Defence Minister Barney Danson and he is hopeful a final decision will be made before Parliament ends the current session.

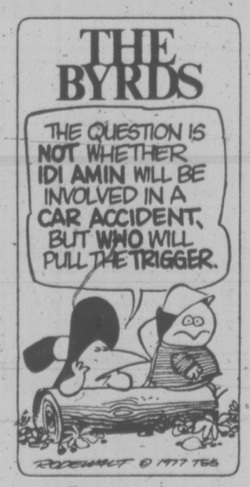

Boyle said a "credible warship" would be between 36,000 and 38,000 tons and slightly smaller than the destroyer-helicopter HMCS Athabaskan that visited Esquimalt earlier this year.

Will the government approve the ship replacement proposals?

"Our government is very nationalistic and I think there is a reasonable chance we will get a ship replacement program," Boyle said.

He reacted angrily when one reporter suggested Canada allow the U.S. to shoulder some of its naval responsibilities.

Dutch Accept Mediator Plea

GLIMMEN The Netherlands (UPI) — The Dutch government has accepted a mediation request by Moluccan gunmen holding 60 hostages aboard a hijacked train and in a school for the 10th day, a spokesman said.

But he said there was still disageement on who the mediator or mediators would be.

The estimated 15 gunmen had proposed two persons as mediators Tuesday, but these has not been accepted by the government, he said. The government in turn proposed two persons Wednesday, but the gunmen rejected them, the spokesman said.

The spokesman did not identify any of the proposed mediators, or specify why they had not been acceptable.

A man meanwhile, collapsed today aboard the hijacked train where Moluccan gunmen were holding 56 hostages for the 10th day but the gunmen "emphatically" refused to release the man.

The spokesman said a 23-year-old female medical student, also among the hostages, told them she had treated the man and that he was now "Okay."

The government pleaded again with the gunmen to release a pregnant woman hostage, as well as the man who collapsed, but the Moluccans "emphatically refused," the spokesman said.

GOOD FOR MAGGOTS . . .

BANGKOK (UPI) — A Bangkok newspaper urges housewives to buy maggot-nibbled vegetables when shopping in the market.

"Housewives must keep in mind that vegetables which have been eaten by maggots are much safer for their family," the English-language Daily Morning Express advised its readers.

The newspapers said a nutritionist claims maggots are a sign the vegetables are not contaminated by pesticides.

No Rent Control End Until November

Legislation to begin phasing out rent controls in some areas of British Columbia is expected to be introduced this month but won't take effect before November.

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair said Tuesday he expects rent controls will be removed for some parts of B.C. before year's end.

The proposals have yet to be approved by cabinet.

If cabinet approves, the legislation would be introduced in the session starting June 13 as part of amendments to the Landlord and Tenant Act.

The amendments would also produce a better balance between the rights of landlords and tenants, Mair said.

The present act "is now tilted slightly in favor of the tenant," he said.

The change would not be severe. He said the act once favored the landlords but in recent years was amended to favor the tenants. Now it will be brought into balance.

He did not give details.

The cabinet will consider a number of proposals for phasing out rent controls, including the Alberta plan.

In Alberta, rent controls are being phased out over three years by gradually reducing the rent level at which controls are applied.

Areas where the construction level is high (and the vacancy rate high enough for an orderly market) would be considered for either removal or phase-out of controls before year's end.

This could be in addition to some version of the Alberta plan.

However, no areas could be designated before October, the date of the next vacancy rate survey by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Therefore the first designations are not expected before November or December.

First areas to be designated would be small communities with high vacancy rates.

Victoria real estate agents believe this area will be a strong candidate for designation by year's end, with a vacancy rate at eight per cent or higher.

TENANT WAKES UP TO WILEY LANDLORD

Police said a 26-year-old woman awakened Tuesday to find a man in her bed kissing her. The woman was able to talk the man into leaving.

Port Angeles Oil Port Step Closer

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Support for an oil port at or west of Port Angeles would become state policy if a bill that passed the House Tuesday ultimately becomes law.

But the first major oil shipment legislation of the current session still has some formidable hurdles to clear before that happens.

The measure, passed by a hefty 71 to 20 and shed a proposed amendment that would have banned any oil transshipment through the State unless mandated by federal decisions.

What happens to the measure in the Senate is open to question. No comparable legislation has been worked on there but Governor Dixy Lee Ray has opposed proposals by Northern Tier Pipeline Co. to establish such an oil superport. She favors using existing facilities at Cherry Point near Bellingham for transshipment.

It also required location of any oil trans-shipment point "at or west of Port Angeles."

Accused Lawyer Unfit Guardian, Trial Told

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Victoria lawyer was not a fit guardian of a 69-year-old woman and was going to be removed, the dead woman's co-guardian testified Tuesday.

Olga Young was testifying at the British Columbia Supreme Court trial of her cousin, Eloise Roads Wilson, charged with second-degree murder in the Dec. 2, 1975, strangulation death of their cousin, Marion Hamilton of Vancouver.

Mrs. Young said that some days before Mrs. Hamilton was found dead, she told the accused she did not consider her a fit guardian and was going to have her removed.

She testified that on Dec. 1, 1975, she telephoned the accused at Mrs. Hamilton's house to tell her she would be there the next morning to see that either a nurse or a nurse's aide was brought in.

The next morning, she received a telephone call from Mrs. Wilson saying that Mrs. Hamilton was dead.

She said she and the accused disagreed frequently over the best way to provide for the specialized care Mrs. Hamilton required because of recurring periods of senility.

Mrs. Young said that although Mrs. Wilson said Mrs. Hamilton could not afford to be placed in a rest home, Royal Trust, which had been appointed to handle Mrs. Hamilton's financial affairs, said she could afford such care.

Mrs. Young said the accused told her that her cousin's assets were not to be touched in order to provide such care and that she (Mrs. Wilson) was prepared to give up her law practice on Vancouver Island and move in with Mrs. Hamilton to look after her full time.

Earlier, Mrs. Young testified that Mrs. Wilson had told her that because she (the accused) was to be sole heir to Mrs. Hamilton's estate, it was her duty to look after her.

The Crown alleges that Mrs. Wilson killed Mrs. Hamilton to get the estate of $175,000.

Pathologist Dr. Thomas Harmon testified earlier Tuesday that Mrs. Hamilton was strangled with a length of string recovered by police. He said certain irregularities in the string matched a groove around the victim's neck.

The trial continues.

Oxley Elected In New Denver

NELSON (CP) — John Oxley will take office June 7 as the mayor of New Denver, 35 miles north of here, replacing Vandroy Hansen, who resigned in mid-April to become village works supervisor.

Oxley, who is retired, beat out two other candidates in the municipal by-election Saturday that attracted 77 percent of the 336 eleigble voters. Also elected as alderman was James McDonaugh, a welder.

The aldermanic seat came open after Ald. Walter Thring quit his council seat in an unsuccessful bid for the mayoralty.

Canada Sending Aid to Haiti

OTTAWA (CP) — The Caribbean nation of Haiti, now in its third year of drought, will receive $2 million for relief.

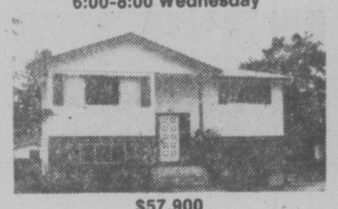

The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) said the Haitian Red Cross will receive $500,000 to meet immediate food requirements while the remaining $1.5 million will be channelled to it through the Canadian Red Cross under a special CIDA program.

Wallace Gets His Say

PARKSVILLE (VCP) — Dr. Scott Wallace will be allowed to get his views before the current food industry inquiry in every community where hearings are held.

More than a month ago, the Conservative leader and Liberal leader Gordon Gibson were denied seats on the 10-member committee by a majority Social Credit vote in the legislature. Both are the only members of their parties in the legislature.

WALLACE

Wallace got a commitment Tuesday that will allow him to present a brief on food industry problems at every community the committee holds hearings.

He said outside Tuesday's session that he will attend every hearing and "from what we have seen so far I will end up with a better attendance record than some committee members."

Earlier, other witnesses argued that:

—The Land Commission Act is unfair and should be scrapped.

—The Act should be retained to preserve farmland for future food needs.

—Consumers on Vancouver Island would have cheaper milk if chain stores were not allowed to ship in packaged milk from their corporate dairies to island communities, and if processing plants were expanded to utilize all milk produced on the island.

—An investigation should be made of major chain stores to determine why they do not purchase B.C.-produced pork products that are fresher than meat brought in from the United States or the Prairies.

Berger Stresses Arctic Values

Mr. Justice Thomas Berger said Tuesday he favors industrial development of the north but it must be in harmony with the environment of Canada's last frontier.

In a speech to the annual meeting of the Men's Canadian Club of Victoria at the Strathcona Hotel, he said Canada has only one chance to protect its northern environment.

A natural gas pipeline would trigger a surge of industrial activities, including an exploration boom and the demand for an oil pipeline.

Once the pipeline is started, the northern way of life would be changed.

"I do not want to be misunderstood about this. I am not proposing that we shut up the north as a kind of living folk museum and zoological gardens," he said.

"I have proceeded on the assumption that, in due course, the industrial system will require the gas and oil of the western Arctic and that they will have to be transported along the Mackenzie Valley to markets in the south."

However, it should be delayed until native peoples have adjusted to the new way of life — at least 10 years.

In addition, a nine-million-acre wilderness park should be created across the northern Yukon, including the Arctic coast, he said.

The area is the breeding ground for a herd of 110,000 caribou, a feeding ground for 500,000 snow geese and the habitat for the peregrine falcon, golden eagle, whistling swans, polar bear, grizzly, black bear, moose, wolf, fox, beaver, wolverine, lynx and muskrat.

"This wilderness has come down through the ages and it is a heritage that future generations, living in an industrial world even more complex than ours, will surely cherish," he said.

Berger outlined the pipeline options which he presented to the federal government.

That Alaska Highway route would be better than the Arctic Gas line which would cut through the northern Yukon (ruining the proposed wilderness park) and down the Mackenzie River Valley.

(Berger added that he could not formally endorse the Alaska Highway route because it is the subject of hearings.)

It would be possible now to construct a pipeline to bring Alaska gas along the Alaska Highway route into Alberta and then into the United States.

Later, in 10 years, Canada could construct its own pipeline to bring Arctic gas down the Mackenzie Valley.

Berger said he is opposed to any plan to bring U.S. gas down the Mackenzie, because this would mean construction of a pipeline through the northern Yukon from Alaska to the Mackenzie Valley.

This line, along the Arctic coast, should never be constructed, he said.

Berger favored continuation of oil and gas exploration in the discovery area to the right of the mouth of the Mackenzie River. But exploration and development should be banned in the left secteor because this is the natural breeding ground for 5,000 white whales. They have their calves in the warm waters from the Mackenzie and the young whales stay there until they have formed enough blubber to withstand the cold Arctic waters.

If they are pushed from this breeding area by oil exploration they may disappear from the north, Berger said.

Fortunately, he said, no oil or gas has been found in this breeding area.

However, the Canadian government should declare it a whale sanctuary and put it off limit for oil and gas exploration for all time. There is more than enough petroleum potential in other northern areas without intruding upon the whale's home, he said.

Berger also has recommended the establishment of bird sanctuaries in the Mackenzie Delta and along the Mackenzie Valley. Oil and gas exploration should be permitteid in these areas but only with the approval of the Canadian Wildlife Service, Berger said.

He said his concern for environmental values may have more support now than it would have three years ago. He said that when he started his study Canada had a shortage of natural gas. Now, however, it has a surplus and is able to export.

Later, Berger declined to discuss what his attitude would be if Ottawa attempts to water down his view in a compromise proposal.

"That is up to the government," he said. "My role was completed when I submitted the report."

Indian Expert Retires

On Tuesday, Emma Hunt, known to thousands of schoolchildren for her talks on native folklore and crafts, retires from the Provincial Museum. She sews, stitches, weaves, and makes baskets, such as this one she is holding.

Long-Gone Longhouse Was No Comfy Castle

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

— Living in the old-type Indian cedar board longhouse with an earthen floor and open fire wasn't exactly a "bed of roses," says Emma Hunt, 65-year-old Provincial Museum teacher who retired Tuesday.

Emma, known to thousands of Greater Victoria school children for her talks on native folklore and crafts, recalled she spent more than 12 years of her early life in an original Indian house.

"That was 60 years ago when my father's house burned down at Alert Bay," she said. "The family had no other alternative but to move into an abandoned Indian house."

She said the houses rebuilt as tourist attractions today might look romantic, but they were anything but comfortable, especially in winter.

"They could be cold, drafty and smoky," she said. "Someone always seemed to be either chopping or collecting wood from the beach for the open fire inside the house.

"I remember one day it hailed. We had to put mats over our beds to collect hail which came through cracks in the cedar roof."

She said the family enjoyed some privacy. They slept on raised platforms built around the side of the house which were partitioned with curtains or mats.

"But there were some compensations," she observed. "The family was drawn closer together. We would gather around the fire and tell stories for hours, or we would sing or dance."

One of her jobs, was to cook the meals. The pots were placed on stones placed around the fire. The size of the fire varied. At meal times it burned low. In the evening it was made to roar with logs six feet long.

Emma was employed as a part-time teacher of Indian culture in 1971 and three years ago became a member of the museum's permanent staff. Her husband, Tom, was the stepson of Chief Mungo Martin, famous Indian carver, who died in Victoria in 1962.

A kindly and thoughtful woman, Emma likes to describe herself as a craftsman of all sorts.

"I sew, stitch, weave, make baskets and blankets," she said. "But I'm no artist . . . I can't draw or paint on paper."

She likes to recall the heydays of the B.C. canning industry which employed hundreds of Indians and some Chinese during the 20s and 30s.

"We used to go to Rivers Inlet where three canning plants once operated," she related. "There we met representatives from all the coastal tribes, the canning season was a social event for the native people of B.C."

"When I think back," she added, "I can't help thinking how we have mis-managed our fisheries — a major source of food, once as plentiful as wheat. People today have no idea of how great those salmon runs were."

Emma is sorry she has to leave the museum.

"You know I don't know why people have to retire at 65 when they are in good health and still quite capable. I have enjoyed it here."

VSO Boosts Core, Hikes Players' Pay

Fourteen more professional musicians will be hired by the Victoria Symphony Orchestra and members will get a pay raise, the symphony society board decided Tuesday night.

The orchestra next season will have 29 professionals to form the core of the 65-member ensemble.

Musicians will receive an improved deal with the society as a result of the new master agreement which was adopted unanimously by the board on a motion of negotiating chairman Bob Wright.

Per service pay rate is raised 10 per cent to a minimum payment per service of $22. (The musicians' negotiating committee had been seeking a $24 minimum). All core players will receive a minimum of $26 per service. Services are concerts and rehearsals.

Other improvements include a rising scale of sick leave benefits and insurance on instruments deemed in the society's care while on tours or runouts — concerts more than 20 miles from the Royal Theatre.

Improvement in the financial position of the society was reported by honorary treasurer Ian E. Cairns.

A $52,000 deficit at the end of the season was projected at a January board meeting. However as a result of donations and other income — the Women's Committee has raised a total of $8,000 this season — the deficit may now range only between $5,000 and $10,000 by the time of the annual meeting June 29.

Laszlo Gati's resignation as musical director and conductor was accepted with regret. Formation of a selection committee to seek a replacement will be deferred for action by the in-coming board.

Dog Joins Search For Woman

An RCMP dog team from Nanaimo joined the search today for a 63-year-old Colwood woman who has been missing for a week.

Irma Zarft left her home at 2787 Jacklin last Wednesday morning without money nor medication she needs for an arterial condition.

A Colwood RCMP spokesman said the search will be concentrated in the Goldstream area where the woman frequently went on long walks.

Mrs. Zarft, described as five-feet five inches tall, 120 pounds with blue eyes and grey hair, was apparently suffering from acute depression at the time she disappeared.

Police said the woman has a recent history of wandering off for long periods of time.

Free Ferry 'Passport' For Tourists Praised

Mayor Young's proposal for a tourist passport giving visitors free ferry transportation if they stay one week or more was praised today by Visitors Information Centre president Ken King as "something that could really help Victoria."

King said he would like the mayor to refer the proposal to the tourist bureau for a feasibility study.

"We would like to take this on," King said. "Once we get the details ironed out we could find this will give the city a real boost. I am pleased that city hall is concerned about the tourist industry."

The mayor Tuesday told city council a free ferry ride would overcome the objections of U.S. and Lower Mainland residents that ferry fares are too high.

He said the cost of the ferry ride could be borne by Victoria merchants in cases where visitors are staying for at least one week.

He said all tourists should be issued with mock passports that list major city attractions and hotels.

The visitor would have the passport stamped at each location and at the end of the visit he would be able to redeem the ferry cost from the hotel where he stayed.

Merchants and operators of tourist attractions who subscribe to the scheme would pay a proportion of the rebate granted by the hotel.

Young said there would be no operating cost to the city, and the tourist industry itself would have to run the passport plan.

But the city would be prepared to help in setting up the program, and he said he is optimistic that there would be financial assistance from the provincial government in printing passports and generally promoting the idea.

Aldermen welcomed the proposal, which was turned over to Ald. Frank Carson, chairman of council's commercial development committee, to explore further with tourist industry representatives and downtown businessmen.

Ald. Bob Wright suggested that the Victoria Visitors Information Centre would be the appropriate agency to operate the program.

Such a novel invitation from Victoria to tourists at large would be certain to attract "international publicity," he predicted.

However, King today cautioned that it would not be possible to bring in the passport plan for the current tourist season.

"You can't just zap these things in without studying them carefully. It might be possible for next year if it looks attractive.

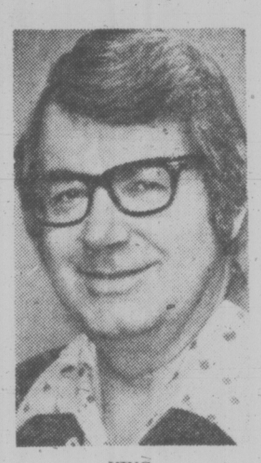

"We are already planning our Christmas packages and we are thinking ahead to next year. I am very encouraged by this proposal."

A spokesman for The Empress said "the idea is tremendous, if it works."

However, he wondered about the complexities of administering a program that involved stamping a passport at every stop made by the tourist.

In cases of large families the rebate could be quite high in relation to the amount spent in Victoria but over-all it might be a financial benefit.

He said it should be studied carefully before implemented.

Can Anybody Provide the Debaters With 36 French-Speaking Judges?

Rene Levesque's English-speaking friends and neighbors aren't the only ones whose headaches come in the guise of the French language.

Since the election of the Parti Quebecois, anglophones have found the tide of opportunity turning against them in Quebec; and many are leaving their home province.

Over here on the deaf and distant West Coast, the French language can often pose problems, too — but in a very different way. If you have to for any specific reason, it's often quite hard finding enough people here who speak it!

Harker, a school teacher, is president and Casey, a UVic student, is secretary of the Debate and Speech Association of B.C. And recently the association had the tricky problem of finding judges when Nathalie Cooke became one of four Victoria students chosen for the seven-member provincial team to compete in the annual Canadian Student Debating Seminar in St. Catharines, Ontario.

The "problem" was that Nathalie is bilingual and was the first French-speaking debater to be sent from B.C.

Now, Nathalie Cooke isn't your usual born-in-B.C. student. Pretty as a colleen straight from the Emerald Isle, she was born in India where her Irish father was a tea planter.

Nathalie has had the advantage of a mother who speaks French and the benefit of living in France for three months.

"We lived in a teeny weeny apartment in the back streets," she told me. "It was very small and very French and made learning the language easy."

As well as schooling in England, Nathalie learned French at Queen Margaret's School in Duncan, where her parents live, and is continuing her language instruction under Madame Rene Abrioux at Victoria's Norfolk House School

where, at 16, she is in Grade 11.

Anyway, Nathalie was good enough to be named to the B.C. team along with Gina Wilkinson of Norfolk House, Christina Banman of St. Margaret's and James Angus of St. Micheal's University School. The other three team members were all from public schools on the mainland.

All those from Victoria gave an extremely good account of themselves in St. Catharines and, in fact, Christina — an 18-year-old, Grade 12 student — was named best speaker in Canada and best debater in B.C. But it was before the team ever left here that the fireworks started.

The group had to rehearse its debate and none of the debate coaches could judge a debate in French.

"We contacted the high schools in Greater Victoria but none were able to provide a person who was both a debate coach and a francophone," Brian Casey told me. "We found out that UVic's debate coach can speak French but he wasn't available. And we got the same response from Royal Roads Military College. Finally, we tried the French department at UVic and they said Jean Pierre Mentha, who teaches the advanced oral courses, would be delighted to come to the rehearsal."

But Mentha only solved the problem for the time being and association officials are shuddering to think of what will happen next year when the national debating seminar is held here in May.

Firstly, like everyone else, the association is suffering from a lack of money. Formed in 1974 with the aid of a $5,000 grant from the NDP government (which officials were led to believe would be a continuing thing), the association hasn't seen a penny since. It has taken them over two years to squeeze another five grand out of the Socreds (officials have just been told another grant is forthcoming from the education department) and, as Chris Harker points out, that will only cover operating expenses for the year.

"It's going to cost at least $30,000 to stage the 1978 seminar and B.C. will be responsible for half of that," Harker said.

Yet, just as it is in Quebec, funding may turn out to be a secondary problem to language by the time the seminar comes along.

"We will then need 36 French-speaking judges," Casey explained with a sigh. "And they will be needed not only in Victoria but right across the province because next year the national seminar will not centre in a single city but will start in Kelowna, move to Vancouver and finish in Victoria."

Nathalie Cooke admits she doesn't know what will happen here.

"There was quite a bit of tension at St. Catharines," she said. "The bilingual people were getting upset that all the announcements were in English only. It wasn't until we francophone delegates were together that we spoke French."

Just wait till the "bilingual people" get over here and there's barely a hint of what is one of our country's two official languages! They'll have plenty to say . . . and it won't all be in debates.

It's another example of just how steep the road ahead is; and just how much understanding it's going to take to cement national unity.

The answer lies with the young. And don't be fooled by that recent little bit of propaganda that "more Victoria students, on a percentage basis are learning French than any other place in western Canada."

We've got a long way to go . . .

Q. What is the largest amount ever won by an individual in TV prizes? B.B.

A. Monty Hall, eat your heart out. The biggest prize-taker of them all was Teddy Nadler who collected $264,000 on quiz programs in the United States up to September, 1958. He reportedly had to pay $155,000 in federal and state taxes, and has been unemployed since.

Q. What is the maximum and minimum amount to take an action in Small Claims court?, B.O.

A. The maximum is $1,000; there is no minimum.

The Weather Strikes Out With Everyone

Victoria's weather could get worse — but it is difficult to see how.

Tourist officials are looking for sunshine and they are getting cloud. The forest service is praying for rain and the nine-month drought is continuing.

Forest are very dry and the local hotels are not yet humming with activity.

May was no help.

There are only 225 hours of sunshine during the month, 19 per cent below the normal total of 227 hours.

But rain fell on only 12 days and measured a mere 12 millimetres, or 45 per cent below the normal May total of 22 millimetres.

Ray Wormald, information officer for the B.C. Forest Service, said heavy rains are needed to dampen down the tinder-dry woods.

"Already there have been an unusually high number of forest fires and the season has hardly begun," he said.

"This is a dangerous situation."

Norm Dressler, chief forecaster for the Victoria area, says rain may — or may not — be on the way.

"The total rainfall in a year tends to be fairly constant. That would lead you to believe that when spring is dry, like this one has been, that we are in for heavy rains later in the year."

Weather scientists, however have been fooled by averages too many times to base forecasts upon them.

"Just because spring is dry, this does not mean the rest of the year must be wet. It would be possible to have 12 months of dry weather."

In fact we are closing in on that now.

After last summer's heavy rains, Victoria moved into a dry era that produced lower-than-normals rainfall in every month except March, when it was slightly above average.

Precipitation in April and May was sharply below normal levels.

June came in just the way May went out.

The weather was cloudy and cool — but dry.

Official forecasts do not go beyond two days and scientists do not want to speculate beyond that point.

But if they could arrange the weather, they would make it the exact opposite of what it is now.

"This weather pattern isn't doing anyone any good," Dressler said.

He would like to predict sunshine for the cities and rain in the bush, but it is not yet in the cards.

NEW AT SAFEWAY

THE Spetifore STORY

In Hong Kong, England, Japan and here in British Columbia, there's a new brand of frozen french fried potatoes on the market. They're being processed in Delta by Spetifore Frozen Foods, using potatoes grown right here in B.C. The $6 million plant was opened last November by the Spetifore family, well-known for many years as Delta area farmers.

The plant is located on 40 acres of Delta industrial land, close to the intersection of the Tsawwassen ferry road and Highway 99. It contains the most modern equipment available to automatically peel, slice, blanch, cook, fast freeze and package the four varieties of frozen french fries currently being produced.

There are 75 local farmers growing potatoes for Spetifores; by the end of July the plant will have processed close to 25 million pounds of potatoes. When the plant is working at full capacity it provides jobs for 60 employees.

Canada Safeway believes that local growers and manufacturers deserve support. We welcome Spetifore Frozen Foods as a supplier of frozen french fried potatoes to our stores throughout B.C.
